U.S. TO JOIN WITH LEAGUE IN NOTE TO CHINA, JAPAN

To Direct Attention of Nations Clashing in Manchuria, to Their Obligations Under the Briand-Kellogg Pact.

AMERICAN ATTENDS SECRET MEETING

Way Sought to Reconcile Nanking's Demand for Intervention With Tokio's for Settlement by Direct Negotiation.

By the Associated Press.

GENEVA, Oct. 17.—The United States and 12 other nations agreed through their League of Nations council representatives tonight to send a note to Nanking and Tokio directing the attention of China and Japan to their engagements under the Briand-Kellogg pact.

Prentiss B. Gilbert, the American spokesman, and the 12 council members who are not parties to the conflict in Manchuria, participated in this agreement.

The step was taken to put forward formally the Briand-Kellogg pact—under which the United States is associating itself with the council's discussions—as a basis of international action for mediating the trouble in the Far East.

Long Secret Session.

The action resulted from a long secret session of the council at which an attempt was made to find a formula which would consider China's appeal for intervention and at the same time respect Japan's insistence upon settlement by direct negotiations between the two nations.

The effort to reconcile two such divergent views aroused profound anxiety lest the situation grow worse before Geneva's scheme for pacification could be put into effect.

The International committee of thirteen from which Dr. Alfred Sze and Kenkichi Yoshizawa, Chinese and Japanese delegate, were excluded, held two sessions today.

Official Communique.

At the conclusion of the night meeting the following communique was issued:

"The members of the council, with the exception of the two parties concerned, continued their examination of the Sino-Japanese conflict today and discussed what proposals might be submitted to the two parties. Further, the members of the council who are also signatories to the pact of Paris (the Briand-Kellogg pact) decided that their governments should call attention to the Governments at Nanking and Tokio to the obligations which they have undertaken under Article 2 of this pact.

"This article reads: 'The high contracting parties agree that the settlement or solution of all disputes or conflicts or whatever nature or of whatever origin they may be, which may arise among them, shall never be sought except by pacific means.' "

While the council was in session it was learned that from many quarters the League was being urged to take strong measures to induce Japan to accept its mediation.

Economic boycotts were talked of as a possibility. Scarcely any observers thought there was any chance of military coercion.

Japanese Foreign Office Insists on Dealing Directly With China.

By the Associated Press.

TOKIO, Oct. 17.—The Japanese foreign office declared tonight Japan and China, left to themselves, would settle their difficulties peaceably, intimating that if war developed from the Manchurian situation the interference of the rest of the world could be blamed.

Officialdom sought a formula for the future, pointing out that the army's freedom of cabinet control and its uncompromising stand against outside interference would place the Government in a perplexing position should the League of Nations order Japanese troops to leave Manchuria.

The troops took over strategic southern Manchurian centers a month ago after a clash between Japanese railway guards and Chinese soldiers. Japanese officials asserted the lives and properties of their nationals were endangered. China has appealed to the League,

A. F. OF L. TO SEEK MILLIONS FROM CONGRESS FOR NEEDY AND JOBLESS THIS WINTER

Executive Council Directs President Green to Act—To Appeal to Cities and States Also.

By the Associated Press.

VANCOUVER, B. C., Oct. 17.—William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor, was directed by its Executive Council in session here today to go before Congress with an appeal for many millions of dollars to be appropriated as an unemployment relief fund.

"The Executive Council has expressed its determination to secure the appropriation of an adequate amount to met the requirements of the unemployment situation in a full and complete way," Green said. His statement follows:

"Hunger must be relieved, food and clothing and shelter must be supplied the needy.

"The Executive Council appreciated the fact that local committees will be called upon to do their full share. Likewise the municipal and State Governments will be called upon to respond in a liberal way; but owing to the fact that heavy demands have been made upon local communities for the relief of unemployment since 1929, it is the opinion of the council that the Federal Government should and must respond through a generous appropriation of Federal funds in order to assist and help in a full and complete way the local communities throughout the nation.

"For this reason the Executive Council directed the president of the Federation of Labor to present to Congress a strong appeal for the appropriation of a large sum, amounting to many millions of dollars to be used as an unemployment relief fund and to be used in supplementing the money appropriated by local communities, city and State Governments.

"It is the firm opinion of the Executive Council that Congress is ready to take such action, and that when it meets, in December, it can be relied upon to make liberal appropriations for unemployment relief and to devise ways and means by which the money needed can be raised.

"The needs are very great, distress is widespread, consequently the council is fully convinced that Congress will respond in a most whole-hearted and generous way."

TARIFF BOARD URGED TO 'SHUT UP SHOP' TILL TRADE REVIVES

One Member Favors Complete Suspension; Progressive Group to Meet in November.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 17.—Some officials here are urging that the Tariff Commission shut up shop until business has improved. At least one member of the commission favors a complete suspension of revisions in tariff rates until normal conditions have returned.

Those contending for the suspension maintain it is impracticable to fix tariff rates on the basis of the rapidly changing price structures now prevalent here and abroad.

The commission, since its reorganization after enactment of the Hawley-Smoot act, has made few important changes in tariff rates, but is now investigating or is about to inquire into the duties on many major commodities.

This month it is holding hearings on the duties on a great many vegetable products and has undertaken recently an inquiry into the sugar duty, which was one of the most controversial in the entire law

Meanwhile Senator Costigan (Dem.) Colorado, announced today that his committee, set up by the Progressve conference here last spring to report on the tariff, would meet in November.

JOBLESS PAN GOLD TO EARN LIVING IN CALIFORNIA

Those Who Know How Make From $1.50 to $3 a Day, Official Says.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 17.—Unemployed in California are going back to the source of their gold and are panning it from the streams. Rolland A. Vandegrift, State Director of Finance, said today: "Men without jobs are going up our streams, just like the original miners did. Their number certainly is hundreds—and perhaps running into thousands. Those who know how to mine are making from $1.50 to $3 a day.

In Grass Valley in Butte County and in other California gold fields, he said, mines closed for 25 or 30 years are going full blast.

AKRON PASSES OVER INDIANA WINDING UP FINAL TEST TRIP

Flies Over St. Louis, Chicago, Indianapolis and Other Cities on Return to Ohio.

By the Associated Press.

INDIANAPOLIS, Oct. 17.—The U. S. Navy dirigible Akron reached Indianapolis at 5:55 p. m. today. It had come by way of Fort Wayne and Muncie. At 7:20 it was sighted over Richmond, Ind., headed east. It will end its 48-hour final test flight at Akron tomorrow.

The Akron circled over Chicago in the early morning hours and again during the afternoon, flying over Stagg Field during the Chicago-Yale football game.

Friday night the Akron flew over St. Louis. Comparatively few persons saw the craft because there was no advance announcement of its proposed flight to that city.

Milwaukee, Wis., and Springfield, Ill., also got a glimpse of the airship today. This is its final test flight before being turned over to the United States Navy. It is scheduled to return to Akron early tomorrow.

By the Associated Press.

COLUMBUS, O., Oct. 17. — The airship Akron passed over downtown Columbus at 10:37 p. m. tonight, headed toward its home port, Akron.

NO DECISION IN SCHOONER RACE; TIME BEATS BOATS

Canadian Entry in Lead 1.5 Miles From Goal When Allotted Six Hours Expire.

By the Associated Press.

HALIFAX, N. S., Oct. 17.—Bluenose, the Canadian champion of the North Atlantic fishing fleets, today lost a close race, not with its rival, the American challenger, Gertrude L. Thebaud of Gloucester, but with time.

Capt. Angus Walters guided his big Lunenburg salt banker around virtually the entire course of 38.8 miles in advance of jovial Capt. Ben Pine and the Thebaud, aspirant for the honor, only to see the six hours allotted to the race expire, as the finish line was in sight. Therefore, officially, there was no winner.

At the last mark passed, with only 5.8 miles remaining, the Canadian titleholder led Thebaud by more than 2' minutes. Gales of the night before had left the sea in turmoil, in which the competing schooners rolled and pitched. Bluenose was about a mile and a half from the finish line when time expired.

EDISON IN DEEP COMA, HEART HAS BEGUN TO FALTER

Grandchildren and Servants Visit His Bedside for What Is Expected to Be the Last Time.

DOCTOR SAYS "END IS NOT FAR OFF"

Gradual Acceleration of Pulse and Rate of Respiration Develops—Family All at Llewellyn Park.

By the Associated Press.

WEST ORANGE, N. J., Oct. 17.—Thomas A. Edison is nearing the end.

His grandchidren and his servants said farewell today. Dr. Hubert S. Howe prepared to remain at his bedside.

Mr. Edison was described at 9 p. m. by Dr. Howe as being "very much weaker."

About 15 minutes before the statement was issued all entrances to Glenmont, the Edison estate, were closed by police. A spokesman for the family, however, stated at that time that no emergency had yet developed.

At midnight Dr. Howe issued the following bulletin:

"Mr. Edison's respirations are rapid and shallow. His pulse is accelerated and of poor quality. There has been no evidence of suffering at any time."

The depth of the coma which is expected to be the aged inventor's last sleep was increasing. Dr. Howe said he has developed gradual acceleration of the pulse and rate of respiration.

The household servants and the gardener filed into the sickroom one at a time. Each stood by the bedside for a brief moment and looked on the face of his sleeping master, and each expected to see him again only in death.

Grandchildren at Bedside.

The grandchildren, too, were taken to the bedside for a moment. They were Thomas Edison Sloane, 14; John Edison Sloane, 9; Peter E. Sloane and Michael E. Sloane, 1 year old.

"I consider Mr. Edison is now gravely ill," Dr. Howe said. "He has had no nourishment in the last 24 hours and his heart action is gradually getting weaker.

"I have never before felt so convinced the end is not far off."

Dr. Howe spent the night in Mr. Edison's room in Glenmont, the Edison home in Llewellyn Park, where also were gathered the immediate members of the family.

Stout Heart Begins to Falter.

The inventor's sons, Thomas A. Jr., and Charles, and his daughter, Mrs. John Eyre Sloane, spent the day at the home and the other Edison children, Mrs. Marian Estelle Oser of Norwalk, Conn.; Theodore and William, remained within call at the homes of friends and relatives in the vicinity.

The stout heart that had carried Mr. Edison safely through an attack of pneumonia two years ago, and a sudden collapse last August, has begun to falter.

The deep coma from which no unusual efforts have been made to rouse him, gives him the appearance of being in a steady quiet sleep. Mrs. Edison, who has been constantly at her husband's bedside, is "bearing up as well as can be expected," her son Charles said.

A bulletin at 6 p. m. from Dr. Howe said:

"During the past three hours Mr. Edison's condition has not changed as much as it did in the preceding period, but his respiration is a little more shallow. The pulse rate and volume are about the same."

A spokesman for the Edison family announced that arrangements had been made to transmit Dr. Howe's regular bulletins to President Hoover by wireless while the President is traveling aboard a battleship to attend the Yorktown celebration.

HOOVER FACING DIFFICULT TASK IN REDUCING BUDGET

Estimates for Next Fiscal Year Exceed Those of 1931-2 by More Than $250,000,000.

DEFICIT MOUNTING $6,000,000 A DAY

President Having Trouble in Bringing Subordinates Into Line With His Views on Economy.

By PAUL Y. ANDERSON,
A Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 17.—Despite President Hoover's determination to reduce Government expenditures substantially during the fiscal year beginning next July 1, it was learned today that preliminary budget estimates by the departments for the coming year actually exceed the present year's budget by more than $250,000,000. Consequently, it will be necessary for the President to prune that amount from the estimates before he can start to make a real reduction.

The White House served notice yesterday that "meritorious projects can, must and will be deferred." Nevertheless, evidence abounds that the President is having serious difficulty bringing his subordinates into line with his plans. The Navy Department, in particular is causing so much trouble that President Hoover has felt compelled to appeal to the country for support, although he is Commander-in-Chief of all the armed forces of the nation.

For example, it is known that when the President demanded drastic cuts in the Navy's budget, "the Admirals" responded by suggesting the elimination of several navy-yards. Of course, Navy officials were well aware that the cuts which they suggested would never be approved by Congress. The purpose of their proposals was to confront the President with the choice of abandoning his proposed economies, or accepting a recommendation which would certainly embroil him with Congress.

The President's Secretary of the Navy, Adams, is siding with the Navy against his superior, and relations have become so strained in the last week that there have been public suggestions that Secretary Adams might resign.

Deficit Above Half Billion.

Coincident with the difficulties which the President is encountering in his attempt to introduce economies is the necessity of providing new revenues with which to meet the constantly growing Treasury deficit. The present fiscal year is 3½ months old, yet it already shows a deficit of $515,000,000, and it is mounting at the rate of more than $6,000,000 a day.

The administration is faced with a situation in which revenues are steadily declining, while expenditures have a tendency steadily to increase. For example, the the appropriation for construction work on Boulder Dam for the current year is only $17,000,000. But as the work swings into action—as it will after this winter—the requirements will be much larger.

The Federal building program is being pushed, requiring additional money as sites are obtained and plans drawn. The War Department housing program also is advancing, while increasing demands are being made for rivers and harbors development work.

Another factor which will add to the 1933 budget is the increasing borrowing of the Treasury to meet the deficit. In the last 15 months approximately $1,000,000,000 has been added to the national debt. Much of this money has been obtained, however, by the sale of Treasury bills and certificates, bearing an interest rate recently as low as 1 per cent.

At the same time the Treasury has been taking advantage of the cheap money situation to retire

CITY FIREMAN DROWNED IN RAMONA PARK POND

Theodore Uhle Was Trying to Swim 20 Feet to Shore From Leaking Boat.

Theodore Uhle, 28 years old, a city fireman, was drowned at 6 o'clock last night in a pond at Ramona Park, St. Louis County, when he attempted to swim ashore from a skiff which began to leak while he was fishing.

Uhle had been fishing all day with his wife and Mr. and Mrs. C. F. Bauer of 1352 Bayard avenue. Bauer, who is also a city fireman, said Uhle, alone in the boat, called out that it was leaking, dove and began swimming to shore, a distance of about 20 feet.

After a few strokes he gasped for breath and went down. Bauer hailed a Kirkwood-Ferguson street car nearby and a passenger, James Browder, a Negro, of Kinloch Park, went to the scene and recovered the body. The Pine Lawn Fire Department was called and applied an inhalator for an hour, but without success.

Uhle lived with his wife at 4557 Page boulevard and was a pipeman for Engine Company No. 10 at Jefferson avenue and Walnut street.

DOOLITTLE LOWERS RECORD IN DETROIT-NEW YORK FLIGHT

Makes 540-Mile Journey in 2 Hours 32 Minutes and 19 Seconds, Beating Hawks by 8 Minutes.

By the Associated Press.

ROOSEVELT FIELD, N. Y., Oct. 17.—Maj. James H. Doolittle landed here at 5:02:19 p. m. today from Selfridge Field., Mich., establishing a record of 2 hours 32 minutes and 19 seconds for the 540-mile hop, or about 8 minutes better than the mark of Capt. Frank M. Hawks.

Doolittle landed shortly after the close of the charity air races, and most of the crowd had left the field.

He plans to fly to Ottawa Monday for the start of a dawn-to-dusk flight between Ottawa and Mexico City.

White House Expenditures Cut.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 17. — The Treasury today said that the White House executive offices and the Commerce Department were the only divisions of the Government to reduce their expenditures for the first three months of the 1932 fiscal year to a point below the same period of last year. From July 1, to Sept. 30, the executive offices spent $115,694, as compared with $182,171 in the opening quarter of last year. The Department of Commerce in three months spent $13,956,760 as compared with $17,979,360 last year. The other departments exceeded the expenditures of a year ago.

PLAN TO USE WARSHIPS AS LINERS REPORTED

Promoters Said to Seek to Buy Airplane Carriers Lexington and Saratoga.

By the Associated Press.

BOSTON, Oct. 17.—The Boston Transcript today said incorporation papers would be filed next week at the State House by a company formed to acquire the naval airplane carriers Lexington and Saratoga for conversion into express passenger liners designed to sail from Boston to Europe in four days.

The acquisition of the carriers, each of which cost nearly $45,000,000 when constructed several years ago, would be dependent upon the approval of President Hoover, the paper said. He has not yet been approached.

The New England group behind the project, the Transcript said, was said to be ready to buy the ships "at a reasonable price." A further condition was that the United States Shipping Board should agree to grant a loan for three-quarters of the cost of reconditioning, estimated by $11,250,000 and that the Postoffice Department should award a "satisfactory" 10-year ocean mail contract to the promoters.

The Transcript said three of the railroads entering Boston, the New Haven, the Boston & Albany and the Boston & Maine, together with the Pennsylvania, had agreed to indorse the financing of the plan and to supply the management. It further said the First National Bank and the banking house of Lee, Higginson & Co. would raise funds up to $7,000,000 for the initial financing.

Charles E. Spencer Jr., vice president of the bank, who was said to have been one of those closely consulted by the promoters, denied the bank had committed itself in any way. "We have been approached by the promoters with a prospectus and we are investigating the merits of the plan," said Spencer.

The Boston & Maine Railroad, in a statement tonight, admitted its executives had been co-operating in preliminary studies on the possibility of establishing out of the port of Boston a trans-Atlantic service on a four-day basis.

VERDICT IS GIVEN AFTER 8 HOURS OF DELIBERATION

Maximum Penalty Possible Is 17 Years' Imprisonment and $50,000 Fine, Three Felony Cases Being Included in Finding.

ACQUITTAL VOTED ON 18 ALLEGATIONS

Judge Wilkerson Will Hear Motion for Arrest of Judgment Tuesday and Probably Will Pass Sentence Then.

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Oct. 17.—Al Capone, Chicago's notorious gang leader, was convicted by a Federal Court jury tonight on five out of 23 counts charging evasion of income taxes.

The jury reported at 10:50 tonight that it had reached a verdict, and the defendant and attorneys were called by telephone to appear and hear the decision.

The jury took eight hours and 18 minutes to reach a verdict. The counts on which Capone was convicted include three felony allegations of attempt to evade and defeat income taxes for the years 1925, 1926 and 1927 and two misdemeanor counts charging failure to file income tax returns in 1928 and 1929.

The maximum penalty possible is 17 years imprisonment and $50,000 fine.

Acquitted on 18 Counts.

The gangster was acquitted on the one indictment charging attempt to evade and defeat taxes on a 1924 income. He also was acquitted of 17 felony accounts on the second indictment, many of them duplications of the counts on which he was found guilty.

The jury was polled once, and then, after Assistant U. S. District Attorney Jacob I. Grossman said it appeared that the jury might have been mixed on the numbers of the various counts, the attorneys went into a conference as a recess was called.

Grossman said it appeared "inconsistent" that the jury should find Capone guilty of evading taxes in 1925, 1926 and 1927 and not guilty of similar felony counts in 1928 and 1929.

The defendant smiled as the verdict was read by the clerk of the court. One of his attorneys, Albert Fink, announced informally intention to file a motion for a new trial, and later withdrew the announcement.

Arguments on Motion Tuesday.

Judge Wilkerson, after much discussion, granted a request by the defense to argue a motion for arrest of judgment and set 10 a. m. Tuesday as the time.

The court at first denied the motion when Attorney Fink presented it, saying it was "obviously improper" and there could be no argument about it. He said that unless the defense moved at once for a new trial he would pronounce sentence tonight.

Fink persisted, however, and the court then asked for "assurance that you have grounds for the motion."

"I not only can assure you of that, your honor," Fink said, "but I can assure you I will convince your honor that you should arrest the judgment and that you will do so."

All other motions will be argued Tuesday also, the court said.

Counsel for the Government who had recessed for 10 minutes to confer "on the consistency of the verdict," reported after a conference

U. S. PREPARING FOR ACTIVE PART IN ARMS CONFERENCE

Hugh Wilson in Washington Makes Report That Will Be Basis for Hoover-Laval Conversations.

NAVAL HOLIDAY MEETS WITH FAVOR

Sentiment in Europe Shifting—Stimson May Head American Delegation to Geneva.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 17.—An intensive preparation, designed to fit the United States into a leading role at the coming general disarmament conference, is in progress at the State Department.

Summoned from Geneva by Secretary of State Stimson, Hugh R. Wilson, American Minister to Switzerland and one of the Washington Government's two key men in the disarmament problem, today laid before Secretary Stimson his observations on the subject.

Wilson's reports will furnish a basis for conversations on disarmament between President Hoover and Premier Laval of France. In addition they will supplement the conversations which the President had a few months ago with Hugh S. Gibson, Ambassador to Belgium and co-worker with Wilson in the disarmament endeavors.

The immediate result of the Minister's visit to Washington will be America's reply to a suggestion by the League of Nations for a general one-year naval holiday. State Department officials said tonight there was no doubt that the reply of the United States would be whole-heartedly in favor of such a holiday. The third committee of the League Assembly, dealing with disarmament and upon which Wilson was the American member, asked that the nations reply by Nov. 1.

Hopeful of Success.

On the basis of reports from Europe, it has become apparent to the American Government that the attitude toward the forthcoming conference has changed decidedly during the last two months.

Gibson, in his conversations with the President, made known his personal doubts of the prospects for the conference. At that time there appeared every indication that France would ask that the parley be postponed. Without committing itself formally, the American Government aligned itself actively against every suggestion that the meeting be deferred.

The President's personal assurance that the United States would co-operate fully in every effort to make the conference a success was given to Gibson before he sailed back to Europe. In repeated public statements, the Chief Executive has declared himself emphatically against mounting expenditures for world armaments.

Wilson, however, has now returned with a highly optimistic report on the prospects for the conference. The sentiment in Europe he told the Department, was rapidly approaching a feeling that the conference was destined to succeed.

New Agreement Suggested.

The general opinion in Washington now is that ships, guns and armies—the natural subjects for a disarmament conference—will become secondary to that of political security. The French contention has been that the political issues that necessitate large forces must be adjusted before disarmament can be attained.

Some prominent officials have even gone so far as to predict that the form which a Geneva agreement would take would be a group of general clauses, providing an understanding on political issues and strengthened by a "consultative" arrangement with the maximum limits of armies subscribed to in appended clauses.

The feeling here has grown recently that the active leadership among the nations represented would be shared about equally by France and the United States. This fact added to President Hoover's desire to confer with Premier Laval, who will arrive in Washington next week. Four other nations will play leading roles. They are Great Britain, Germany, Italy and Japan. America's delegation to the conference will be a strong one, possibly headed by Secretary Stimson himself.

ON BOARD S. S. ILE DE FRANCE, EN ROUTE TO NEW YORK, Oct. 17.—Premier Pierre Laval of France conferred today with financial experts on matters concerning the French standpoint on the questions he will discuss with President Hoover at Washington.

The Premier also conferred with Randolph Burgess, representative of the Federal Reserve Bank of New York, who is also aboard the ship.

Laval was on deck at 9 o'clock this morning for exercise. Hardly anyone else was out at that time and by the time the other passengers began to appear the Premier was at work in his suite.

U. S. AND LEAGUE TO SEND NOTE TO CHINA AND JAPAN

charging Japan with violation of international obligations.

Might Take Years.

"If let to ourselves China and Japan would find some way to get together and settle the present dispute," said a spokesman for the foreign office. "It might take months, or possibly years, but the two nations never would fight. That is the point we desire to make clear at Geneva."

The spokesman explained that in Japanese eyes the Chinese are not seen as warriors, but as pacifists, much preferring verbal rows to actual combat. He said the two countries, during the centuries they have lived as neighbors, have managed to settle their differences to their own satisfaction, and Tokio thinks direct negotiations with China present the most logical route to solution of the 300 or more questions—some hanging fire for years—which have been brought to a head by the present occupation.

"China cannot possibly force Japan to declare war," he commented.

Army Thinks U. S. Meddlesome.

Unless conferences in the next 48 hours cause a change of plans, the spokesman believed the Japanese representatives at Geneva would continue to fight intervention on a legal basis, concentrating on the invitation to the United States to participate, which Washington has accepted with the understanding that such participation will be limited to enforcement of the Kellogg anti-war pact. As viewed in Government circles, Japan will continue to adhere to its original contention that occupation was in self defense and constituted no violation of the Kellogg pact, in which the nations of the world renounced war as an instrument of national policy.

The Rengo news agency carried a statement from army authorities characterizing the American attitude toward Manchuria as "extremely meddlesome" and added that "so far as the army is concerned, secession from the League, if necessary, would be quite in order."

State Department Thinks Threat of War Is Diminishing.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 17. — The absence of reports of further encounters between Japan and China in Manchuria convinced State Department officials today that the threat of war was steadily diminishing. Much of the department's attention was centered on Geneva where Prentiss B. Gilbert, American Consul-General, is now sitting with the League of Nations' Council in its efforts to maintain peace.

Secretary Stimson talked with President Hoover, but declined to comment on the conference.

Under-Secretary Castle reiterated his view that an adjustment of the underlying causes of the dispute could best be obtained through direct negotiations between China and Japan. Thus far, China has refused to negotiate while Japanese troops occupy Chinese territory outside the South Manchurian Railway zone.

The Japanese position as outlined to Secretary Stimson by Ambassador Debuchi of Japan was that troops would be withdrawn, if China would guarantee the safety of Japanese lives and property.

Reports from Tokio that military officials consider American participation in the League's deliberations "meddlesome" brought from the State Department a reiteration of its desire to take no part in the controversy other than to see that it does not lead to war. Gilbert has been carefully instructed to participate actively in the deliberations only if the Kellogg-Briand pact to renounce war should come up for discussion. If the League should see fit to go further and attempt to adjudicate the controversy, the United States would take no part whatsoever.

Byrd's Former Aid Reweds.

CHICAGO, Oct. 17.—Richard Gale Brophy, 29 years old, who disappeared before the Byrd South Pole expedition, of which he was to have been second in command, sailed south, was granted a divorce on the ground of desertion today from Mrs. Fern Brophy. An hour later he took out a license to wed Anna M. Gregg, 30, a divorcee.

PLANS TO BRING MAYOR WALKER'S AID BACK TO U. S.

Seabury Committee May Serve Subpena on Sherwood, Who Is Found in Mexico City.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Oct. 17.—Two possible means of getting Russell T. Sherwood, Mayor Walker's accountant, back to New York so he may be questioned about stock transactions reported to total nearly $1,000,000 appeared open today to the Hofstadter legislative committee.

Sherwood, found in Mexico City on a honeymoon, is not only beyond the jurisdiction of the inquiry board, but is also beyond the extraditing power of the Federal Government, which is investigating his income tax returns.

Because the United States treaty with Mexico does not include tax offenses among extraditable felonies, the only course left open to authorities is to induce him to return voluntarily or to serve him with a subpena in Mexico City.

While Samuel Seabury, counsel for the committee, refused to discuss the case, there were reports he was considering sending a telegram to Ambassador Reuben Clark at Mexico City asking him to serve a subpena on Sherwood. If the witness were thus served, the committee might invoke a law under which a $100,000 fine may be imposed on anyone who defies a legislative committee, after having been served personally with a subpena.

In connection with a possible attempt to induce Sherwood to return of his own volition, it was reported Seabury might appeal to Mayor Walker to urge his accountant to face the committee's questons.

The Mayor has denied shielding Sherwood and has said he had "no objection" to his returning, although Seabury charged publicly the Mayor was obstructing the inquiry by helping to keep the accountant out of the committee's jurisdiction.

Sherwood was married at the home of friends in Mexico City, Oct. 6, to the former wife of Edward Eugene Conner, who obtained a divorce in Cuernavaca Sept. 5. Her maiden name was Eleanor Barbara Rumpf, and her home was in Brooklyn. Both gave their ages as 46.

$5000 FIRE DESTROYS TWO BUILDINGS OF SAWDUST PLANT

Several Hundred Persons Watch Park Avenue Blaze After 3 Alarms Are Sounded.

Fire of undetermined origin destroyed the buildings of the John P. Murphy Sawdust Co., 2852 Park avenue, last midnight with a loss estimated at $5000. Murphy who lives next door and who made the estimate of loss said neither of the buildings was insured.

The fire started about 11:30 p. m. Three alarms were turned in and the flames were under control in less than an hour. Several hundred spectators, attracted by high, leaping flames and dense clouds of smoke, crowded about to watch the two buildings burn.

WILLIAM O. ATKESON, 74, FORMER CONGRESSMAN, DIES

By the Associated Press.

BUTLER, Mo., Oct. 17.—Funeral services will be held here Monday for William O. Atkeson, 74 years old, who was elected to Congress as a Republican from the Fifth Missouri District in 1920 and was defeated for re-election in 1922. He died last night at his home here after suffering a stroke of apoplexy.

He served as Deputy State Labor Commissioner in Gov. Hadley's administration and was State Warehouse Commissioner from 1923 to 1927 under appointment by Gov. Hyde.

For several years he published a newspaper in Butler and was the author of a history of Bates County. He was elected County Prosecutor in 1891. Three sons and a daughter survive.

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Oct. 17.—Vincent J. Tiefenbrunn of 3633 Liermann avenue, St. Louis, winner of the Crowell marksmanship trophy at the annual national rifle matches in Camp Perry, O., in August, was awarded his prize today by Major-General Frank J. Parker, commandant of the Sixth Corps Area. Tiefenbrunn defeated 1256 competitors and was the first member of the citizens' military training camps to win the trophy.

5-POINT PROGRAM OUTLINED FOR MIGRATING UNEMPLOYED

President's Organization on Relief Suggests Methods for Cities to Use.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 17. — A five-point program for tackling the problem created by the migration of unemployed to the cities was recommended today by the President's organization on unemployment relief.

Explaining that this movement had "irked hundreds of cities increasingly," the unemployment committee offered the following plan to community executives:

"1. You can make an intelligent plan quickly to return them to their former home surroundings, where they will be among friends, where the children can be in school and where the family will be cared for according to the community's plan for its own unemployed.

"2. Or you can make an intelligent plan quickly to return them to their place of legal residence through the co-operation of the proper public welfare organizations, so that they may have the benefit of public care, if such is necessary.

"3. Or you can make a wise plan to help them become assimilated in your community, in case they are unfortunately without residence elsewhere.

"4. While one of the above plans is being made, you may find it necessary to provide temporary care, including lodging, meals, clothing, medical and other care.

"5. You can give quick and careful intercity consideration to all requests for service on problems involving the care of transients from your town in difficulty elsewhere."

"IMPAIRING FAITH IN U. S."

Congressman Says Attempts are Made Abroad to Hurt Market.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 17. — A charge of attempts abroad to impair confidence in American securities was made today by Representative McFadden of Pennsylvania. Speaking over the radio during the National Grange hour, McFadden said he regretted statements made recently by George Bernard Shaw, the Irish Socialist; Lloyd George, former English Premier, and H. G. Wells, historian and writer.

"It is hard to build up confidence, but it is very easy to break down confidence," he said, adding that the American Government authorities should take notice of such tactics, which he said, "are being pursued, apparently for the purpose of destroying confidence abroad as well as in the United States."

BRAZIL TO PAY LOANS IN SCRIP

Impossibility of Acquiring Foreign Exchange Given as Reason.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Oct. 17.—A statement from the Brazilian Government that it would pay all loans except funding loans of 1898 and 1914 in scrip bearing 5 per cent interest was made public today by Sebastiao Sampaio, Brazilian Consul General here.

The sinking fund and interest on the 5 per cent funding loans of those two years would be paid in cash, the statement said. The action is being taken, it was explained, because of "the impossibility of acquiring foreign exchange for the transfer of funds to the markets where the coupons of the external debt are payable."

PACIFIC FLYERS IN DELAWARE

Reach New Castle From Ohio; Going to New York Today.

NEW CASTLE, Del., Oct. 17.—Clyde Pangborn and Hugh Herndon Jr., who made the first nonstop flight from the Japanese mainland to the United States, landed here today, three hours and 15 minutes after they had left Port Columbus, O., on their way to New York. The flight was made to replace some small equipment on the plane at the Bellanca factory here.

The flyers expect to leave here tomorrow at 10 a. m., on the last leg of their flight to New York. Pangborn said souvenir hunters had taken a number of small pieces of equipment from the plane on the Pacific Coast, including maps, wing tip lights and similar small stuff. "As a matter of fact, we flew from Seattle to Omaha plotting our course on a railway system wall map," he said.

Capone Convicted of Income Tax Evasion

that the statutes showed the verdict to be consistent.

Although the Judge said he "was very clear about the impropriety of an arrest of judgment," Attorney Fink promised to cite him "a long line of cases."

Judge Wilkerson adjourned court, indicating that he would sentence Capone Tuesday after he had heard the motions.

Jury Retired at 2:43.

Twelve farmers, merchants and tradesmen from the suburbs of Chicago began deliberating at 2:43 p. m. today.

Eleven days of evidence and arguments concerning the gang leader's alleged evasion of taxes were brought to a close when Judge James H. Wilkerson finished instructions to the jury.

Capone, dressed in a grass-green suit, yellow shoes and green tie, stretched himself in apparent relief and smiled to his attorneys as the jury filed out of the courtroom. The gangster had leaned forward to catch every word of the Judge's instructions.

Instructions on Verdict.

Judge Wilkerson informed the jurors they might return any one of the following four verdicts: Innocent on all 23 counts listed against him in two indictments; guilty on all of them; innocent on one indictment and guilty on the other; or innocent on some counts and guilty on others.

The jury retired to a room off the court and Capone slumped in his seat at the defense counsel table to wait there for a time. The attorneys did likewise.

When the jury had been out an hour and 10 minutes, Capone left with his attorney, Michael Ahern, with the understanding both could be reached at Ahern's office. Judge Wilkerson had already left for his club, also to be called when the jury signified it was ready.

Conclusion of the court case brought to an end a three-year campaign by the Government to put Chicago's public enemy No. 1 in prison, on a tax-dodging charge.

If found guilty on all counts, Assistant District Attorney Dwight H. Green said, Capone would be liable to a maximum sentence of 57 years' imprisonment—five years each on 11 felony charges and one year on misdemeanor counts. Green said, however, that any sentence probably would not be more than one-fourth that number of years.

Other Charges Outstanding.

Capone faces other charges. Another indictment charges he is guilty of liquor conspiracy and lists 5000 offfenses.

Also, he is under a six months' sentence for contempt of court for delay in answering a summons to appear before a grand jury investigating his affairs. Capone insisted he was ill in Florida at the time. He has appealed the sentence.

"Was Capone the little boy out of the second reader who found the pot of gold at the end of the rainbow?" Johnson asked the jurors in his final plea, the first court address he has made during his tenure in office.

"If he was not, how did he get the money he spent so lavishly on $12,500 automobiles, $40,000 home, $27 shirts and $275 diamond-studded belt buckles by the score?

"Or was he a modern Robin Hood, taking from the rich and giving to the poor? Were the poor who sleep on the city's streets garbed in his $27 shirts? Did the unemployed ride in search of work in his high-priced limousine?

"From the evidence we have shown of this defendant's princely mode of living, his receipts of thousands through such channels as telegraphic money orders, his connection with a gambling house which made almost a million dollars in a few years.

"From all this evidence, you cannot help but return a verdict of conviction."

Capone was portrayed by his defense attorneys as "an honest citizen betrayed by the public and press to a vengeful Government."

"That Government," said Attorney Albert Fink, "refused to accept money offered by Capone in payment of delinquent taxes, but chose, instead, to use his offer to pay the tax as evidence to send him to prison.

"If this man is convicted, then the future generations will know that an innocent person was punished to appease a supposed public clamor. Why, even the confidence he rested with his attorney has been used as evidence against him."

The attorney to whom Fink referred was Lawrence B. Mattingly of Washington, D. C., who attempted to settle Capone's income tax difficulties in 1930. Included in the Government's documentary evidence was a letter which Mattingly wrote to the Internal Revenue Department, estimating Capone's income at $266,000 over a four-year period.

The verdict was given by a jury after Capone withdrew a plea of guilty and elected to stand trial. He withdrew his plea because Judge Wilkerson refused to be bound by an agreement between defense counsel and District Attorney George E. Q. Johnson to let Capone off with a light sentence in return for his plea.

Although his gangster friends who fought similar income tax cases had fared much worse than those who pleaded guilty, getting as much as a five-year sentence, Capone decided to fight.

The indictments charged Capone with attempting to evade and defeat taxes on yearly incomes which ranged from $103,999 to $257,286 in 1924, 1925, 1926, 1927, 1928 and 1929.

End of Three-Year Inquiry.

Conclusion of the case marked the end of an investigation that began three years ago. In the interim, many of Capone's allies were indicted, tried and convicted, but Capone himself was not indicted until last June 5.

A few weeks later he pleaded guilty and appeared before Judge Wilkerson for sentence, but when the Judge said he would not be bound by any agreement for leniency, Capone withdrew his plea and decided to fight the case.

The indictments, including 23 counts, charged he made $1,038,654 in the years 1924 to 1929, inclusive, and that he owed a tax of $215,080, out of which he defrauded the Government.

The trial started Oct. 6. Judge Wilkerson, examining the veniremen himself, needed only one day to complete a jury.

Government's Four Points.

The Government emphasized four points—Capone's attempt in 1930 to settle his income taxes, his alleged ownership of a prosperous Cicero (Ill.) gambling house, his lavish manner of living, and the receipt of $77,000 in telegraphic money orders when he was in Florida.

From the amount of time consumed both in testimony and final arguments, the prosecution evidently considered the attempted tax compromise its best line of attack. The evidence consisted mainly of letters from and conversations with Lawrence P. Mattingly, a Washington attorney, who visited the Internal Revenue Bureau in the spring of 1930 bearing a power of attorney and stating "Mr. Capone would like to help determine what his liability is and then settle up." The defense objected to the whole line of evidence, saying Mattingly had far exceeded his authority.

Nearly everything the Government offered was admitted as evidence, the principal exhibit being a letter from Mattingly to the Revenue Bureau saying he had at last got together some figures, "the best I could do," and that Capone was willing to pay a tax on that figure.

The letter stated Capone was a mere employe of Johnny Torrio, old Chicago gang boss, getting $75 a week in 1924 and 1925, and thus owing no tax for those years. In 1926 he joined a "business enterprise" with three associates, Mattingly wrote, but the first two years his returns were small, because he had no capital to invest. The income he suggested as "fair" was $26,000 for 1926, $40,000 for 1927, $100,000 for 1928, and $100,000 for 1929.

Gambling House Profit.

The Cicero gambling house was shown to have made a profit of $889,000 in the five years, beginning in 1924. Two former employes, Leslie Shumway and Fred Ries, told of seeing Capone in the place, usually in a private office, but neither would say on the witness stand that he was the owner.

Three men who raided the gambling house, however, said Capone showed unmistakable signs of ownership, asking the Rev. Henry C. Hoover, who led the raid, "Why are you always picking on me?" and telling two of Hoover's assitants, "I own the place."

Western Union employes were called to the stand to identify money orders totaling $77,000, sent from the Lexington Hotel, Chicago headquarters for Capone, to the gangster while he was in Miami, Fla. Almost $30,000 of these were cashed by the gang chief himself, the evidence showed, and the rest were cashed by Parker Henderson Jr., and the money turned over to Capone or one of his men.

The Government then showed Capone as a spendthrift playboy. Although the line of evidence was objected to as no proof of income, defense attorneys said there no doubt that Capone spent h amounts of money, Michael Ah going so far as to say "the eviden might warrant a Probate Court appoint a conservator for him

Paid Bills Promptly.

The gang leader lived in spaci hotel suites in Chicago and a $40,000 estate in Florida, the e dence showed. He paid his b promptly, always in currency, a he tipped liberally, usually $5 a time. He bought $135 suits by t half-dozen, $12 silk underw $4.95 ties and $2.75 handkerch by the score. One Christmas gifts included 30 diamond b buckles which cost $275 apie One of his banquets at the tim the Chicago Dempsey-Tunney fi lasted for two nights and cost m than $3000. His four-year te phone bill at Palm Island, Mia Beach, was $8423.

The Government figured C pone's total expenditures at $40, in 1927; $50,000 in 1928, and $ 000 in 1929. "All this money m have come from somewhere," s Assistant United States District A torney Jacob I. Grossman.

The defense case was b Aside from showing that the G ernment had failed to put seve persons it had subpenaed on t stand, defense attorneys brou out only that Capone was a c stant loser in race horse b Eight bookmakers, who said bet (and usually lost) as much $10,000 on a race, estimated total losses for the six years c ered in the indictments at abo $27,000.

Best Dahlia at Shaw's Garden Show

—By a Post-Dispatch Staff Photographer.

The foot-wide pink Kathleen Norris dahlia which was adjudged best in the St. Louis Horticultural Society's dahlia show at Shaw's Garden as well as the largest. It was grown by E. H. Johanning of Kirkwood, and also won a medal as the best amateur exhibit in all classes.

SHAW'S GARDEN DAHLIA SHOW ATTRACTS MANY

Specimens Range in Size From That of Dime to Large Plate —Closing Tonight.

Dahlias from dime-size up to the diameter of a dinner plate attracted several thousand persons to Shaw's Garden yesterday for the fourth annual fall show of St. Louis Horticultural Society.

The show will close tonight, and attendance in such numbers is expected that Superintendent Pring, president of the society, suggested that those who can go in the forenoon should do so to avoid the rush. The Flower Display House will open at 9 a. m.

In the display are a number of dainty little pompons, but the exhibition is dominated, certainly in showiness and apparently in popularity, by varieties many times their size. The "best dahlia in the show" winner of a silver vase offered by a seed company, is also the biggest, a Gargantuan blossom, a full foot in diameter.

The grower was E. H. Johanning of Kirkwood, who also won the bronze medal of the American Dahlia Society for the best amateur showing in all classes. The best dahlia is a Kathleen Norris, of what the experts call the "informal decorative" type, in a pink shade. The silver medal of the American Dahlia Society for the best commercial entry was awarded to the Missouri Dahlia Farms.

Outside of this special commercial class, however, the show was all for the amateurs, and the profusion and excellence of their exhibits, said Edward F. Nolte, chairman of the show, testified to the growing interest and expertness of St. Louisans under guidance of the Horticultural Society. Until a few years ago it was commonly said that dahlias could not be grown in this climate. The 12-inch prizewinner, he remarked, was a fair indication that there must have been some mistake about that.

Dahlias were by no means the whole show. There was a huge bank of hybrid tea roses, grown outdoors, mostly pink and red Radiants. There were magnificent vases of mixed flowers, also grown outdoors. There was a striking exhibition of pink and yellow tuberous begonias, rare in this section and especially rare at this season.

There was a spike of monk's hood, a blue flower like the delphinium, but with each bell-like blossom capped with a graceful rounded hood. And there were a number of Wardian cases or glass gardens, which, because of their attractiveness and ability to withstand apartment conditions and apartment-dwellers' neglect, are becoming increasingly popular in St. Louis.

A center of interest was an original birch-bark shadow-box of Adirondack plants exhibited by Mrs. Albert Huntington of Webster Groves, whose seed-pod zoos have become locally famous through recent flower shows.

FELLOWSHIPS CONFERRED ON 6 ST. LOUIS SURGEONS

Drs. Probstein, Eimer, Brown, Thompson and Wilhelmi Honored in New York.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, Oct. 17.—The American College of Surgeons, meeting at the Waldorf-Astoria Hotel here, conferred fellowships on six St. Louis surgeons last night.

The St. Louisans honored are Dr. James B. Brown, Dr. Charles E. Eimer, Dr. Jacob G. Probstein, Dr. J. William Thompson, Dr. Otto J. Wilhelmi and Dr. Thomas C. Wimber.

Drs. Probstein, Thompson and Wimber are general surgeons. Dr. Brown specializes in oral and Dr. Wilhelmi in genito-urinary surgery. Dr. Eimer is an ear, nose and throat specialist.

HOOVER AND PARTY ON WAY TO YORKTOWN

Board Battleship Arkansas at Annapolis; Stop Today at Fortress Monroe.

By the Associated Press.

ANNAPOLIS, Md., Oct. 17. — President Hoover and his official party arrived here from Washington early this evening, was received at the Naval Academy by a party of officials and departed a half hour later, shortly after 6 p. m. for Yorktown aboard the U. S. Arkansas.

Until he left Washington in the late afternoon, the Chief Executive worked in his office.

Among the invited guests for the journey were Assistant Secretary Jahncke of the Navy; Mrs. Charles Francis Adams, wife of the naval secretary, and Admiral and Mrs. William V. Pratt.

Senator Moses of New Hampshire joined the party here. From here the Arkansas will carry them to Fortress Monroe, Va., where the President will make a radio speech tomorrow, and on to the Yorktown celebration Monday.

The White House during the day kept close watch on weather conditions. Both the President and his party will be required to do considerable sailing in small boats throughout the week-end, since the draft of the Arkansas necessitates dropping anchor far offshore.

This is the President's second battleship voyage since taking office. He traveled to Porto Rico and the Virgin Islands aboard the Arizona.

On the Arkansas he occupies the captain's suite, inside the forward super-structure, behind and above the huge 12-inch forward gun turrets. Mrs. Hoover's suite, usually occupied by the ship's executive officer, is similar to the President's consisting of a sitting room, a bedroom and bath. Both suites are equipped with radio and a small librarry.

Arrangements have been made, too, for the showing of sound pictures if members of the presidential party desire.

Special dining quarters have been set aside for the Chief Executive and his guests, and some of the attendants at his Rapidan fishing camp in the Virginia mountains are attending the party's needs.

Banker Kills Self; Shortage Found.

FREMONT, Mo., Oct. 17.—Funeral services were held here for Lew Schupp, 45 years old, former cashier of the Fremont bank, closed two weeks ago, who shot and killed himself here yesterday. C. M. Duncan, bank examiner, was said to have found a shortage of $5100 in the accounts of the bank.

GRAND CHAMPIONSHIP WON BY OKLAHOMAN

G. A. Nichols' Clara Bow Takes Five-Gaited Prize at Horse Show.

Clara Bow, a mare owned by G. A. Nichols of Oklahoma City won the grand championship for five gaited saddle horses last night at St. Louis National Horse Show at The Arena, 5700 Oakland avenue. Second place was won by Vagabond Prince, owned by Miss Mary Gwyn Fiers of Oklahoma City.

Eight horses competed for the $2500 stake and the judges kept them working in the ring for three-quarters of an hour before reaching a decision. Rex Lee Bourbon, who had won the elimination stake for stallions and geldings, could do no better than third, and Rainbow Rose, winner of the elimination for mares, was fifth. Both are owned by W. T. Treadway of St. Louis.

Clara Bow, although second to Rainbow Rose in the elimination contest Thursday night, was in the form that has won prizes for her owner in state fairs throughout the Middle West when she entered the ring last night.

Army riders who are in training for the Olympic games at Fort Riley, Kan., captured the hunt team contest, riding Show Girl, Tan Bark and White Oak, three agile jumpers who have been consistent winners throughout the show. The entries of August A. Busch Jr. were second, and the army team from Fort Sill, Ok., third.

Fashion and Fascination, the hackney pony pair of Mrs. Lula Long Combs of Kansas City, won the blue ribbon in their class and the honors for three gaited pairs went to Town Talk and Town Gossip, owned by Fred W. Holekamp. E. W. Beghtol won first prize in the Shetland pony tandem event with Magic and Mavis.

The $2000 stake for heavy harness horses was won by Heyl & Son with Field Adjutant. Mrs. Loula Long Combs' hackney ponies, Fashion and Fascination, won their event and Signal Flash, owned by Peak & Sons, was the winner in the roadster class.

Miss Fiers' horse, Whispering Willow, won another prize in the contest for three-gaited animals. The Holekamp entry, Town Talk and Town Gossip, ridden by Fred J. and Marcella Berkley, won the parent and child event.

Thrills not on the program at the Horse Show in The Arena yesterday afternoon occurred when two horses in the ladies' hunter event threw their riders.

Miss Jacqueline Busch Jones, 16-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. C. Drummond Jones, narrowly escaped injury when her horse, Miss Burrland, failed to clear the second obstacle and fell heavily. Miss Mary Hodgdon of Webster Groves was thrown from her mount, Glenmore, when it stumbled, approaching the first hurdle, but also escaped injury.

Miss Burrland, with Miss Jones riding, had taken second place in the hunter stake Thursday night, in competition with crack riders of the army Olympic team and was expected to win yesterday's event handily. The blue ribbon, however, went to Gin Fizz, owned by August A. Busch Jr., and ridden by Mrs. Elmer Kerckhoff. Dansant, another Busch horse, was second, with Mrs. Henry J. Kaltenbach in the saddle.

Southern Sun, the California horse which won the stake for five-gaited stallions Wednesday night only to be disqualified, took irst place in the five-gaited combination class, besting Tessa K., owned by the Anacacho Ranch, and Senorita Bonita, owned by Miss Elsie Caldwell of Nashville, Tenn.

Other winners yesterday afternoon—Weanling colts, Queen of Easter, owned by Mrs. Loula Long Combs; foals of 1930, Gingham Girl, owned by Holekamp Farm; foals of 1929, Columbus Peavine, owned by John M. Olin; brood mare and foal, My Queen of All and foal, owned by Mrs. Combs; three-gaited model, Virginia Highland, owned by G. A. Nichols; heavy harness horse, Adoration, owned by Mrs. Combs; three-gaited novice, Mary Peavine, owned by W. C. Gadsby; roadster pairs, Al Siegler and mate, owned by Peak & Sons; five-gaited, ladies' class, Marcheta, owned by G. A. Nichols; hackney pony, Carnation, owned by Mrs. Combs; three-gaited mares and geldings, Virginia Highland, owned by G. A. Nichols; pony pairs, Sonny Boy and Sonny Girl, owned by Heyl & Son.

The show, which opened Monday, will close with a matinee at 2 o'clock this afternoon.

HAWK TAKES UP QUARTERS ON CIVIL COURTS BUILDING

For Two Weeks It Has Been Preying on Migratory Birds Flying South.

A black hawk with a wing spread estimated at nearly 48 inches has been flying over the downtown district preying on birds migrating south. It makes its headquarters on top of the Civil Courts building, but does not molest the pigeons which perch on the ledges below the twelfth floor.

Apparently it is content to capture birds flying south which stopped to rest on ledges on the fourteenth floor. George Brooks, maintenance engineer in the courthouse, said he had observed the hawk for the past two weeks.

Yesterday he saw the bodies of four doves and two yellow-hammers on which the hawk had been feasting on top of the building.

DOLE A BLUNDER OF ROME AND GREECE, GORE DECLARES

Oklahoma Senator Goes Back to Ancient History to Show Evils of System.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 17.—In a Library of Congress alcove, Blind Senator Gore of Oklahoma, reads day after day about the dole. For arguments against it the Democratic Senator has gone back to the second Punic War, and to the corn laws of Caius Gracchus.

"History treads the same round," he said. "To permit a dole would be to repeat the mistakes of old Greece and Rome. Caius Gracchus gave corn and he soon had a city full of loiterers and beggars—no character, no stamina."

Gore's reading is done through the trained eyes and voice of his secretary, Miss Leonore Flint.

Five of Recluse's 40 Trunks Yield Amazing Treasures

Stored Luggage of Mrs. Ida E. Wood Removed Piece by Piece to Bank and Opened for Inventory.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Oct. 17. — The wealth of Mrs. Ida E. Wood, 93-year-old recluse, in whose room $900,000 in cash and securities was found, grew today as jewel, lace and silk experts inventoried the contents of her 40-odd trunks.

The appraisers completed their examination of only five trunks, said Harold Wentworth, an attorney. All contained relics of the days when Mrs. Wood was a belle of New York society and a dancing partner of King Edward VII, then Prince of Wales.

The Astor Audit and Appraisal Corporation, trying to fix the present value of the gowns, necklaces, watches, bracelets, tiaras and other jewel-encrusted pieces, said the items might be worth "up to $1,000,000."

The appraisal disclosed that the many $1000, $5000 and $10,000 gold certificates, dating back almost to Civil War times, which were found in her clothing would go begging for a market among numismatists.

"There are only two collectors of old money in the United States," Wentworth said, "who are able to deal in such valuable relics. The experts got in touch with them and found that, although the banknotes were in perfect condition and unquestionably should have a high premium value, their purchase at this time was not practicable."

Mrs. Wood has not been informed of the inventory of her effects, lawyers said. She furnished the address of a storage warehouse, however, in which all of her known property was found without difficulty.

As each trunk was reached by the examiners, it was removed to the Harriman National Bank and the most valuable of the contents were placed in safety vaults. It will require weeks, the experts said, to fix definitely the worth of the jewelry.

There is one diamond necklace with stones grading from 8 down to 1½ carats which Mrs. Wood wore at the famous Empress Eugenie ball in Madison Square Garden.

Some of the jewels, diamond, rubies and emeralds had been taken from their settings, wrapped in bits of paper, and lain untouched for years in Mrs. Wood's bureau.

Many of the old laces found in the trunks were designed especially for Mrs. Wood in European lace-making centers.

bonds bearing 3 and 4 per cent interest. This has resulted in a temporary decrease in the interest paid by the Treasury, despite the extensive borrowing. Interest payments in the first three months this fiscal year totaled $46,419,000, as compared to $49,928,000 for the corresponding period last year.

Treasury officials, however, realize that short-term obligations must eventually be refunded by long-term securities bearing higher rates of interest, and the increase in the Federal Reserve rediscount rates are taken as evidence that the next Treasury bond issue cannot attract buyers unless interest rates are made higher than they were on the March, June and September issues.

While it is regarded as settled that the Federal Farm Board has got all the money it will get for its revolving fund, thus relieving next year's budget of $100,000,000, this sum is more than offset by the fact that this year's budget contains no appropriation for the veterans' bonus certificate fund, whereas $112,000,000 must be included for that purpose in the 1933 budget. This occurred when Congress, in passing the liberalized loan act, made immediately available in the 1931 fiscal year the $112,000,000 due this year.

Postal Deficit Mounting.

The postal deficit, unless the postage rate is increased, also is estimated at a larger figure for next year than it was this year. It is now apparent that insufficient money was allocated when this year's budget was made up to care for the potential deficit of the Postoffice Department. The total set aside for that purpose for the period from July 1, 1931, to June 30, 1932, was $98,283,000. In the first three months of this period the deficit totaled $45,000,000 or almost half of the allocated sum. The postoffice deficit is expected to grow steadily as the year goes on, unless business conditions improve or the postage rate is increased. Not only will the President have to allocate additional funds to take care of the deficit this year, but must make provision to care for a similar deficit in postal revenues in the next fiscal year.

These factors regarding governmental expenses and obligations are cited by officials here to show the size of the task before the President in trimming down the budget estimates of the departments. Moreover, while the President has power to prune the estimates, it is Congress which actually makes the appropriations. That demands for new appropriations to provide employment and relieve distress will be greater at this session than for many years is plainly apparent. Regardless of the President's wish, it does not appear likely that any substantial reduction in Government expenditures will be effected.

E. ST. LOUIS REALTY DEALER KIDNAPED IN OWN CAR, ROBBED

M. L. Harris, Once Mayoralty Candidate, Taken to Shack at Eagle Park.

M. L. Harris, real estate dealer and unsuccessful candidate for Mayor of East St. Louis in last April's election, was held up at 6 p. m. yesterday by three armed men who took him in his own car to a deserted shack at Eagle Park, Horseshoe Lake, bound his wrists with cord, robbed him of a gold watch and $6, and drove away in his automobile.

He released himself a few minutes later, summoned aid, and reported the robbery at National City. Harris said he was seated in his sedan near his home, 812 North Forty-first street, East St. Louis, waiting to take his wife from a street car, when the three men approached. One of them commanded, "Move over," and the speaker took the wheel, Harris said. The other two sat in the back with drawn revolvers.

After they had driven about three miles north on the Collinsville road, they stopped, pushed him into a shack, and bound his hands behind him. When Harris tried to examine their faces, one of them prodded him with a revolver and said, "Don't look."

EDNA ST. VINCENT MILLAY WINS CHICAGO PRIZE FOR POEM

Receives Levinson Award of $200 for "Three Sonnets"; Four Others Receive Smaller Sums.

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Oct. 17.—Edna St. Vincent Millay received the Helen Haire Levinson prize, offered for a poem or group of poems by an American appearing in "Poetry," a magazine of verse. The prize of $200 has been offered for 16 years by Salmon O. Levinson, Chicago attorney in memory of his wife. The award was based on her "Three Sonnets."

William Carlos Williams of Rutherford, N. J., received the guarantor's prize, $100; Harold Lewis Cook of Avon, Conn., the Friday Club prize of $100; Basil Bunting, an English poet living in Rapallo, Italy, lyric prize, $50; Helen Hoyt (Mrs. W. W. Lyman) of St. Helena, Cal., special lyric prize.

YOUTH, 18, HELD FOR KIDNAPING

Alfred Leiden Accused of Being in Gang That Took Representative.

CHICAGO, Oct. 17.—Alfred Leiden, 18 years old, whom the authorities accuse of being the fourth member of the gang which robbed and kidnaped State Representative James Curron, Sept. 22, was arrested today by the police and W. L. Cantlin of the State's Attorney's office in Kankakee.

Leiden denied any part in the robbery and was held at the Detective Bureau to await the arrival of Curran. Three other suspects have been indicted and are being held at Kankakee. They are Jack Miles, Harold McCarthy, alias Eugene Moore, and William Sholty.

PENDERGAST MOVE ON GOVERNORSHIP SEEMS UNCERTAIN

Kansas City Leader Strongly for Howell for U. S. Senate but Has Not Commented on Wilson.

DEARMONT'S MEN PREDICT VICTORY

However, Cape Girardeau Legislator Had Not Figured on Defection in Organization Ranks.

By CURTIS A. BETTS.

The phraseology of the statement of Thomas J. Pendergast, dictator of Democratic organization politics in Kansas City, pledging the organization's support to Charles M. Howell in his candidacy for the Democratic nomination for the United States senatorship, has led to much speculation among Missouri Democrats as to whether Pendergast is paving the way to a desertion of the candidacy of Francis M. Wilson of Kansas City, who again is seeking the nomination for the governorship.

It is now certain that Wilson will be opposed by State Senator Russell L. Dearmont of Cape Girardeau, whose formal announcement of candidacy is expected within 10 days.

In several interviews Pendergast, who is credited with the power to deliver approximately nine-tenths of the Democratic vote in Jackson County in a primary, and who has made good on the job many times, announced his organization would support Howell and Wilson. But, commenting on Howell's formal announcement Thursday, Pendergast had nothing to say about Wilson, using language which has led Dearmont's friends to the view that there is at least a possibility that Pendergast will concentrate his efforts on the nomination of Howell and let Wilson fight his battle without the active support of the Kansas City leader.

Solidly for Howell.

Pendergast said:

"In the primary next year my organization will indorse and support candidates for the other offices on account of locality, availability and fitness, but Charles M. Howell is the choice of my organization and we will do everything proper and possible to nominate and elect him."

Dearmont's decision to become a candidate, however, is known to have been made in the expectation that the full strength of the Kansas City organization would be exerted for Wilson, and any speculation as to a possibility of Wilson's having only a half-hearted support there did not enter into his calculations.

Assuming that Pendergast will remain steadfast for Wilson, Dearmont is entering a hard fight, but one which many of his friends have advised him he can win. Pendergast's influence is not limited to Kansas City and Jackson County, but extends in some measure to all the State, being particularly strong in Western counties.

Bandwagon politicians, who look upon a 40,000 or 50,000 majority in Jackson County for a candidate as being impossible for another candidate to overcome, are disposed to line up with the Kansas City organization, and this disposition can be overcome only by a candidate who can build up a local strength in the counties sufficient to convince the local leaders that they must go along with it or lose their followers.

Wilson Well Supported.

Wilson, too, is far from dependent on the Pendergast support and the bandwagon politicians. A former State Senator and former United States District Attorney in Kansas City, he has a wide acquaintance and a strong personal following within the party.

Dearmont, by his action in entering the race, will be saying in effect that he believes he can overcome the advantage which undoubtedly will be with Wilson at the opening of the campaign.

Once before in Missouri Democratic politics there was a situation paralleling almost exactly that of the contest between Wilson and Dearmont. In 1912, William S. Cowherd was the choice of the Pendergast organization, then headed by Tom's brother. Bandwagon politicians in the rural counties were lined up for Cowherd just as many of them are now lined up for Wilson. He also had the support of the old line Democrats, just as Wilson has now.

Elliott W. Major appeared in that campaign as the gladiator. He made virtually no attempt to get votes in either St. Louis or Kansas City. He worked almost entirely in the country districts, and built up a following which forced the local county leaders all over the State to abandon Cowherd and to support Major to save their political lives. In addition to the city of St. Louis, Cowherd carried only 22 of the 114 counties, and Major was nominated.

The Vote in Kansas City.

Although the heavy Democratic primary vote in Kansas City and Jackson County, controlled by Pendergast, is to be desired by any candidate, as a matter of fact it amounts to only about 17 per cent of the Democratic vote in the State, and a candidate who can get heavy majorities out in the State can overcome it.

In the main Dearmont will be the young Democrats' candidate. If elected Governor he will be 41 years old when he takes office. However, he would not have the distinction of being the youngest man to be inaugurated Governor of Missouri, Hadley, Folk, Stephens, Francis, Fletcher and Edwards having been younger.

Wilson, if elected, will be 65 when inaugurated, and will be the oldest man ever to head the State government, only three of the 36 Governors having been as old as 60 when inaugurated. They were Phelps, who was 63; Gamble, who was 63, and Hancock Jackson, who was 61.

On going into the contest, Dearmont can have few illusions as to the power of the Pendergast organization. While it functions better at some times than others, and occasionally is found supporting a candidate to whom it is unable to deliver the full vote it can deliver to others, it usually can be expected to perform with regularity.

How Organization Operates.

As with virtually all similar organizations, its main strength lies in its ability to hand out jobs. Each job means the votes of the relatives of the jobholder. The organization manages pretty well to control the selection of judges and clerks of election. But Penpergast does not rely on this sort of organization entirely.

It is said, and undoubtedly is approximately true, that he has each block in Kansas City under the supervision of a loyal member of the organization, who checks each day on families moving out of and into the block. Simultaneously with the arrival of the mover's van to take out the household goods arrives this Pendergast worker. He finds out where the family is to live and the word is passed to the worker having control of that block, who is on hand when the van arrives there.

He inquires whether all arrangements have been made for water, gas and electric connections. He tells the householder he will attend to those things, and he does. Almost before the last piece of furniture is in the house, the connections are made and housekeeping can begin in comfort.

Other Ways to Get Votes.

Other workers, it is said, take care of police court summons for traffic violations and other minor offense, and personal tax suits are settled at a minimum of cost and trouble.

Having performed these services for the voters, it is not difficult for the party workers to line up those voters, particularly in the primary.

In the 1928 primary, when Wilson was opposed for the nomination by Senator A. L. McCawley, Pendergast gave Wilson a majority of 48,050 in Kansas City and Jackson County out of a total of 55,040 votes cast. Yet in the same primary, he was unable to do anything like that for James A. Collett, candidate for United States Senator, against Charles M. Hay. He could give Collett a majority of only 29,506, and other candidates on the State ticket, who were on Pendergast's slate, had majorities of about 40,000.

Hay's vote showed that it is possible to break into the organization vote. However, in that campaign Pendergast centered his interest in Wilson. He supported Collett, but there was no such organization interest in him as in Wilson.

In that primary the total State Democratic vote for candidates for Governor was 346,343, of which only 56,043 were cast in Kansas City and Jackson County, 290,300 being cast outside that jurisdiction. There was one other candidate besides Wilson and McCawley, who received a small scattering vote.

Friends of Dearmont say that in about 20 Southeast Missouri counties, Dearmont will get as heavy a majority as Pendergast can give Wilson in Jackson County, and that in fighting it out in the rest of the State they would have no fear that Dearmont would not be able to more than hold his own.

With Dearmont in the race, it is probable there will be no third candidate, at least none with material strength. State Superintendent of Schools Charles A. Lee and Circuit Attorney Franklin Miller of St. Louis, both with strong following, have been discussed as possible seekers of the nomination, but it is not probable that either will file now that Dearmont has decided to run.

Dearmont faces a sizeable job in opposing the Pendergast machine and the Wilson organization built up in the last campaign, but that an aggressive candidate can beat the bosses has been demonstrated. And Dearmont, besides being aggressive, has a pleasing personality, a public record which has met public approval, and is a speaker of ability.

GANGSTER SEEKS NEW TRIAL

By the Associated Press.

LINCOLN, Neb., Oct. 17.—Thomas O'Connor, former St. Louis gangster remained in prison today while District Judge Fred Shepherd studied his motion for a new trial on bank robbery charges in connection with the $2,500,000 holdup of the Lincoln National Bank a year ago.

After a hearing on the motion, Judge Shepherd took the matter under advisement and indicated it would be several days before he reached a decision. The State law provides a penalty of from 10 to 25 years in prison for bank robbery. O'Connor recently was convicted of the charge. He charges he did not receive a fair trial.

FURTHER MOVE TO PREVENT BOLIVIA-PARAGUAY HOSTILITIES

Neutrals Interceding in Chaco Dispute Ask Other Countries to Join in Effort.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 17.—Representatives of the five neutral countries interceding in the Bolivian-Paraguayan boundary negotiations have called on the other countries of America for their support in seeking a solution of the Chaco problem.

The neutrals have sent telegrams to ministers of foreign affairs of the other countries asking them to authorize their representatives to join in a collective telegram to Bolivia and Paraguay urging them to sign a pact of non-aggression and to continue their efforts to solve their difficulties in the Chaco.

The neutrals, the United States, Colombia, Cuba, Mexico and Uruguay, expect to send the telegram Oct. 20.

STEALEY DISPLAY HOME
7316 Chamberlain Ave.
University City Near New Half-Million Dollar High School

See for yourself the kind of home that can be built for a definite LOW PRICE UNDER PRESENT CONDITIONS. Also when visiting this Display Home see another new STEALEY HOME being built for a customer at 7359 Bartmer av., just two blocks away.

If neither of these type of homes please you we will build you just what you want in frame or brick . . . and build it at an amazingly low price, too. We have our own architect and this service is free to our customers.

Another Display Home at 5351 Mardel Ave.

Corner of Macklind, North Hampton, is now under construction. Watch this house as it progresses—and the high-class workmanship and materials used.

Our Prediction Is HOME BUILDING Will Increase Next Year

Consequently prices will increase. There is very little time of the year in which we can not build in this locality. If you prefer to wait until spring, make your arrangements now so that you can be guaranteed present low prices. You are under no obligation to us when you investigate.

And remember that we do all kinds of medium priced building, and also do our own financing. We also furnish materials where you want to do your own work or you still have the privilege of doing any part of the erection of your own home when we take the contract.

To get to 7316 Chamberlain av., Delmar west to Midland (7200), north on Midland to Chamberlain—or Olive St. Road to Midland—turn south on Midland to Chamberlain—or use Creve Coeur car line.

WHAT OUR BUSINESS IS

The building of brick and frame homes, frame and brick garages, concrete work for garages, building additions and porches on homes, remodeling homes with any kind of shingles or siding desired, playhouses for children, club houses and many other kinds of buildings.

Some people are still of the opinion that because we serve the community in a broad way that we are what is known as a sectional or portable concern. We do not ask that you take our word for the fact that we are offering a full Dollar's worth under present conditions, but we do ask that you take the trouble to prove this fact to your own satisfaction by investigating! We all know the period we have been going through. Our Company has kept its men busy all year, has not cut the hourly wage of a single man one cent, has not lost any money, and is in a strong financial position. How many business concerns have a record like this? THERE MUST BE A REASON.

WHAT IS THE REASON?

We have no high-salaried overhead to contend with. Every employee is satisfied and doing all he can to give service and to build up the company's business. In plain words, we do not permit either waste of time or materials. Again, for economy sake WE OFFER FREE ARCHITECTURAL SERVICE where we build your home, and again we ask that you only investigate to see whether or not this department does its work well. The proof is in the seeing. We also offer FREE ENGINEERING SERVICE where we build your garage. Stop and think how much this means. Isn't it best to have your garage so built that it will give the maximum service in convenience and durability at all times. Don't take anything for granted these days. See for yourself, and get the best offered for your money.

DEPOSITIONS GIVEN IN CONTEST OVER $750,000 ESTATE

Mrs. Blanche Bordley Whose Will Is Attacked, Not of Sound Mind, Her Sister Testifies.

Deposition in the will contest over the $750,000 estate of Mrs. Blanche Bordley, who died in April, 1930, have been filed in Circuit Court. Most of them were taken in California, where Mrs. Bordley was staying at the time of her death. Her St. Louis residence was at the Forest Park Hotel. She was the widow of Daniel C. Bordley, vice president of Liggett & Myers Tobacco Co.

Among the deponents is one of the plaintiffs, Mrs. Adele Lynch Tatum, 85 years old, Mrs. Bordley's sister, of Los Angeles. She avers that Mrs. Bordley was not of sound mind when she made the will, which is dated March 29, 1928, and was easily influenced. The deposition recites Mrs. Bordley was obsessed with the idea that Mrs. Tatum's sons had not treated their mother well. She asserts this was the reason Mrs. Bordley created a trust fund from which Mrs. Tatum was to receive approximately $85 a month during her life. Mrs. Tatum declared no foundation ever existed for her sister's attitude, adding: "There never could have been better sons than my boys."

Eccentricity Alleged.

Several persons called by plaintiff's side declared they did not consider Mrs. Bordley of sound mind. They asserted she was eccentric and changeable. It appeared she and her husband had been Catholics, but Mrs. Bordley became interested in Christian Science and later with a sect known as the Rosecrucians, one of whose tenets is that man evolves through experiences in this life and passes to a higher plane. It was explained by a member who gave her deposition believers are supposed not to eat meat, but Mrs. Bordley, according to testimony, did not observe this rule.

Further testimony was that Mrs. Bordley believed in numerology and in reincarnation. This was asserted Robert L. Tatum, a nephew, who said his aunt told him in January, 1928, at San Diego, Cal., of her belief in reincarnation. She told she had been informed by a friend that she was a reincarnation of Mary Queen of Scots. Two other witnesses testified they heard Mrs. Bordley mention she had been told she was the Queen of Scots in some previous existence.

Robert Tatum also related that his aunt informed him about two months before she made the will that former Circuit Judge Thomas C. Hennings, vice president of the Mercantile-Commerce Bank and Trust Co., which is executor and trustee, wanted to see her in regard to changing a will. The nephew quoted her as saying: "Judge Hennings has an idea he wants me to leave most of my money to charity, but I prefer to leave it to my relatives." On cross-examination it was developed Mrs. Bordley in a former will had left the residue of her estate to charity, as she did in the will in controversy. Tatum testified he did not believe Mrs. Bordley was of sound mind.

Several witnesses also were examined in behalf of the defense, all of whom said they regarded Mrs. Bordley as mentally sound and capable. These deponents included a physician, nurse, tradespeople and hotel employes. She was described by one of them as a woman of strong will power.

Tells of Drafting Will.

Hennings testified he drafted the will from memoranda furnished by Mrs. Bordley, but did not advise her how she should leave her property. "She discussed her reasons," the trust officer said, "in leaving so small a bequest to her sister and Mrs. Adele Donovan Chambers, a niece. She said she felt Mrs. Tatum's sons were able to take care of their mother who had denied herself many things to give them an education; they in turn had not treated her right. She thought the sum left for her sister was adequate and she did not want her sister's children to get any of her money."

Mrs. Bordley made specific bequests totaling $315,000, for the benefit of various relatives and charitable organizations before disposing of the rest of her estate, which is to be used for the treatment of chronic invalids. The will gives preference to St. Louis University and the Sisters of St. Mary for their hospitals.

A separate suit attacking the legality of the charitable trust was filed by Mrs. Tatum and Mrs. Chambers previous to the filing of the will contest. Should the will be set aside the whole estate would go to Mrs. Bordley's heirs-at-law, who are Mrs. Tatum, Mrs. Chambers and two other relatives.

At the deposition hearings the plaintiff was represented by Harvey B. Cox of Foristel, Mudd, Blair & Habenicht, while former Appellate Judge Frank A. Thompson of Thompson, Mitchell, Thompson & Young appeared for the defense. Mrs. Tatum is the widow of Joseph T. Tatum, formerly of St. Louis.

MEMORIAL TO U. S. GENERAL WHO DIED FOR FRENCH WOMAN

Robert H. Dunlap Crushed by Debris in Rescue Attempt; Monument to Be Unveiled.

By the Associated Press.

CINQ-MARS-LA PILE, France, Oct. 17.—A memorial to Brigadier-General Robert H. Dunlap, United States Marine Corps, who lost his life in attempting to rescue a French woman in a landslide, will be unveiled here tomorrow.

The officer's widow and the woman he tried to save, Mme. Denis Briant, will attend the ceremonies with civil authorities of this township and military officials of the Tours region.

The monument is the work of Gaston Des Blaize, French sculptor. A brief inscription in French decorates the facade of the marker. It reads: "To the memory of General Dunlap, of the American Marines, who did not hesitate to give his life to save that of a French woman."

Gen. Dunlap, who had come here to perfect his French in connection with his studies at the School of War in Paris, was crushed to death last May by debris as he entered a barn to extricate Mme. Briant. Her husband also was killed and she suffered injuries which made necessary the amputation of a leg.

TRIAL OF LEA POSTPONED

Tennessean and Son to Face Bank Fraud Charges Jan. 11.

By the Associated Press.

NASHVILLE, Tenn., Oct. 17.—Trial of Luke Lea, Tennessee publisher and politician, on charges of conspiracy, was postponed today from Oct. 26 to Jan. 11, 1932, at the request of defense counsel.

Lea and his son were indicted last August on charges of conspiring to defraud the Liberty Bank & Trust Co. of Nashville of $150,000.

SUIT TO SET ASIDE RALPH SEWER LAW REPEAL IS BEGUN

Mandamus Action Filed in Supreme Court to Compel Construction of $2,500,000 Wellston Drain.

By the Jefferson City Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, Oct. 17.—Suit was filed in the Supreme Court today to have the repeal of the Ralph sewer law set aside, with the definite intention of forcing construction of the $2,500,000 sewer system planned for the Wellston Sewer District, St. Louis County.

Should the contentions of the suit be upheld, the other sewer districts organized in the county under the Ralph law presumably would be affected. The St. Louis County Taxpayers' Protective Association, leader of the opposition to the Ralph law and advocate of the repeal bill which was adopted by the Legislature last spring, is expected to oppose this attack on the repeal. Jackson County as well as St. Louis County was affected by the Ralph law, and much sentiment for the repeal was shown in the vicinity of Kansas City.

The repealer became effective a month ago. Today's suit, which is a mandamus action seeking to compel the supervisors of the Wellston district to build their sewer system, alleges that the repealer violates the State Constitution, is invalid and is not binding on the Wellston district supervisors.

Property owners have recognized a need for sewers in much of the Wellston area and in other districts, but have objected to the expense under the Ralph law, which they regarded as confiscatory. The lawyer who filed the suit is Jesse L. Harnage, with officers in Clayton, who was an attorney for the Wellston and Central sewer districts and previously for the old Brentwood Sewer District.

Four Landowners File Action.

Relators, or plaintiffs, in the suit are four property owners in the Wellston district—J. Becker, Mary Schulte, William Odenback and Isaac W. Percival. The defendants are the district, which was incorporated by Circuit Court, Feb. 11, 1929, on petition of property owners, under the Ralph law; its supervisors, Alexander E. Rubeling, Jess M. Barnett and Edward A. Laumann, and its secretary, H. O. Hendricks.

Sewers were found to be needed in the Wellston district by a Circuit Court decree, the suit relates, and as there was no appeal from that judgment the property owners bringing the mandamus action, it is averred, acquired vested rights under the judgment and results that might arise from it. Such vested rights, the suit argues, cannot be disturbed or destroyed by the Legislature. The Legislature may not annul, set aside or impair the final judgment of a court of competent jurisdiction, the petition asserts.

The repeal was intended to be retroactive, wiping out the districts that had been set up by the Circuit Court, which had purisdiction. The suit raises the question whether the repeal can apply to adjudicated matters and districts already set up and operating.

Preliminary Costs.

The petition relates that preliminary expenses of the district for plans and other items were $141,468. This money, as was the case in other districts, was obtained through anticipation warrants cashed by several banking houses. These houses are endeavoring in Circuit Court now to force collection of their claims. Some time ago the district filed tax bills against its property owners, amounting to $87,120, at 10 cents a 100 square feet, to raise funds toward paying off the warrants.

Repeated efforts have been made by the district to file bills for an additional 8 cents per 100 square feet, to raise the balance. Collector Benson so far has refused to accept them. The repeal law provided that preliminary expenses could be paid by taxation. If the district is abandoned under the repeal and the preliminary tax collected, the property owners will have nothing to show for their money.

Benefits assessed by commissioners against property in the district were $4,585,845, but the damages were not set out in the suit. The benefits, or a proportion of them, would be charged against 2022 of the 2532 acres in the district, the rest of the land being in cemeteries and thoroughfares, which are exempt. It was estimated that the tax for the construction costs, payable with interest, over 20 years, would be $3.25 per 100 square feet. Of 9800 pieces of property in the district, about 2500 are covered by 1760 exceptions to the benefit assessments, filed in Circuit Court this summer. The district lies west of St. Louis and north of University City, extending well beyond the territory usually referred to as Wellston.

John E. Mooney, president of the St. Louis County Taxpayers Protective Association, characterized the mandamus suit as an action unfriendly to the advocates of repeal. Mooney, a lawyer, asserted the suit appeared to be without merit. He said, however, that the association would agree that the saving clause of the repeal act which provided the preliminary taxes might be levied to pay off the anticipation warrants, was unconstitutional.

EX-CONGRESSMAN ROWBOTTOM TO LEAVE PRISON NOV. 9

Parole Board Cuts Three Months from Term of Indiana Man Who Sold Patronage.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 17.—Harry E. Rowbottom will leave prison Nov. 9 without completing a year and a day term for accepting bribes while representing the first Indiana district in Congress. His sentence would have expired next Feb. 9, but the parole board decided to take three months off his term.

Rowbottom was convicted last April of accepting $750 from Walter G. Ayer and $800 each from S. Grant Johnson and Otto A. Weilbrenner, all of whom were interested in postmasterships in his district.

Rowbottom admitted taking the money from Ayer and Weilbrenner, but said it simply was for his campaign fund.

JACK SHEEHAN

"Even a superficial examination of the far-famed George Steck Piano would prove its right to pre-eminence among the world's finest in pianofortes. Its rich quality of tone and amazing response make it the ideal piano for voice accompaniment."

MAURIE RUBENS

"The George Steck piano withstands successfully the tremendous demands made upon it during a strenuous season of operatic work. I find it a versatile performer of tremendous resources and power."

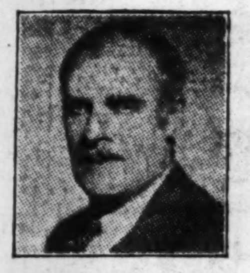
ARCHIE LEACH

"My intimate acquaintance with the George Steck has fully demonstrated to me why this superb instrument has constantly maintained its pre-eminent position among the world's finest in pianofortes."

JACK GOOD

DORIS PATSTON

"To play the George Steck is to appreciate the high ideals of its creators. Its lovely tone and exquisitely beautiful encasement prove irresistible to me."



HAL FORDE

"In my opinion the George Steck Piano is a truly artistic achievement . . an instrument that leaves nothing to be desired."

QUEENIE SMITH

"One cannot speak adequately of the merits of the George Steck Piano without resorting to the use of adjectives. Its inbuilt qualities inspires the enthusiastic praise of every lover of beautiful music."

JURY DISCHARGED IN MONCADO CASE, ONE MAN HELD OUT

All but Foreman for Conviction at Third Trial in Killing of Vincenzo Vitale, Bondsman.

With one man holding out against conviction through nine hours of deliberation, a jury in the third trial of Vincent Moncado for first degree murder in the slaying of Vincenzo Vitale, professional bondsman and saloonkeeper, informed Circuit Judge Ryan yesterday afternoon that it could not reach a verdict and was discharged.

Members of the jury said afterward that the foreman, Joseph F. Cullinan, 4218 Penrose street, had voted alone for acquittal from the first ballot and had refused to change his stand.

The jury began its deliberations Friday afternoon and was first called in at 11:15 o'clock yesterday morning, when Judge Ryan, informed of their disagreement, sent them back for further consideration of the case.

Moncado, who operated a saloon and grocery at 1510 Wash street, testified that he had killed Vitale in self defense. He said he went to Vitale's home, 1319A Blair avenue, the day of the killing, Nov. 5, 1927, to discuss an attempt by Vitale to extort money from him, and that Vitale attacked him.

The State attempted to show by Mrs. Fanny Vitale, widow of the bondsman, that the slaying was unprovoked and that Moncado had shot her husband without giving him a chance to defend himself. She said that Moncado had started an argument about the character of Vitale's brother, Vito.

The case was first tried in June, 1928, and the trial resulted in a hung jury. The second trial, in November, 1928, resulted in a conviction, but the jury could not agree on a sentence and the court imposed a life term. The conviction was reversed on appeal several months ago on the ground that the trial Judge had not given proper instructions to the jury.

SUES JUSTICE OF THE PEACE FOR $10,000 OVER JUDGMENT

Auto Dealer Alleges That He Was Not Informed of Suit Against Him.

James C. Auffenberg, president of the Monarch Motor Co., 3137 Locust street, filed suit for $10,000 and an injunction against Adolph Fiedler, former Maplewood Justice of the Peace, Baarent Ten Broek Jr. and Harry A. Levi, in Circuit Court at Clayton yesterday.

Auffenberg seeks to prevent Ten Broek and the others from executing a $300 judgment which Ten Broek obtained against him in Fiedler's court. Ten Broek obtained the judgment on the ground that Auffenberg had forcibly recovered an automobile which he had sold Ten Broek, but on which payments had lapsed.

The motor dealer contends that he recovered the car legally, and that he had no notice that Ten Broek was bringing a suit against him until he heard of the judgment.

Fiedler said yesterday that the judgment was handed down legally and that Auffenberg had known of the suit.

TWO PRISONERS IDENTIFIED IN $350,000 JEWELRY THEFTS

Mrs. Stanwood Menken and Two Other New York Victims Point Out Holdup Men.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Oct. 17.—Mrs. Stanwood Menken and two other women, robbed of a total of nearly $350,000 worth of jewelry in the last sixt months, today picked from a crowd of suspects in Yorkville court two men and identified them as the robbers. The suspects, Arthur Rose and James Brady, were held without bail for a hearing Tuesday. They were arrested Wednesday.

Mrs. Menken was robbed of $300,000 in jewelry June 17 by men who got into her home on the pretext that they were deliverymen and bound her and her servants after forcing her to open a wall safe.

The other two women in court were Mrs. Edith Donnellan and Mrs. Louise Tucker. Jewelry taken from Mrs. Donnellan was valued at $35,000 and that taken from Mrs. Tucker at $10,000.

Washington Merely Has Called Attention to Revocation of American License.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 17.—Whether John R. Brinkley of Milford, Kan., broadcasts from below the Rio Grande has been left to Mexico by the State Department. Brinkley, meanwhile, in a statement here today said he thought the air was cleared for XER, his powerful station at Villa Acuna.

His programs over KFKB at Milford were stopped by the Radio Commission as inimical to the public health because of his radio prescriptions for various ailments. He recently established XER with 75,000 watts power under license of the Mexican Government.

Brinkley had indicated that representations from Washington had led to a Mexican ruling he could not broadcast personally over the station.

Revocation of Brinkley's license by the Radio Commission was called to the attention of Mexico by the State Department. Undersecretary Castle of the State Department made clear today, however, this country had not asked Mexico to refuse permission to broadcast. Castle regards the matter largely as a Mexican domestic problem.

Why do so many women prefer this tooth paste?

• For its amazing results and that $3 saving

THIS delightful thrift dentifrice contains remarkable cleansing and polishing agents—noted for their gentle action. We searched for years before discovering them. They are harder than tartar and consequently remove it. But they are softer than the precious tooth enamel and are therefore harmless to it.

So teeth cleansed by Listerine Tooth Paste retain their natural health, firmness, and brilliance.

If you are not already using this unusual tooth paste, get a tube today and try it. Compare it with any tooth paste at any price. And judge by results alone.

More than 3,000,000 men and women have made this comparison. Now they pronounce Listerine Tooth Paste their favorite. They like the quick but gentle way it gets rid of discoloration, stains, and tartar. They like the thorough way it cleans. The beautiful brilliance it imparts to teeth.

And they welcome that wonderful feeling of freshness it leaves in the mouth—a sensation associated with Listerine itself.

Incidentally, at 25¢ the large tube, Listerine Tooth Paste saves you $3 a year over dentifrices in the 50¢ class, on the basis of a tube per month per person. Lambert Pharmacal Company, St. Louis, Mo., U. S. A.

TWO CONVICTIONS IN FOUR TRIALS OF WEEK

Negro Acquitted of Robbery, and Jury Fails to Agree in Moncado Case.

Four jury trials heard in the criminal division of Circuit Court last week resulted in two convictions, an acquittal and a mistrial. Those convicted were "Mulehead" Simon, gangster and ex-convict, who was sentenced to a year in the workhouse for carrying concealed weapon, and Julius Mackson, a real estate dealer, sentenced to two years in the penitentiary for forging a receipt in a realty deal.

Mack Futrell, a Negro charged with the robbery of a hot tamale peddler, convinced a jury that he was not guilty and was freed, while Vincent Moncado, former grocer and saloonkeeper of 1510 Wash street, charged with murder in the first degree, gained a mistrial when a jury in Judge Ryan's court failed to agree.

The mistrial of Moncado was the second in the case. Moncado shot and killed his former friend, Vincenzo Vitale, saloonkeeper and bondsman, in the latter's home, 1319A Blair avenue, on Nov. 5, 1927.

Six Plead Guilty.

Six men charged with robbery entered pleas of guilty. Four were substantially punished, while two who received penitentiary terms were paroled from the bench because of the destitute condition of their families.

Those sent to prison included Jack G. Dowdy, member of a reputable family of Commerce, Ga. Dowdy, a salesman for a paper mill, turned holdup man while on a spree. A former Governor and a Congressman of Georgia interceded for him, but without avail. He was sentenced to a 10-year penitentiary term for holding up the hosiery shop of Miss Ida Wetzel, 3106 South Grand boulevard, taking $25. He was captured in front of the store as he attempted to ride off in a taxicab.

Ernest McDaniel and Norman Delaney, Negro youths, got 15-year penitentiary terms for a series of robberies in midtown stores. They told police they committed 11 robberies, but they were charged with only four. Among the robberies they committed were the holding up of the Boston Candy Kitchen, Eighteenth street and Franklin avenue where the loot was but $25 and the robbery of the drug store of William Dill, 2971 Easton avenue, where $180.71 was taken.

Paroled on Good Records.

Carl Larsen, who attempted a robbery and who was caught with a concealed weapon, got a two-year penitentiary term, while Herman Alcorn, 48 years old, a blacksmith, and Henry Foster, 45, a former railroad fireman, who held up a bread wagon driver, taking $54, were paroled after Judge Pearcy sentenced them to five years in the penitentiary. Investigation showed that both men had previously borne good reputations, that they had been out of work for more than a year and that their families were in need.

Others who pleaded guilty and their punishments were: Stanley Kuciejski, larceny of a motor vehicle, two years in Boonville reformatory and paroled to report two years; Frank Gandner and Lester Sachs, grand larceny, two years and paroled; Harry Canton, alias Casey, murder in second degree, 10 years; Bernie Haley, driving motor vehicle while intoxicated, $100 and costs; Freeman Franks, petty larceny 90 days, and Samuel Bokel, larceny of a motor vehicle, six months.

SOCIETY FOR THE BLIND TO AWARD ESSAY PRIZES

Robert Johnston Contest Winners Will Be Announced at Meeting Tuesday Night.

The St. Louis Society for the Blind will award its annual Robert Johnston essay prizes Tuesday night at 8:30 o'clock at the St. Louis Medical Society, 3839 Lindell boulevard.

The essays, written by medical students of St. Louis and Washington universities, deal with the practical value of methods for the prevention of ophthalmia neonatorum (babies' sore eyes). The subject was selected in recognition of the fiftieth anniversary of the discovery of the Crede method for preventing the disease.

The program will include a discussion of the purpose of a law compelling methods to prevent this disease at the birth of a child. Dr. John O. McReynolds, president of the Texas Medical Association and formerly chairman of the ophthalmic section of the American Medical Association, will be the principal speaker.

Speakers will include Dr. James Stewart, State health commissioner; Health Commissioner Starkloff; Dr. Otto H. Schwarz, Washington University School of Medicine; Dr. H. D. Lamb, Missouri School for the Blind; Dr. John Green, Missouri Commission for the Blind, and Dr. H. D. McBride of the St. Louis society.

Warrant for Scenario Writer.

LOS ANGELES, Cal., Oct. 17.—A bench warrant for the arrest of H. H. Van Loan, Hollywood scenario and short story writer, was issued today after his wife, Mrs. Gertrude Van Loan, told Superior Court she faced eviction from her apartment because Van Loan had failed to pay her alimony. Van Loan, reported to be in San Francisco, was charged in the warrant with contempt of court after he failed to appear and answer the charge. Mrs. Van Loan said she and her 14-year-old daughter were penniless.

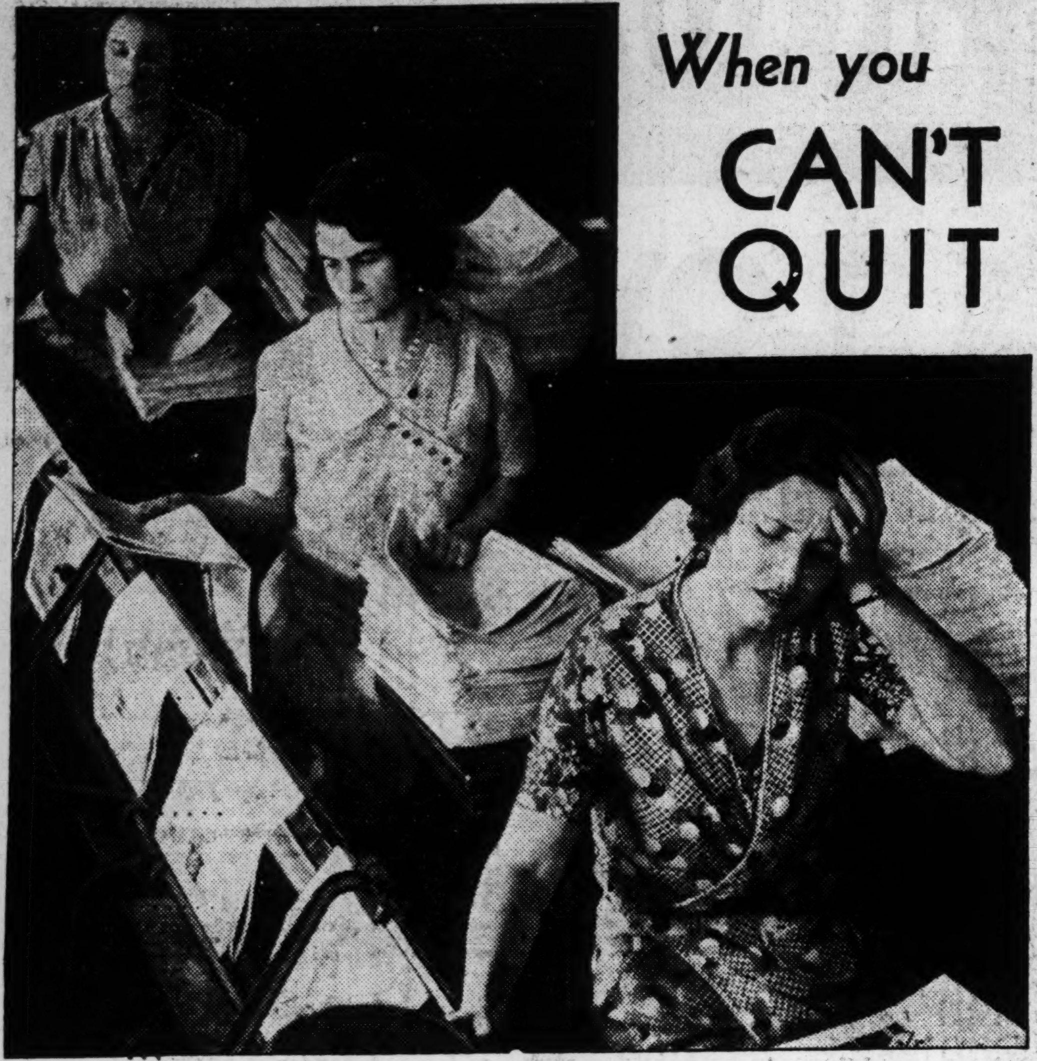
Square Dance at Art Exhibit.

An old-time square dance will be held at the Old Court House, Broadway and Market street, Friday evening as one of the features of an art show known as the Scenic Charm of Missouri Exhibition. Members of the St. Louis Art League, who are holding the exhibition, are sponsoring the dance. Mrs. Olive Holbert Chaffee is chairman of the social committee.



When you CAN'T QUIT

A HEADACHE is often the sign of fatigue. When temples throb it's time to rest. If you can't stop work, you can relieve the pain. Bayer Aspirin will do it, every time. Take two or three tablets, a swallow of water, and then carry on—in perfect comfort.

Don't work with nerves on edge or try all day to forget some nagging pain that aspirin will relieve in a jiffy! Genuine aspirin can do you no harm; just make sure you do get genuine Bayer Aspirin with Bayer on the box and on each tablet. In every package you'll find proven directions for headaches, colds, sore throat, neuralgia, neuritis, etc. Carry these tablets with you, and be prepared. To block a sudden cold on the street-car; quiet a grumbling tooth during working hours; relieve a headache in the theatre; spare you a restless night when nerves are "jumping" and you can't get to sleep.

And no modern girl needs "time out" for the time of month! Bayer Aspirin is sure relief for all such pain.

Take Bayer Aspirin for any ache or pain, and take enough to relieve it. It won't fail you, and it can't harm you.

DAIRY SHOW TO CLOSE TONIGHT AT ARENA

Horse Events at 2 P. M.—8-Day Exhibit Ends at 6 P. M.

The National Dairy Show, world's largest exhibition of purebred dairy cattle, will close today at The Arena after eight days of events attended by dairymen from all over the country.

The entries, representing the cream of the nation's dairy herds, will remain on exhibition until the close of the show, at 6 p. m. By midnight they will be on the road, some en route to the International Livestock Exhibition at Chicago, others headed for their home farms after months of exhibition at various State and agricultural fairs, climaxed by the judging ring at the National Dairy Show, the court of last resort for dairymen.

The St. Louis Horse Show will be at 2 p. m., circus acts occupying the intermissions. Exhibits in the poultry show, embracing virtually every variety of domestic and some imported fowl will remain on display until the end of the show. Booths of the Women's Home Exposition, on the mezzanine floor of The Arena, and the industrial exhibits also will be open.

Farmers Seek Coveted Prizes.

While many of the dairymen show their herds at the international exposition, their year's activities are directed toward the dairy show, for it is there that records are established which affect the pedigrees of future herds and represent a financial asset to the breeder.

Many of the animals, which won championships, belong to famous lines of dairy cattle which have produced champions for many years. Others, by virtue of their victories, have laid the foundation for future winners.

The cattle, ranging from the black and white Holsteins, to the smaller Brown Swiss and Jerseys remained quietly in the exhibition barns last night, undisturbed by passersby and the glare of electric lights. Veterans of many shows, they maintain a dignified composure even in the judging ring. During the final judging, Friday afternoon, the animals stood in the ring heedless of hundreds of paper darts thrown by school children.

Jack, 4-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. E. H. Holton, 2262 State street, Granite City, Ill., and Carole Ann, 6-months-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. F. R. Schneiter, 6022A Dewey avenue, were selected grand champions of the baby health contest conducted at the women's exposition. Twelve cash prizes were presented to other sturdy youngsters, ranging in age from 6 months to five years.

Poultry Show Winners.

A single comb white leghorn, exhibited by Turner brothers, of East St. Louis, was selected grand champion production hen.

Nellie Vanlandingham, Palmyra, Mo., won the sweepstakes award for showing the best dozen eggs in the show.

The attendance yesterday was 21,298. Although the total attendance at the show will fall below last year's mark of 213,652, officers of the National Dairy Association, which has held the show for 25 years, pointed out that as many dairymen as ever attended. Rainy weather during the first few days affected the attendance, they said.

Award for Columbus Design.

By the Associated Press.

RIO DE JANEIRO, Oct. 17.—Donald Nelson and Edgar Lynch, Americans, were awarded the second prize of $5000 in a competition for a design for a memorial to Christopher Columbus which is to be erected at Santo Domingo, where the explorer first sighted the new world. The first prize of $10,000 went to an Englishman, J. L. Gleave. The design is in the form of a cross with an urn foundation to receive the ashes of Columbus. It is adorned with horizontal lights for ships and vertical lights for airplanes and is to be constructed to resist earthquakes.

USE THE STATLER

FOOD, AS YOU DESIRE IT . . . .

. . . delicious . . . appetizing . . . of the finest quality. Prepared under the direction of a renowned French chef. Courteously served. Offered in a variety of friendly restaurants that differ only in type of service and price range.

Main Dining Room: Favored by those who enjoy leisurely dining in luxurious, cosmopolitan surroundings. The menus at noon always include a number of delightful Plate Combinations — priced as low as 70c. And every evening there's a pleasing variety of Special Dinners, prices beginning at $1.50. There's music, too, to add to your enjoyment of luncheon and dinner.

Café Rouge: This hospitable little restaurant keeps "open house" from seven in the morning until eight-thirty p. m. every week-day. Come for luncheon, tea, dinner—or refreshments from the soda fountain. The prices are moderate—Plate Luncheons, from 45c; Special Dinners for $1.25 — and the waitress service is prompt and efficient.

Cafeteria: Here you'll always find an appetizing display of appealing dishes from which you can select a menu as elaborate, or as simple, as you like. The food is by Statler chefs, and most reasonable.

GOING PLACES?

If your destination is a Statler city, our assistant manager will gladly make reservations for you at our hotel there. Wherever you're going, our Transportation Desk will get your train, Pullman, bus, boat or airplane tickets.

SMART DINNER PARTIES WITHOUT RESPONSIBILITIES

You can entertain easily and charmingly in our private dining rooms — confident of delicious food and smooth, perfect service — unworried about a single detail — and at a price really more economical than a comparable dinner prepared at home. Just phone our maitre d'hotel, Mr. Lallinger, CEntral 1400, and let him tell you more about this service that has become so popular with successful hostesses.

• AIDS TO BEAUTY AND GROOMING •

For "Her": A charming Beauty Salon, on the mezzanine . . . staffed with able attendants who make an art of any service they undertake, from an expert facial to a "permanent." Appointments by telephone.

For "Him": An up-to-date Barber Shop, located on the floor below lobby. The service is deft, prompt, and courteous—and our barbers don't try to sell you a lot of "extras." Visit this modern shop once—and you'll come regularly.

SALES MEETING IN STATLER BALLROOM

The busy executive conserves time and energy by holding his sales meeting in our spacious, well-ventilated ballroom. Here, he is sure of privacy . . . comfort . . . and the attentions of an organization trained in helpfulness. And when luncheon is served, he can be certain of appetizing food, quickly and efficiently served—at moderate prices.

ENTERTAINS AT DESSERT BRIDGE

After her party, this popular hostess paid us quite a compliment. "Everything went off perfectly," she said. "The service was so smooth . . . the tables looked lovely . . . everyone raved over the menu . . . and your private dining rooms are charming." She added that she wasn't a bit tired, because we had relieved her of every responsibility.

AMONG THOSE PRESENT . . .

She typifies the modern young woman who makes an art of living. You see her lunching in our Main Dining Room before the matinee . . . or on shopping days . . . or enjoying a leisurely dinner with her family. She says that she comes here so frequently because she always finds delicious food, courteous service—and people of her own kind.

If there is any special service which Hotel Statler can render you, I shall be pleased to have you call me personally.

CRUSHED TO DEATH BY OWN AUTO IN CRASH

W. D. Humphries Run Over as Car Goes on After Collision in Granite City.

William D. Humphries, an advertising agent, was crushed to death beneath the wheels of his own automobile in Granite City yesterday afternoon after he was thrown out following a collision with another car.

Humphries, who was 35 years old and lived at 2301 Lincoln avenue, Granite City, was driving west on Grand avenue when his car struck the automobile of Leland Sherwood, 2211 Dewey avenue, Granite City, head-on.

The force of the collision threw one of the car doors open and with the vehicle still moving and still in gear, Humphries fell into the street. He was crushed between the car and the curb, suffering a broken neck and a fractured skull.

Sherwood and a companion, Albert Regan, 2010 Beckwith avenue, Madison, suffered slight bruises. Humphries is survived by his wife and two children.

"TO U. S. INTEREST TO KEEP GERMANY A GOING CONCERN"

Advisor to Deutsche Bank Says Americans Should Consider German Investments.

NEW YORK, Oct. 17.—Intellectual interest in Germany on the part of the United States would have great moral effect on economic conditions there, Dr. Melchior Palvi, economic adviser to the Deutsche Bank and Disconto-Gesellschaft, said today.

Dr. Palyi explained that a display of enlightened self interest in study and investigation of German investments would be the chief contribution America could make to Germany's struggle for financial stability.

"It is to the interest of the United States," he added, "to keep Germany a going concern."

Dr. Palvi suggested three other points which he believed necessary for German economic recovery:

"The Reichsbank ought to do everything in its power to curtail demand for foreign exchange and to keep the parity of gold.

"Second, Germany should make every effort to balance her public budget.

"Third, the Reichsbank ought to compel German industry to force exports and let currency go as it will."

St. Joseph's Institute Social.

A monthly social will be given Wednesday afternoon at St. Joseph's Institute for the Deaf, 901 Garrison avenue, by the women members of St. Thomas' parish.

NATIONAL CREDIT CORPORATION LAYS OUT PLAN OF WORK

Announces After First Meeting It Expects to "Contribute Materially to Business Recovery."

EXPECTS TO FUNCTION WITHIN FEW DAYS

Elects G. M. Reynolds Chairman, M. N. Buckner President, W. W. Smith, St. Louis, Vice President.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Oct. 17.—The National Credit Corporation suggested by President Hoover to thaw out frozen bank credits took definite form today when the 12 directors held their first meeting.

After the meeting a statement was issued which read in part: "The plan adopted by the directors embodies the thought of the country's leading banking authorities and represents an unusually widespread knowledge of business conditions and experiences in banking affairs. Essentially the corporation is intended to supplement the services of the Federal Reserve system by enabling banks, when necessary, to borrow on sound assets which are not now eligible for loans from Federal Reserve banks.

"It is the opinion of the directors of the National Credit Corporation, who represent banking communities in all parts of the country, that the corporation can best serve the purposes for which it has been formed by conducting its affairs on a conservative business basis and in accordance with well-tested principles of banking. To this end, it will be the policy of the corporation to advance its funds in such a way that all loans made will be secured by a pledge of sound assets in excess of the amount of the loans granted.

"Reports received by the directors indicate the plan will have the support of practically the entire banking system of the country.

"Most Constructive Step"

"The directors desire to state that they regard the formation of this corporation and the work it has set out to do as one of the most constructive steps that the banks of the country could undertake in the interest not only of the banks themselves, but of the whole business community.

"This action today is an expression of the faith which the directors and the constituencies which they represent have in the soundness of the country and in the capacity of the country to reestablish itself on its forward course.

"It was the unanimous opinion of the directors that the National Credit Corporation in its operations will contribute materially to business recovery generally and have a far-reaching effect in crystalizing the confidence of the entire nation.

Functioning in a Few Days.

"In many of the Federal Reserve districts the organizations of local associations and banks through which the corporation will operate has been perfected and it is expected that the entire machinery will be set up and functioning within the next few days.

"With a view to bringing about, in so far as possible, uniformity of procedure in the practical operation of the plan, the directors also adopted articles of agreement for the local associations of banks to be formed in the respective Federal Reserve districts; suggested by-laws for those local associations; forms of subscription blanks to the National Credit Corporation gold notes; forms of application blanks for loans to be used by borrowing banks and suggested resolutions for the adoption by local associations covering acceptances of loans and requests upon the National Credit Corporation for advances approved by local loan committees."

George M. Reynolds, Chicago banker, was chosen chairman of the board of directors. Reynolds also is chairman of the executive committee of the $1,000,000,000 Continental Illinois Bank & Trust Co.

Mortimer N. Buckner, who has headed the committee appointed little more than a week ago to form the corporation, was elected president. Buckner is president of the New York Clearing House Association, which embraces leading Wall street banks with aggregate resources of $9,000,000,000.

St. Louisan Vice President.

Other officers of the corporation are: Vice president, Daniel G. Wing, chairman of the First National Bank of Boston, and Walter W. Smith, president of the First National Bank in St. Louis; secretary-treasurer, Nelson S. Dearmont of New York.

Members of the Executive Committee are Wing, Livingston E. Jones, president of the First National Bank of Philadelphia; Arthur E. Braun, president of the Farmers' Deposit National Bank, Pittsburg, Pa.; John K. Ottley, president of the First National Bank of Atlanta, Ga.; Frank B. Anderson, chairman of the Bank of California, National Association, San Francisco; and the chairman of the board and president as ex-officio members.

The 12 directors—one from each Federal Reserve district—went into session at 11 a. m. at the New York Federal Reserve Bank and were in constant session throughout the day, save for a brief interruption for lunch, which was served at the bank.

May Eventually Raise a Billion.

While the initial amount of funds available has not yet been officially announced, it is understood that subscriptions in excess of the $500,000,000 proposed have already been received. The New York banks have pledged $150,000,000. It is understood that only part of the original subscriptions will be called for at the outset.

The corporation may eventually raise as much as $1,000,000,000.

The names of the directors were announced only last Monday. In the meantime the directors have endeavored to aid in setting up regional organizations in their districts.

Several of the directors planned to leave New York tonight to return to their districts to take charge of regional work.

$20,000,000 Day's Gold Exports.

Although the export of gold from the United States was somewhat smaller than yesterday's, the total net loss in monetary stocks for the day as reported by the New York Federal Reserve Bank was $20,047,900.

There was an increase of $9,700,000 in earmarkings, which is equivalent to an export, and withdrawals for the day amounted to $6,646,600, including $6,566,600 to France, $70,000 to Switzerland, and $10,000 to Mexico.

Additional export withdrawals for yesterday's account, but not reported until today, amounted to $3,701,300. These included $3,235,600 to Holland, $400,000 to France, $25,700 to Poland, $15,000 to Belgium, $14,000 to Italy, $10,000 to Switzerland and $1000 to Germany.

FREIGHTER GIVEN UP FOR LOST, PART OF LOG CARGO IS FOUND

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 17.—The Japanese freighter Yonan Maru, with its crew of 40 to 50 men, was given up for lost today. The only trace of the vessel found by three searching ships in mid-Pacific was part of its deck load of logs.

The liner President Jefferson, on which Col. and Mrs. Charles A. Lindbergh are returning from the Orient, reached the scene yesterday in response to a series of calls for help, but could not find the ship. The President Jefferson radioed:

"Found deck load, but nothing else. Cruised vicinity three hours in company with Ayaha Maru and Taigen Maru, but no ships found trace of anything except Yonan Maru deck load."

The three vessels later resumed their courses. Poor visibility, caused by rain and heavy seas, hampered the search.

The Yonan Maru, under command of Capt. C. Matsumoto, left Astoria, Ore., Oct. 1, for the Orient with 1,000,000 feet of logs and 8100 tons of wheat. The ship was of 7154 gross tons.

DELAYS GUS WINKLER ACTION

Gov. Bryan to Hold Hearing on Illinois Requisition Tuesday.

By the Associated Press.

LINCOLN, Neb., Oct. 17.—Gov. Charles W. Bryan late today said no immediate action would be taken on the requisition of Illinois authorities to take Gus Winkler of St. Louis to Plano, Ill., for trial in connection with the $5000 robbery of the First State Bank there last year.

The Governor's announcement followed a conference with Illinois officials and attorneys for Winkler. The Illinois officers said they were not prepared to present their case and Bryan said he would hold a hearing Tuesday.

Champagne Crop Ruined.

By the Associated Press.

RHEIMS, France, Oct. 17.—There will be no 1931 vintage champagne. A cold September following a wet August ruined the crop and many firms refuse to take the scanty, mildewed grapes.

SAYS SHAW FOUNDED LIBRARY OF HISTORICAL SOCIETY

Mrs. Beauregard Finds Data Regarding Gift by Donor of Tower Grove Park.

Henry Shaw, who gave Tower Grove Park, Shaw's Garden and one of the finest botanical libraries in the world to the people of St. Louis, likewise founded the important library of Missouri Historical Society, Mrs. Nettie Beauregard, curator and archivist, has discovered in gathering material for a "Shaw" meeting next Friday evening.

In the minutes of the society in 1886, she found that a meeting had been called Dec. 17, at 1600 Lucas place by the president, George E. Leighton, who announced that it was to receive an important gift from Henry Shaw, and continued:

"The historical library of the late Bishop Robertson was thought to be one of the best private collections of Americana in the West. Mr. Shaw's generous act had made this collection the property of the Missouri Historical Society. Considering the number of volumes, their admirable selection, their special adaptation to the needs of the society and the opportuneness of the gift, Mr. Shaw might, in a manner, be considered as the founder of our library."

Dr. George T. Moore, director of Shaw's Garden, will give an illustrated lecture on "Henry Shaw and His Garden" at 8:15 p. m. Friday at Jefferson Memorial. An informal reception will follow. Members and their friends are invited.

STOCK PRICE LOSS EARLY IN WEEK PARTLY IS REGAINED

Sharp Reaction at Start but After Dropping About 6 Points on Average, Shares Come Back About 4 in Quiet Trading.

MOVEMENT RATHER SLOW AT WEEK-END

Close Is Irregular, With Late Profit-Taking Felt—U. S. Steel Ends Day 1-8 Lower — Other Fractional Losses—Few Gains.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Oct. 17.—The securities markets calmed down this week, while notable strength developed in some of the commodities, particularly wheat.

Stocks reacted rather sharply at the start of the week, but it was in keeping with precedent that roughly half of such an advance should be lost in a secondary reaction, and, after losing about that much of the previous week's swift advance, shares again turned upward.

In the first two sessions of the week, stocks lost about 6 points on the average, but then came back 4 during the remainder of the week. Trading was the quietest since the first week of September.

Bonds were hampered by increasing competition from the short term money market, in which rates pushed up as the Federal Reserve Bank advanced its rediscount rate another full point to 3½ per cent. Nevertheless, the decline in bonds flattened out as the week drew to a close, and rail issues made some progress. Selling was rather active early in the week.

Shipments of Gold.

Heavy shipments of gold, a tightening of money rates and completion of the machinery which is to operate the National Credit Corporation occupied much of the attention of the financial world this week.

There were numerous small bank suspensions throughout the country, while the bond market, at least early in the week, indicated that banks were liquefying their positions, partly because of currency hoarding. The circulation increase was less rapid, amounting to $42,000,000, compared with a rise of $185,000,000 in the previous week, but the total is nearly a billion dollars larger than a year ago.

Gold exports of more than $600,000,000 since the British suspension of free payments, mean, bankers point out, that the redistribution so ardently desired before it came with a rush, is at last taking place. There has been no suggestion that the amount lost was endangering America's reserves, which even now are comparable to those of the spring of 1929 when the speculative fever was running high.

At the Week's Close.

At the weekend stocks moved very slowly, closing irregular as some late profit-taking was felt but making small net changes. Bonds were wobbly in spots, although selling pressure against U. S. Government issues was lifted. Wheat, corn and cotton advanced.

Food and metal stocks did somewhat better than other groups, although the entire list moved slowly higher until toward the close, when realizing sales appeared. Transactions for the two hours amounted to 624,355 shares.

U. S. Steel fluctuated in a one-point range, ending the day ⅛ lower. There were slightly larger fractional losses in American Can, Bethlehem, Radio, Chrysler, North American and Baltimore & Ohio. Beech Nut, National Biscuit, American Smelting, Cerro de Pasco, Anaconda, Kennecott, American Sugar, Corn Products, Alaska Juneau and United Biscuit made small gains. New York Central, Southern Pacific, Case and American Telephone yielded about a point. Inactive National Lead jumped 7.

Sections of the steel industry are reporting better demand. Youngstown district plants will start next week at an average of 23 per cent, or substantially lower.

Large export sales, unfavorable Southwestern weather and bullish Argentine advices kept wheat prices on the upgrade and closing quotations were 1 to 1¼ higher. Corn was unchanged to ¾ better, reflecting a stronger cash demand. Cotton took courage from the tone of stocks and rose 90 cents to $1.10 a bale net.

Foreign exchanges, with the exception on Scandinavians, were steady. Sterling fluctuated narrowly, closing half a cent to the good at $3.88.

Bank of Germany Statement.

BERLIN, Oct. 17.—The Reichsbank statement as of Oct. 15 shows the following changes in Reichsmarks: Gold and [illegible] decreased, 63,305,000; reserve in foreign currencies decreased, 3,404,000; bills of exchange and checks increased, [illegible],000; silver and other coins increased, 16,624,000; notes on other banks [illegible], 1,703,000; advances increased, [illegible],000; investments decreased, 156,000; other assets decreased, 13,608,000; notes in circulation increased, 3,758,000; other daily maturing obligations increased, 50,980,000; other liabilities increased, 19,584,000. Total gold holdings, 1,155,063,000. Note coverage, 28.6 per cent. Rate of discount, [illegible] per cent.

NEW YORK STOCK MARKET

SPECIAL ASSOCIATED PRESS WIRE.

NEW YORK, Oct. 17.—Total sales today on the New York Stock Exchange amounted to 624,355 shares, compared with 1,420,273 yesterday, $828,140 a week ago and 2,161,560 a year ago. Total sales from Jan. 1 to date were 472,109,129 shares, compared with 674,545,838 a year ago and 881,931,180 two years ago.

Total sales for the week amounted to 6,297,225 shares, compared with 17,170,112 last week.

TREND OF THE TRADES

Copper—World smelter production of copper, as distinct from refinery output, amounted to 120,689 short tons in September, compared with 121,655 tons in August and 156,705 tons in September last year, the American Bureau of Metal Statistics reports.

Silk—Employment in the silk industry showed a seasonal upturn during September, rising 10.8 per cent as compared with the previous month, but showing a decrease of 3.1 per cent compared with September last year, the Silk Association of America reports. Broad silk employment increased 12.3 per cent, while spinning spindle employment increased 9.2 per cent as compared with August. In machinery operations during September there were increases of 14 per cent from broad looms and 9.7 pre cent for spinning spindles compared with the previous month.

Steel—Dow, Jones & Co. estimates that steel plant operations in the Youngstown district next week will average 23 per cent of capacity, compared with 29 per cent a week earlier.

WEEKLY METALS

NEW YORK, Oct. 17.—Domestic buyers of copper became more cautious when the statistics for September revealed a further sharp increase in refined stocks, owing to fairly steady production and decreased shipments. The disposition to await the conference of producers next week, when it is said production policies will be discussed, also checked buying past week. Custom smelters continue to supply metal at 7 cents for electrolytic in the Connecticut Valley, but inquiry is largely confined to 1932 positions. A fair volume of foreign orders is reported daily.

The tin market remained dull, with buyers holding off, reactions occurring at the close of the week in sympathy with declines in London. Buying thus far in October is described as smaller than in the summer months, but sellers generally are not pressing offerings.

Lead remains quiet and steady, with demand limited chiefly to carload lots for immediate shipment. Stocks of refined lead at the end of September show a slight reduction from a readjusted end-August figure, but are still said to be larger than immediate consuming needs.

Zinc eased further under pressure by smelters who are seeking business, but buyers remain cautious, possibly awaiting indications of more stable market conditions.

Antimony held about steady with inquiries limited to a few carload lots. No firm offerings are reported from China.

New York Silk.

NEW YORK, Oct. 17.—Raw silk futures closed quiet; sales 370 bales. Dec. 2.27; March 2.26; May 2.25. Open market quotations (60-day basis) Shanghai steam extra B 2.40; Canton Double extra A 14-16s 1.90; Japanese crack double extra, 2.52.

BUSINESS NOTES

By the Associated Press.

MILWAUKEE, Wis., Oct. 16.—About 1000 men will resume work in the West Milwaukee shops of the Milwaukee road, it was announced today. Half the number will be used in the freight car repair department, and the other will report to the locomotive shops. They will work on a four-day week basis. The return of the group will bring the shop force up to about 2000. At Minneapolis 350 went back to work in the locomotive shops.

Switzerland Gold Holdings Increase.

By the Associated Press.

BERNE, Switzerland, Oct. 17.—The Bank of Switzerland's monthly statement published today shows an increase of 123,814,951 Swiss francs in gold holdings, which were brought to a total of 2,205,404,775 francs. Currency circulation was reduced by 16,104,205 francs to 417,197,905, making the gold coverage 156 per cent.

Metals.

NEW YORK, Oct. 17.—Metals nominally unchanged.

COTTON GENERALLY HIGHER AT THE WEEK-END CLOSE

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Oct. 17.—Cotton was generally higher today on covering combined with a moderate trade and commission house demand.

December sold up to 6.44c, making a net advance of 23 points and closed at 6.41c, or within 3 points of the best. The final tone of the market was very steady at net advances of 18 to 22 points.

The opening was steady 2 to 5 points higher in the face of rather easier Liverpool cables, and the improving weather prospects. The firmness of yesterday's late market appeared to have brought in some overnight buying orders, while there was very little Southern selling, and trade buying was more or less in evidence including some further demand for the Far East and the continent.

This absorbed the early offerings and carried the market gradually higher, with January selling up to 6.55c and March to 6.74c making net advances of about 21 to 23 points. Closing quotations were within a point or two of the best, on covering by some of the early sellers, who were disappointed over the failure of Southern hedging to develop more importantly in the late trading.

The weather outlook was considered generally favorable. Advices received here from Texas during the day reported that farmers were holding cotton more tightly, and that, in some cases, spot cotton was being bought as an investment in the Texas markets.

Liverpool cables attributed the relative steadiness of that market to continental and Bombay buying, and reported a fair British home trade in cotton goods, with encouraging results from the Shanghai auctions.

The amount of cotton on shipboard at United States ports awaiting clearance at the end of the week was estimated at 194,000 bales against 134,000 last year. Week-end reviews of the domestic goods market seemed to afford traders some encouragement. The factor most generally mentioned was the comparatively small offerings from the South.

WALL STREET BRIEFS

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Oct. 17.—The Kroger Grocery & Baking Co. reported for the four weeks ended Oct. 10, sales amounting to $17,605,565, a decrease of 13.5 per cent from $20,362,833 reported for the corresponding period of 1930. Aggregate sales for the 40 weeks ended Oct. 10, were $191,780,630, a decrease of 5.5 per cent from $203,023,676, for the like period last year.

Henry Nias, president of Lily-Tulip Cup Corporation, said that, to assist the unemployment situation, the corporation will move forward its factory operations two months in advance of current schedules, anticipating inventory requirements for 1932. Instructions have been issued to operate factories in full on or before Nov. 1, he added.

STRONG MARKET FOR GRAIN ON LOCAL EXCHANGE

ST. LOUIS MERCHANTS' EX-CHANGE, Oct. 17.—The futu grain market was strong at th week-end session, influenced by reports of big export call for whea from North America, and suggestions of a heavy decrease of domestic winter wheat acreage fo the 1932 crop. Wheat closed 1⅛@1⅝c higher. Corn closed ¾c higher, a bullish factor being the decrease in receipts.

Liverpool wheat closed ⅛@¼ higher.

Winnipeg was ⅝@¾c net higher.

Local wheat receipts, which were 93,8 bushels, compared with 93,800 a week ago and 53,200 a year ago, included 33 ca local and 34 through. Corn receipts, which were 12,600 bushels, compared with 2 400 a week ago and 74,200 a year ago, included 8 cars local and 1 through. Oats receipts, which were 1200 bushels, compared with 19,800 a week ago and 24,2 a year ago, included 1 car local. Hay receipts were 3 cars local.

In the cash grain market Saturday, wheat was ½@1c higher. There good mill purchasing and elevators substantial quantities. The available ply cleared closely. Sales of No. 1 at the Chicago December figure and of the No. 2s at ½c below. Discount light garlicky grain was ½c. Hard wh was ½c higher. Offerings which light, consisted of several cars of Weste No. 1. These were taken readily by local mill. Trading basis was unchang being 1½c below the Chicago Decemb price. Corn was ¼@1½c higher. Sal of No. 2 yellow were on a basis of 3¼ 4c above the Chicago December figure. Receipts were light and offerings cleared fairly well. Industries were the chief buyers. A car of No. 3 new yellow sold to a local buyer. Oats were nominally unchanged to ½c higher. There was only one track car on the market.

RANGE OF PRICES

WHEAT—No. 1 red winter, 51½c; No. 2 red winter, 50½@51c; light garlicky, 50c; No. 1 hard winter, 49½c.

CORN—No. 2 yellow, 39½@40c; No. 3 yellow, 38½c. New, No. 3 yellow, 37c.

OATS—No. 2 white, 23@23½c nom.

ALL GRAIN PRICES GO HIGHER ON CHICAGO BOARD

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Oct. 17.—Every grain on the list went higher in price today, wheat to the topmost point reached in several weeks. Big export call for wheat from North America chaperoned the advance, taking this week to be shipped overseas totaling upward of 10,000,000 bushels, including 600,000 bushels or more purchased today. Particular attention was also given to reports suggesting a heavy decrease of domestic winter-wheat acreage for the 1932 crop.

Wheat closed firm, ¾@1⅛c up, corn and oats both ½@⅝c advanced, and provisions varying from 2 cents decline to an equal gain.

Contributing to the upward impetus of the wheat market was the Sino-Japanese situation. Notice was taken, too, that China had bought another cargo of North American wheat today, making a total of 1,000,000 bushels this week.

Despite lively week-end profit-taking and in the face of the fact that the wheat market was up more than 7 cents a bushel over last week's low, the day's top quotations were registered in the final few minutes of trading.

Persistent reports of excessively dry weather hampering the progress of domestic winter wheat seeding were at hand from various sections, notably Eastern Washington, where the drouth was stated to have become so acute the outlook indicated complete stoppage of planting. There also was bullish Argentine crop news in circulation which caused late buying, although the Buenos Aires market closed ⅛@1c off.

Corn and oats advanced, notwithstanding that favorable weather for field work prevailed. Falling off in the volume of corn receipts was a bullish factor, primary receipts today totaling but 362,000 bushels, against 664,000 a week ago and 613,000 at this time last year.

Provisions ruled steady, paralleling the action of the hog market.

BONDS IRREGULAR ON QUIET MARKET

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Oct. 17.—Bonds traveled an irregular road today, although there was a lifting of pressure against the United States Governments which had been hard hit in Friday's trading.

The market was quiet. Steady to firm tendencies lasted until the later dealings, when reactions developed in a number of investment rails and utilities, putting them moderately lower on the day. German and Australian bonds were well supported in the foreign section, where trading generally was dull.

Liberty Fourth 4¼s held firm as did the first 4¼s and the Treasury 4s. Lower coupon treasuries eased, but losses diminished with the volume of selling orders.

Heavy selling of Chicago & Alton 3 per cent certificates broke the quotation 26 points. Chicago & Northwestern general 3½s dropped 9 on light offerings. Atchison general 4s and Union Pacific first 4s sagged a point each. New York Centrals were mostly eased, but Pennsylvanias steadied. Baltimore & Ohios were mixed.

Sharp gains in Winchester Arms 7½s and the International Match loans featured industrials. In the utilities American Telephone 5s eased again, while American & Foreign Power 5s, Cincinnati Gas 4s and Consolidated Gas of New York 4½s and 5½s were also heavy.

Sales totaled $7,735,000 principal amount.

MIXED GAINS, LOSSES ON THE CURB MARKET

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Oct. 17.—The Curb Market moved narrowly in dull trading today, closing with mixed gains and losses.

The market was fairly firm for a time, but eased off in the late trading, apparently under week-end profit-taking sales. The turnover of 140,000 shares was the smallest for a Saturday in five weeks.

In the utility group, American Gas and Electric got up nearly 2 points for a time but closed with a gain of only ½ point fraction. Middle West closed ½ minor higher, Electric Bond & Share finished ½ point lower, and United Light A was off ¼.

Gulf Oil and Standard of Indiana yielded fractionally, but Standard of Ohio advanced a point. Mining issues were slightly higher, in sympathy with that group on the big board. Teck Hughes and Newmont closed with gains of small fractions.

Singer Manufacturing, a high priced issue, sold up 10 points in one of its occasional appearances on the tape. Great Atlantic and Pacific gained 2. Aluminum Co., however, slipped back a couple of points.

Insurance Securities was a firm spot in the investment trusts, rising nearly 3 points in a fair turnover for this ordinarily quiet issue.

No Action on Fox Dividend.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Oct. 17.—Directors of Fox Film Corp. have taken no action on the dividend ordinarily distributed Oct. 15. The last payment was 62½ cents a share, July 15, when the rate was reduced from $1 quarterly.

The board was scheduled to act on the quarterly dividend on the no par class "A" and "B" shares Sept. 21, but that meeting was postponed because of lack of a quorum. Stockholders, accordingly, expected some action to be taken when the statement of net earnings appeared Oct. 3, but no announcement was forthcoming.

The report, however, disclosed net profit of $120,152 for the six months ended June 27, equal to five cents a share, compared with $2.69 a share last year.

DECLINE IN STATE FUNDS CAUSES CUT IN APPROPRIATIONS

Up to Oct. 1 This Year Collections Fell Short $2,146,499 of Those for Like Period in 1930.

By the Jefferson City Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, Oct. 17.—Gov. Caulfield is confronted with the task of trimming about $1,300,000 from state appropriations, already approved and released for the biennial period of 1931 and 1932 and may have to make additional cuts, to avert a deficit, it was learned today, because State general revenue collections continue to fall below the amount of income anticipated at the beginning of the biennial period.

The 1931 Legislature over-appropriated the estimated revenue for 1931 and 1932 by several million dollars. The Governor vetoed $2,245,431 in general revenue appropriations and held up $4,140,342 in other such items to be released, only if money become available, in order to bring the appropriations released within the income, as estimated by the State Tax Commission.

However, in the first nine months of this year, up to Oct. 1, the general revenue collections have been $2,146,499 less than for the corresponding nine months of 1930. Calculations of the Tax Commission indicate the ratio of loss is increasing slightly from month to month, as compared to 1930.

As a result, the operating margin, created early in the biennial period through holding up appropriations subject to money becoming available, has bene wiped out, and revised estimates by the Tax Commission, based on the collection, show the Governor will have to make at least $1,300,000 in future deductions.

Revision of Taxation Figures.

The Governor will begin making the reductions in the next few weeks, and in the meantime the Tax Commission is preparing revised taxation figures for him. He has sent letters to all departments, boards, bureaus and institutions stating expenses must be held down to a minimum, because of the reduced revenues.

The various departments were directed to hold telephone, telegraph and printing bills to a minimum and to eliminate all travel by employes at the State's expense, except when absolutely necessary. Department heads were urged to repair existing equipment, if possible, instead of purchasing new equipment.

The Governor may have some difficulty in making the reductions in the appropriations, if the departments do not co-operate in reducing expenses, as he has no constitutional or statutory authority to revise appropriations as conditions change, which is the chief defect in the State's so-called budget system. He has power to veto or approve appropriations, but once approved there is no definite authority for revision.

Governors have got around this by holding up parts of approved appropriations, the money to be released if it comes into the Treasury. This system requires co-operation of the department affected. In making the additional cuts, the Governor must recall parts of appropriations already released. He has no control over appropriations of other elective officials, once approved, and the major part of the new reductions likely will fall on departments, boards and institutionh the heads of which are appointed by the Governor, unless other elective officials consent to turn back a part of their appropriations.

$191,672,808 in Appropriations.

Appropriations of 1931 and 1932 by the Legislature totaled $191,672,808, of which $26,650,017 was against general revenue, largely derived from direct sources of taxation. The other $165,022,791 was against special levies, fees and special funds. In most instances the departments receiving such appropriations may spend the full amounts only, if that much is produced by the special levies or is earned in fees.

The loss in revenues is attributed to the business depression. Of the $2,146,499 loss already reorted, $1,238,456 was in State income tax collections, compared to 1930.

Reductions in assessed valuations of property, made by the State Board of Equalization, will mean a loss of about $185,000, aside from the loss in current collections which has been piling up from month to month. So far the valuations fixed by the Board of Equalization for 1931 taxes are $155,889,575 less than the total of $4,968,850,691 assessed valuation it fixed for all taxable property in Missouri for 1930 taxes.

This reduction in assessments will mean a revenue loss for 1931 of more than $2,500,000 to the counties, municipalities and school districts of the State, based on the average tax rate.

Farms Assessed at $1,274,751,582.

The assessment of farm land was fixed at $1,274,751,582 for 1931, a reduction of $89,350,604 from last year. Town lots, comprising city and town real estate, were assessed at $2,244,739,501 an increase of $34,759,898 over last year. Personal property was assessed at $575,860,568, a reduction of $81,052,723.

These items, carrying a net reduction of $135,643,429, together with a net reduction of $20,246,146 given steam railroads and public utilities, make a total reduction of $155,889,575 in the assessments. In giving the railroads and utilities a reduction of $20,246,146 from 1930 assessments, the board lopped about $35,000,000 from recommendations of the Tax Commission on 1931 assessments of the railroads and utilities.

In 1921 the State Board of Equalization, in former Gov. Hyde's administration, attempted to bring assessments up to the full value required by law and sharply increased farm land assessments. Since that time far mland assessments have been reduced each year until now they are $492,817,136 less than the 1921 assessments of $1,767,568,718. In the same period assessments of town lots (city and town real estate) have been increased by $663,870,236 to the total of $2,244,739,501 for this year.

The board comprises Gov. Caulfield, Secretary of State Becker, State Auditor Thompson, State Treasurer Brunk and Attorney-General Shartel.

NET RESULTS OF WILKINS' ARCTIC TRIP

Voyage Under Polar Ice Can Be Made in Proper Type of Submarine, He Says—Ill Luck, Accidents and Other Reasons for Failure Described by Commander of Expedition.

By Captain Sir Hubert Wilkins,
Commander of the Wilkins-Ellsworth Trans-Arctic Submarine Expedition
(Copyright, 1931.)

IT yet has to be proved that a submarine can pass under the Arctic pack ice to the North Pole. But the failure of the Nautilus to make the journey is not proof that such a journey with a submarine cannot be made.

We were beaten, not by the difficulty with the ice, but by machinery which would have failed equally to carry out its functions in any other latitude. Our engines were the greatest source of trouble.

In August, 1930, these were inspected and reported on by the most expert representative of the manufacturer. As a result, our engineers declared that the engines could be made ready by Jan. 1, 1931. Apparently the work recommended by the expert never was carried out, and it was not until after leaving Spitzbergen on August 18 that the engines could in any way be depended upon.

Since that time they have given little serious trouble, but the delay had been so long drawn out that when we reached the Arctic there was not time to carry out the crossing of the Arctic Ocean although it might have been possible to reach the Pole in the time remaining.

Craft Used as Experiment.

The only thing possible to do was to take the vessel to the ice, make hurried trials with the equipment and, if there was any chance at all, make a dash for the Pole and return.

If the machinery was not satisfactory enough to make the polar journey safely possible, then we could use it as experimental gear, and in an effort to find out exactly what was required to test it to destruction. And that is what we have done.

As a result we have gained experience which should enable us, if we care to proceed with the job, to prepare a special boat that will meet adequately the requirements. There should be no difficulty in getting such a boat built. The requirements are not particularly intricate or expensive.

I think skill and experience in the operation of submarines such as we have had with Commander Danenhower and his crew this year would be quite equal to the task of operating such a vessel across the polar areas.

From experience gained this year we know that our electrical equipment (such as exide batteries) and our motors can be relied upon in the temperatures likely to be encountered. We know that with the right kind of insulation the spun glass such as we used in part this year will relieve all trouble from condensation and the icing up of the interior of the vessel. There was not one particle of condensation on our spun glass lining.

Loss of Rudder.

Our trouble with water pipes freezing is a matter that can readily be overcome by insulation. It was not serious in our case, and merely meant a little more work for the cook. It was necessary for him to walk about 50 feet to another compartment and pump water from the tank direct instead of pumping it in the galley.

Our distilled water for batteries carried in a wooden tank, did not freeze.

It was apparent to those who knew the design of the Nautilus that while her twin propellers were a weak spot for Arctic navigation, the horizontal rudders standing out on either side were even more exposed to danger than the propellers.

It will never be known just when or how we lost our horizontal rudder. We had been in the pack ice for two days before its loss was discovered.

It is reasonable to suppose that it must have been carried away by the ice, but this is by no means certain. From the diverse report it seems to have broken off abruptly and the metal crystallized.

While crossing the Atlantic one of the supports of the rudder apparently dropped off without having suffered any noticeable shock. This was probably due to fatigue and crystallization of the metal. The same thing might have occurred with the horizontal rudders, or there are other explanations which might account for its loss.

Our ice drills proved inadequate for the severest tests we put upon them, but there

MOSCOW, U. S. S. R., September.

THE Communist Manifesto, issued by Marx and Engels in 1848, concluded with the stirring slogan: "Proletarians have nothing to lose but their chains. They have a world to win!"

Through the efforts of the Bolsheviks the proletarians nominally have won one-sixth the dry surface of the world but their self-appointed leaders are finding out that the Marxian slogan is a two-edged sword. Unless the proletarians have something to lose they will not stay on the job to consolidate the victory of the revolution.

Many American engineers in Russia are predicting that the leaders will be faced with a tremendous reckoning within the next two or three years if they do not strengthen the weak links in the chain of planned economy. The engineers do not forecast a smash-up. They know too well that the Communist party will not permit this to happen. They do say that the party will have a lot of explanations to make if their glowing promises to the people are not fulfilled.

The five weak links in the chain, according to the American engineers, are: (1) lack of co-ordination in the industrialization plans, includng inadequate supplies, small tools and transportation; (2) the refusal of managers and workers to assume responsibility; (3) the great labor turn-over; (4) the leaders' love of grandiose but untried schemes, and (5) the backwardness of the mass of Russian workers. The first three factors are generally conceded to be the most important, with opinion divided as to which should be accorded first place.

"Passing the Buck."

To the engineers on individual jobs the labor turn-over and the refusal of managers and workers to take responsibility are the most apparent. There is a Moscow joke—which is not so far from the truth—that it takes six signatures to make an order effective. The explanation given is that one person will not risk punishment. Another story, heard in several places, was that if a machine breaks down a mechanic will not volunteer to repair it, fearing that if it breaks down again within three weeks or a month, he will be charged with sabotage. These stories probably are exaggerations but they show the feeling of the workers.

The labor turn-over is a serious problem. At Dnieprostroy, which employs 19,000 workmen, the turn-over last year was 11,000. For the first six months this year the turn-over was 6000. American engineers on other projects told the writer that about the same percentages obtained throughout the Union. The railroad stations near all projects are jammed to overflowing with workers coming and going.

Napoleon is supposed to have said that it took three years to make a soldier. The Soviet leaders are finding out that they cannot make skilled laborers out of "dark" peasants overnight and that the newly acquired machines will not run themselves.

Under the former system of "level wages" there was not much direct incentive for a skilled laborer to do his best or to stay on the job. The unskilled laborer had no tangible inspiration to seek promotion. The result was, and still is to a large degree, that the workers shifted about from locality to locality and from industry to industry seeking jobs in plants favored with better food and better housing.

Small Output Per Worker.

The Government boasts that the Union has no unemployment problem and contrasts this situation with unemployment in capitalistic countries. The boast is true in a sense. Soviet industries are seeking more workmen. American engineers are willing to prove, however, that one American produces the same amount of work as five Russians. "No wonder," they say, "there is no unemployment in Russia."

Nicholas J. Pullus, an American engineer employed to help rationalize Russian factories, in an interview published recently in the Moscow News, declared that 40 per cent of the workers at the Molotoff ship repair plant were idle the days he visited the plant. He complained to the foreman and pointed out that the workers could be used in casting parts. The foreman replied that he had no pig iron. When Pullus said that he was prepared to show the workers how they could use scrap iron for the work, the foreman replied that he would have to get permission from the director. Pullus did not see the foreman again. Pullus also reported that Molotoff foundry wasted 18 per cent of total material cast whereas the usual loss in the United States was 3 per cent. He said that in casting 5600 kilograms of brass, 2700 kilograms were wasted.

David Dubinsky of New York, a former Russian revolutionary and now general secretary-treasurer of the International Ladies Garment Workers, after an invesigation of the garment factories in Moscow, Leningrad and Kharkov, reported that the quality of Russian products was extremely low. He said that the "Bolshevichka" plant at Leningrad, employing 4000 women, turned out only 6000 coats daily, or 1 1-2 per worker. He said American workers on the same machinery would have produced nine coats per worker. He blamed inefficient management.

A. Andreyev, chairman of the People's Commissariat of Workers and Peasants Inspection, a supervisory branch of the Government, reported in July that "very few Soviet plants, mines, collective farms or railway stations had the same manager as long as a year."

American engineers, without exception, had little good to say about the "udarniki," the shock brigades of young people who are expected to set the pace for the other workers. The writer's guide, a Russian newspaper man, expected to write a news-article about the "udarniki" encountered on our trip. With the exception of a group of young women at the Stalingrad tractor plant, who were exceeding their quota by seven per cent at die making, we failed to find the shock brigades living up to their names. Many of the engineers laughed when asked about the socalled pace makers.

Curious "Rest Days."

Piece work was introduced about a year ago in an attempt to speed up the workers. This did not produce the expected results. Workers rarely exceeded the minimum requirements. The explanation was that the minimum gave the workers enough money to buy the necessaries of life on their food and supply cards, and that it took too much excess earning to buy other supplies in the outside markets.

This summer the newspapers throughout the country have been printing the pictures of workers who have made good records, but the psychological incentives have not worked for long. Now the workers who exceed their quotas are given longer vacations, cigarette cases and other more or less tangible rewards.

The Americans blame the Russian managers. An instance was cited to the writer in which the American engineer found a whole unit of laborers idle. When he demanded where their foreman was he was told that the foreman was taking his "rest day." The American put the workers back on the job, promising that he would reprimand the foreman. The next day he found the foreman idling around the plant. Asked why he was not working, he replied that his men were taking their rest day.

The Americans also say that the inability of the managers, whether Americans or Russians, to hire and fire is a serious deterrent to the speeding up of production. Even after a worker is dismissed after consultation with the factory committee, he has no trouble in getting another job almost immediately.

The Russians have always been a nomadic people and now that they have no homes to call their own, many think nothing of bundling up their few possessions and moving three or four hundred or even a thousand miles in search of better living conditions.

The lack of co-ordination in the planned economy can be traced in part to the refusal of managers to take responsibility and to the gigantic labor turn-over. A plant that needs 1300 barrels of cement daily receives only 900. The oil wells in the Caucasus, which have completed the five-year oil program in two and one-half years, are hampered from continuing their rapid progress because pipes and drilling tools are delayed. The transportation system, although making some progress, cannot move materials fast enough to the new developments. The lack of small tools, such as hammers, saws, plumb-bobs, trowels, chisels and planes hold up construction work. One American wrote to the Moscow News that on the State Farm where he was working there were more tractors than monkey-wrenches.

Small Tools Are a Scarcity.

The absence of these small tools makes more difference in production speed than one would at first imagine. For instance, Russian lumber does not come in uniform widths and lengths. In making a joint the Russian carpenter must do the best he can with an antiquated ax and saw. Whoever invented the Russian wheelbarrow must have had it in for the workers. The wheels are about half the diameter of American wheels and the arms are far apart.

These difficulties, however, do not explain why the architects design apartments and forget about water and sewer pipes and wait until the apartments are built before putting in electric floor plugs.

Soviet officials claim that the workers as a heritage from Czarist oppression have an ingrained stubbornness against the acceptance of new ideas. There is no doubt that the two words most used in Russia today are carry-overs from the old regime. They are "seychas," which is supposed to mean immediately but which in reality means from an hour to a month, and "zavtra"—tomorrow—which means anywhere from two days to never.

There is a definite reason for the ingrained stubbornness. Under the old regime the workers had nothing to look forward to and they were "agin" their Government and the managers. The managers in turn inherited the old bureaucratic buck-passing of the monarchy. It should be remembered that the fundamental law of 1832 said: "The Czar of all Russia is an autocratic and absolute monarch. God himself commands us to obey the Czar's supreme authority, not from fear alone, but as a point of conscience." When this law was changed in 1906 only the word "absolute" was omitted. It is not hard to see why Soviet officials will require time to educate the workers.

Stalin's July speech to the Soviet industrial managers demonstrated that the party leaders are taking a realistic view of the present situation. Stalin emphasized the lack of coordination, the refusal of managers to accept responsibility and the huge labor turn-over. This speech made a direct appeal to individual self-interest instead of simply to class consciousness. The Socialist slogan, "He who does not work shall not eat," was changed by Stalin to "He who works the most effectively shall have the most to eat." In other words, the worker will have something to lose.

Rewards for Good Workers.

The strategy obviously is to improve the living conditions of upper bracket of skilled laborers, the engineers and technical workers, in an effort to inspire the young workers to seek promotion. Thus last month the Central Executive Committee and the Council of People's Commissars, in a joint resolution granted the engineers and technicians, all the privileges hitherto enjoyed only by industrial workers.

This joint resolution is interesting in that it shows what the advanced workers can expect and what the industrial workers have enjoyed. It provided:

1. Children of engineers and technical workers are to be accepted in educational institutions on an equality with children of industrial workers. Hitherto, the schools and universities were so crowded that only the children of the workers were received.

2. Engineers and technical workers are granted the same rights to obtain places in sanatoria and rest homes as industrial workers.

3. Engineers and technical workers are to receive insurance doles in temporary disablement on same rules as industrial workers.

4. Engineers and industrial workers and their families are to be supplied with food and clothing equally with industrial workers.

5. When engineers and technical workers are transferred from factories to Government institutions, that is, from an industrial job to a purely governmental job, salaries are to be by no means reduced. Government workers are in a third category while engineers, until promulgation of the resolution, were in the second category. Industrial workers are in the first category.

6. Engineers and technical workers are to pay income taxes only on income in excess of 500 roubles a month at rate of 3½ per cent per annum. This tax is not progressive as it is on Government workers.

Engineers and technical workers are granted the same rights as industrial workers in obtaining living quarters, and to insure favorable housing conditions which will permit

FRANCE AND GERMANY ON BETTER TERMS

Excellent Results, Cables Wilhelm Marx, Have Followed the Visit of the German Chancellor and Dr. Curtius in Paris, and the Return Call of Laval and Briand in Berlin.

By Wilhelm Marx,
Former Chancellor of Germany.
(Copyright, 1931.)

BERLIN, Oct. 17.

THE eyes of all Germany are on the United States today, looking forward to the coming meeting between President Hoover and Premier Laval.

The world is slowly accustoming itself to wonders in public life and the life of a state. Things which one would have regarded last year as impossible take place today in open view.

Only a year ago Germany could not dare to bring up the question of reparations in any manner. Today the whole world is agreed that developments have only begun with the Hoover year. Influential circles of the great powers are already declaring that this Hoover year must be prolonged, since the difficult problem of the debts of the indivdual countries cannot otherwise be put in order, and failure to do this would create endless harm and a still severer financial and economic crisis would bring the civilized countries of the world nearer to the brink of collapse.

Nobody today believes that after the expiration of the Hoover year the reparation payments will be resumed to their full measure. From every side come urgent representations that the question of reparations must be regulated anew with greatest possible speed. Germany, which is best able to judge the extent of her economic distress, long ago realized and declared that she could no longer carry this vast and unjustly imposed burden unless general disaster was to follow in finance and economy everywhere. France alone showed herself stiffneckedly opposed to all proposals and warnings.

Ever Increasing Gloom.

But then the weak Germany received aid from a more powerful source. The world-crisis suddenly lifted its gigantic head. To their dismay the various countries realized, in many cases unfortunately all too late, that only a certain fraternal feeling, could guarantee the economic progress of them all. Six million or more unemployed in the United States, almost three millions in England, the world's greatest industrial state, four million unemployed in Germany—these were warning signs which could not be disregarded. And then followed the heaviest blow of fate, unexpected as a flash of lightning from a clear sky. The proud England abandoned, at least for some months, the gold standard. The sad result was a sharp fall of the pound sterling and heavy financial consequences of this unprecedented happening in almost all other countries—consequences whose complete extent and effect cannot yet be foreseen.

This vast world-crisis, which despite all caution brought millions of losses even to the proudly isolated France, accomplished what even the most urgent warnings by expert students of the situation had not been able to accomplish.

It brought about suddenly a change in the attitude of the French Government and of public opinion in France, at least in so far as could be noted from outside. The German Chancellor, accompanied by Dr. Curtius, the German Foreign Minister, met a friendly reception in Paris. On Sept. 27 the French Premier Laval and Foreign Minister Briand returned the visit in Berlin. Their reception by the populace was also extraordinarily friendly, and even enthusiastic. Thousands of Berlin citizens gave Briand ovations with greatest heartiness at every opportunity—ovations which, as shown by the cries, were given to him as "the bringer of world peace." Let us hope that correspondents of Le Temps and other nationalistic newspapers of France were present to observe this warm welcome of the French statesmen. Perhaps even these men will then change their preconceived ideas and realize that by far the greatest part of the Germans sincerely and in all uprightness desire peace and a peaceful understanding with France also.

Growing German Friendship.

Herr Dingeldey, chairman of the German People's party, declared a few days earlier in the most trenchant and unambiguous words that 90 per cent of all Germans thoroughly approve an alliance with France and are striving for it with all their might. Since the Center, the State party and the Social-

Why Neglect an Obvious Cure?

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

NUMBERLESS committees and commissions are daily wrestling with elaborate methods of curing that dire disease of the body politic known as unemployment. One might suppose that a new and insoluble problem had been presented to the human race in all countries of the globe save Russia. But to use common sense seems to point to a quite simple cure which needs no delay, and will brook no delay, in being put into universal operation. Memory takes me back to my early experience as a worker, a clerk, in the banking business.

At that time our regular working hours for ministering to the needs of the great public were from 9 a. m. to 4 p. m.; and thereafter from a half hour to three hours were employed, as need was, in closing and balancing books. Moreover, there was no half-holiday on Saturday, for I remember being present at the first meeting held to agitate for that great boon to workers. But lo! Bank business hours have now suffered a daily reduction of two, but banking still goes on as usual, though with larger clerical staffs. So far as I last heard, there has been no banker who has complained of the change, or become bankrupt because thereof. Nor was any worker's pay reduced.

Apply this reduction of hours to all other workers. If one-fourth are unemployed, while those employed are working eight hours a day, the diminishing of these working hours by one-fourth would automatically give employment to the unemployed, with a six-hour day for all.

If somewhat less than the six-hour day is the measure of the business need for bankers, why not arrange the same measure for workers in all other occupations? The measure of leisure enjoyed at present by one or two classes of workers could then be equally enjoyed by all. Whatever this shortening of hours might add to the cost of production would be at least somewhat compensated by the greater demand for the goods produced because of the greater number of employed wage earners able to purchase the product. Moreover, it would conserve the worker's self-respect. Something must be done, why not try this?

Let Character Building Wait.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

I HEARTILY agree with your editorial of Tuesday in regard to giving so much of the Community Fund to character building institutions. I think it would be terrible to give the Y. M. C. A. $132,000 again this year. I believe in character building as much as anyone and know that the "Y" and Boy Scouts are fine organizations, but that amount of money would fill many a hungry stomach and character building could be held up for a few months or a year. It will be very difficult to raise the required amount if that rule is adhered to.

A CONTRIBUTOR.

Repulsing a Libel.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

A MOST dastardly attack has just been made upon the very foundations of the republic. Someone who professes to have made a study of the facts about Lincoln's nativity has announced that he was born, not within the log walls of that one-room cabin near Hodgenville, Ky., but in "a comfortable two-story house on Mill Creek, 25 miles distant." I doubt not for an instant that every patriotic American dismissed that insidious report for the heresy it is. The Boston tea party may have been a wild spree of a band of ruffians, the Constitutional Convention may have been a meeting of bargaining schemers, the wars with Mexico and Spain may have been waged for territory pure and simple, but Lincoln was born in a one-room log cabin and nothing else. The long trail that leads from that birth in that lowly place to Washington and the White House is the very cornerstone of our democracy, and to its preservation I pledge myself so long as my typewriter stands up under its daily strain.

Sonnet.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

I HAVE not been so quiet in all the time
You sang. Music of maddest incantation
I have torn from what high places, in rhyme
To match your madrigals. Without cessation
I have sworn with orioles that sound
Of crystal armor is the sweetest note
That we could utter—neither to astound
Nor gladden, but to ease the trembling throat.

Holding communion with the lonely birds,
I learned the echoings that I had sought
To sling upon your panoply of words—
Absorbed into each aria I wrought—
Until I felt communion with your song;
Bond of which I've waited till this long.

NO PEACE WITHOUT JUSTICE.

With all the movements and discussions for the establishing of international peace and co-operation, nothing is said by statesmen, and little by others, of the factor essential to maintaining peace. We ignore the question of justice.

Why talk of disarmament and economic co-operation to prevent war, good as these objects are, and leave untouched the real causes of international resentment, suspicion and hatred that lead to war—the injustices in treaties and conditions imposed upon peoples by superior power? The League of Nations and Court of International Justice, so long as they deal only with ordinary disputes and frictions, are futile to maintain permanent peace. We can only accomplish temporary truces, limited proportional reduction of armaments, so long as the sense of injustice rankles in the heart of peoples upon whom intolerable conditions have been imposed by conquest or inequitable treaties.

Take, for instance, the clash between China and Japan, which threatens war. The fundamental cause of it is the sense of injustice on the part of the Chinese on account of the possession by the Japanese of the great railway system in the heart of Manchuria, taken from Russia by a victory of arms and held by treaties with China which the Chinese denounce as forced upon them. All of the bitter anti-foreign feeling in China has been aroused by forced foreign concessions and privileges. China should come into court with clean hands, with the protection of foreign residents from attacks and outrages. But she has a strong case of injustice. Will the League of Nations, or any nation, attempt to bring about a permanent settlement of the conflict on the basis of justice? No. Neither the one nor the other will intervene for justice. They will attempt only a temporary truce, ignoring the fundamental causes of hostility.

Can Germany be expected to maintain permanent peace while the injustice of the Versailles treaty rankles, not to speak of the burden of reparations? Will Germany permanently endure the Danzig Corridor, which divides Prussia in two? Will she permanently endure the possession of the German Tyrol by Italy, Italy's imposition of the Italian language and customs upon a population which is more intensely German than the Germans themselves? Will she permanently endure any separation of what she holds to be German territory, with German population? Why talk of friendly co-operation between Germany and France, with a hundred causes of resentment and hatred burning in the German minds and hearts? These injustices must be set right before a stable peace can be established.

Will Hungary join heartily in plans for maintaining international peace, stripped by the treaty of Trianon of two-thirds of her territory and population, arbitrarily turned over to her neighbors, Czecho-Slovakia, Rumania and Jugo-Slavia? Or Austria, cut down to 6,000,000 population, isolated, and not permitted even to form a customs union with her German cousins, not to mention her logical desire to unite with Germany? It was the recognition of these injustices which caused the formation of the Little Entente to hold the spoils of victory by superior power. Nothing but weakness prevents these victims of victory from righting their wrongs by force. Hence armaments.

England has righted most of the wrongs in her provinces by granting them an equal status in the commonwealth. But there is India, burning with the resentment of conquest and years of exploitation, which will never be pacified except by justice and independence. There are other peoples dominated by Britain and other European nations to be reckoned with. Although we have never exploited the Philippines, our sovereignty by conquest and purchase is the cause of persistent agitation.

All internal revolutions are caused by injustice, political or economic. Every revolution in the world has been a revolt against political and economic oppression. Social and political justice are the only cure for national revolutions and disorders. They are the only cure for the distresses and disorders of poverty. Prosperity, as well as stable peace, national or international, rests upon justice.

Armaments are maintained on account of injustice. Nations which have the advantage of others fear those who suffer oppression, and those who suffer injustice want the military strength to correct them. It is for these reasons that we say that inequitable peace treaties sow the seeds of new wars. The Romans recognized this. The Punic victory grew out of the conviction that a new war could be avoided only by the complete destruction of the enemy.

These injustices cannot be righted by fiat of any league or combination of nations. They can be righted only by enlightened public opinion. When overwhelming public opinion demands the righting of international, social and political wrongs, we shall be on the road to stable peace and prosperity. The dominant nations will not be able to withstand that pressure. The chief concern, therefore, of those who are working for international peace and co-operation should be to foster public opinion for justice and the removal of fundamental causes which bar progress toward disarmament, co-operation and prosperity.

OUR HOG CALLING VINDICATED.

Many readers will recall our campaign five years ago to spread the truth about how to call hogs. Hog calling contests had come into vogue, and all manner of bizarre and ridiculous calls were being employed. Tossing such vocal fiction aside, we pointed out that hog calling had but one goal, namely, to contact mud-caked ear drums across intervening distances. Its purpose was to inform the hog that his presence was desired at the feeding trough. Obviously, the call to be preferred was the one which would go farthest. That granted, we said, no call could equal "Pi-goo-oo-oo-oo-oo-oo-oo-ey!" which is nothing more than "Pig ahoy!" set to music. When the lungs are filled with Ozark air, the shoulders thrown back and the mouth twisted to one side, that call becomes a distance cleaver like unto the long-drawn musical blasts of the old-time steamboat whistles which once sounded on the Mississippi. Residents of New York and Pennsylvania—as if those states knew anything about hog calling—challenged our position in the matter. We ignored them, confident that time was on our side. Now comes complete vindication. Joe Lillard of Arlington, Tex., crowned world champion at the Michigan State Fair, divulges his secret as "loud and lusty." Says Joe: "Just make the hogs hear and they won't be long getting to the trough." We repeat what we said five years ago. Let the East call the loans. We will call the hogs.

IT STANDS IN MINNESOTA.

The Supreme Court of Minnesota has ruled that the congressional redistricting act, passed by the Legislature on the basis of the 1930 census, is valid, notwithstanding the Governor vetoed it. In its ruling, the court held that the 1929 act of Congress gives the State Legislature absolute authority in the matter of redistricting; that the Governor can neither veto nor approve such act; finally, that the courts of the State are powerless.

The decision will be of interest to Missouri which, as is known, is without a redistricting act and faces the chaotic prospect of electing its congressional delegation at large next year. The Missouri Legislature passed a redistricting act which Gov. Caulfield vetoed, just as Gov. Olsen of Minnesota did. The executive's authority was questioned and for a few days Jefferson City buzzed with rumors and plots of reprisal; but the commotion presently subsided, and nothing further was done. In Minnesota it was different. There the Legislature, instead of tamely submitting to the Governor's disapproval, consolidated its position, so to speak, through the action of the House, which on the last day of the session passed a resolution ordering the bill filed with the Secretary of State on the ground the Governor had no power to veto it.

It is not apparent that that precautionary measure was necessary. The opinion of the court, as reported in the press dispatches, makes no reference to it. It validates the original redistricting act, as stated in the act of Congress, which empowers the Legislature to perform this office independent of the executive or judicial departments.

A movement is already under way to appeal to the United States Supreme Court, which, it may fairly be presumed, will have to pass on the question before public opinion is satisfied. It is desirable, of course, that the point be clarified before the 1932 election. Meantime, the complacency of the Missouri Democratic Legislature and party leaders in acquiescing in Gov. Caulfield's veto and facing, unperturbed, a congressional election at large is easily understood. The Democrats are looking upon 1932 as their year. They expect to elect a solid Democratic congressional delegation in a State-wide referendum, a Democratic Legislature and a Democratic Governor. They expect to be "all set" in the legislative session of 1933 to redistrict the State according to their hearts' desire. They will be in a position, they calculate, to do a piece of gerrymandering which will make the eight-to-five ratio of the redistricting act of the late session seem benignly just and nobly unselfish. And, as a matter of fact and political tradition, that eight-to-five apportionment was far better than none. Gov. Caulfield fumbled the ball when he vetoed that bill.

SUGGESTION FOR SUNDAY AFTERNOON.

Walk to Forest Park if you can, or, at all events, leave the car at the edge. Wander for an hour under the sycamores, oaks and maples, drinking in October's afternoon glory, and then climb Art Hill. The interior of the museum gained, set out to find the paintings which have captured the autumn of the woods and hills and put it on canvas. Ralph Blakelock's "Wood Interior" in Gallery 19 is a good choice to begin with. The russets and browns of its trees and undergrowth and the warm sunlight on the bare plot in the foreground might be many a Mississippi Valley scene after the leaves have turned. So might the nearby canvas of Oliver Grover, whose vista between groups of tinted foliage looks away to an emerald lake and distant blue hills. Colman's "Autumn Pastures" and Foster's "October End" both bring evening, one with long shadows in rugged country, the other with violet haze on a meadow's winding stream. Then there are the bright trees and the glistening river of Homer Martin's "Headwaters of the Hudson," the mists and tints of autumn on New England hills as Dwight W. Tryon saw them, the frosty acres of Ochtman's brush—these and others. And when the search is over and you are walking back in the fading light to the edge of the park, there will come a realization of St. Louis' richness in the painted wealth of the fall.

THAT MAN CALLES.

Plutarco Elias Calles has again answered the Government's summons, has again been received with acclaim by the capital, has been appointed Minister of War, and a situation of extreme political unrest culminating in the resignations of the Cabinet officers has been quieted down by the mere presence of this extraordinary citizen.

It is no new experience for Gen. Calles to respond to his country's call since his voluntary retirement to private life. In his address to Congress on Sept. 1, 1928, the most remarkable presidential message in the nation's history, President Calles declared he would never again serve as President. He cited the Constitution as a permanent injunction against such ambition—an injunction to which he bowed, not reluctantly or with regret, but with a ringing assertion of pride. It was a delightful prospect that he viewed, a future free of official responsibility, but with opportunities for service in dignified, if modest, capacities. Should need arise, however, he pledged himself to be ever at the Government's call. The Congress, the country, the whole world, indeed, thrilled to the climax of his patriotic words:

> Thus we eliminate the traditional policy in Mexico of "the indispensable man."

His patriotism was quickly put to the test. Less than four months after his retirement from the presidency, he was placed in supreme command of the Government's forces in March, 1929, to put down the revolt led by Gen. Escobar, which he quickly did, returning, Cincinnatus-like, to the plow. Again, in October, 1930, a ministerial conspiracy that was seemingly about to burst into the violence of armed rebellion was quickly composed by the warrior-statesman's appearance at the President's side, and the marplots were driven into exile.

Now, for the third time, he has returned at the request of the Government and the National Revolutionary party, with the usual tranquil sequence.

A great man, said the late Dwight Morrow of Calles, a man who would be great in any country. A handsome judgment, yet it may be doubted if it is quite adequate. There is a quality here that seems to transcend greatness, as that term is ordinarily used. It is hardly an exaggeration to say that Gen. Calles has proved himself the indispensable man without whom the troubled destiny of Mexico had again plunged into chaos.

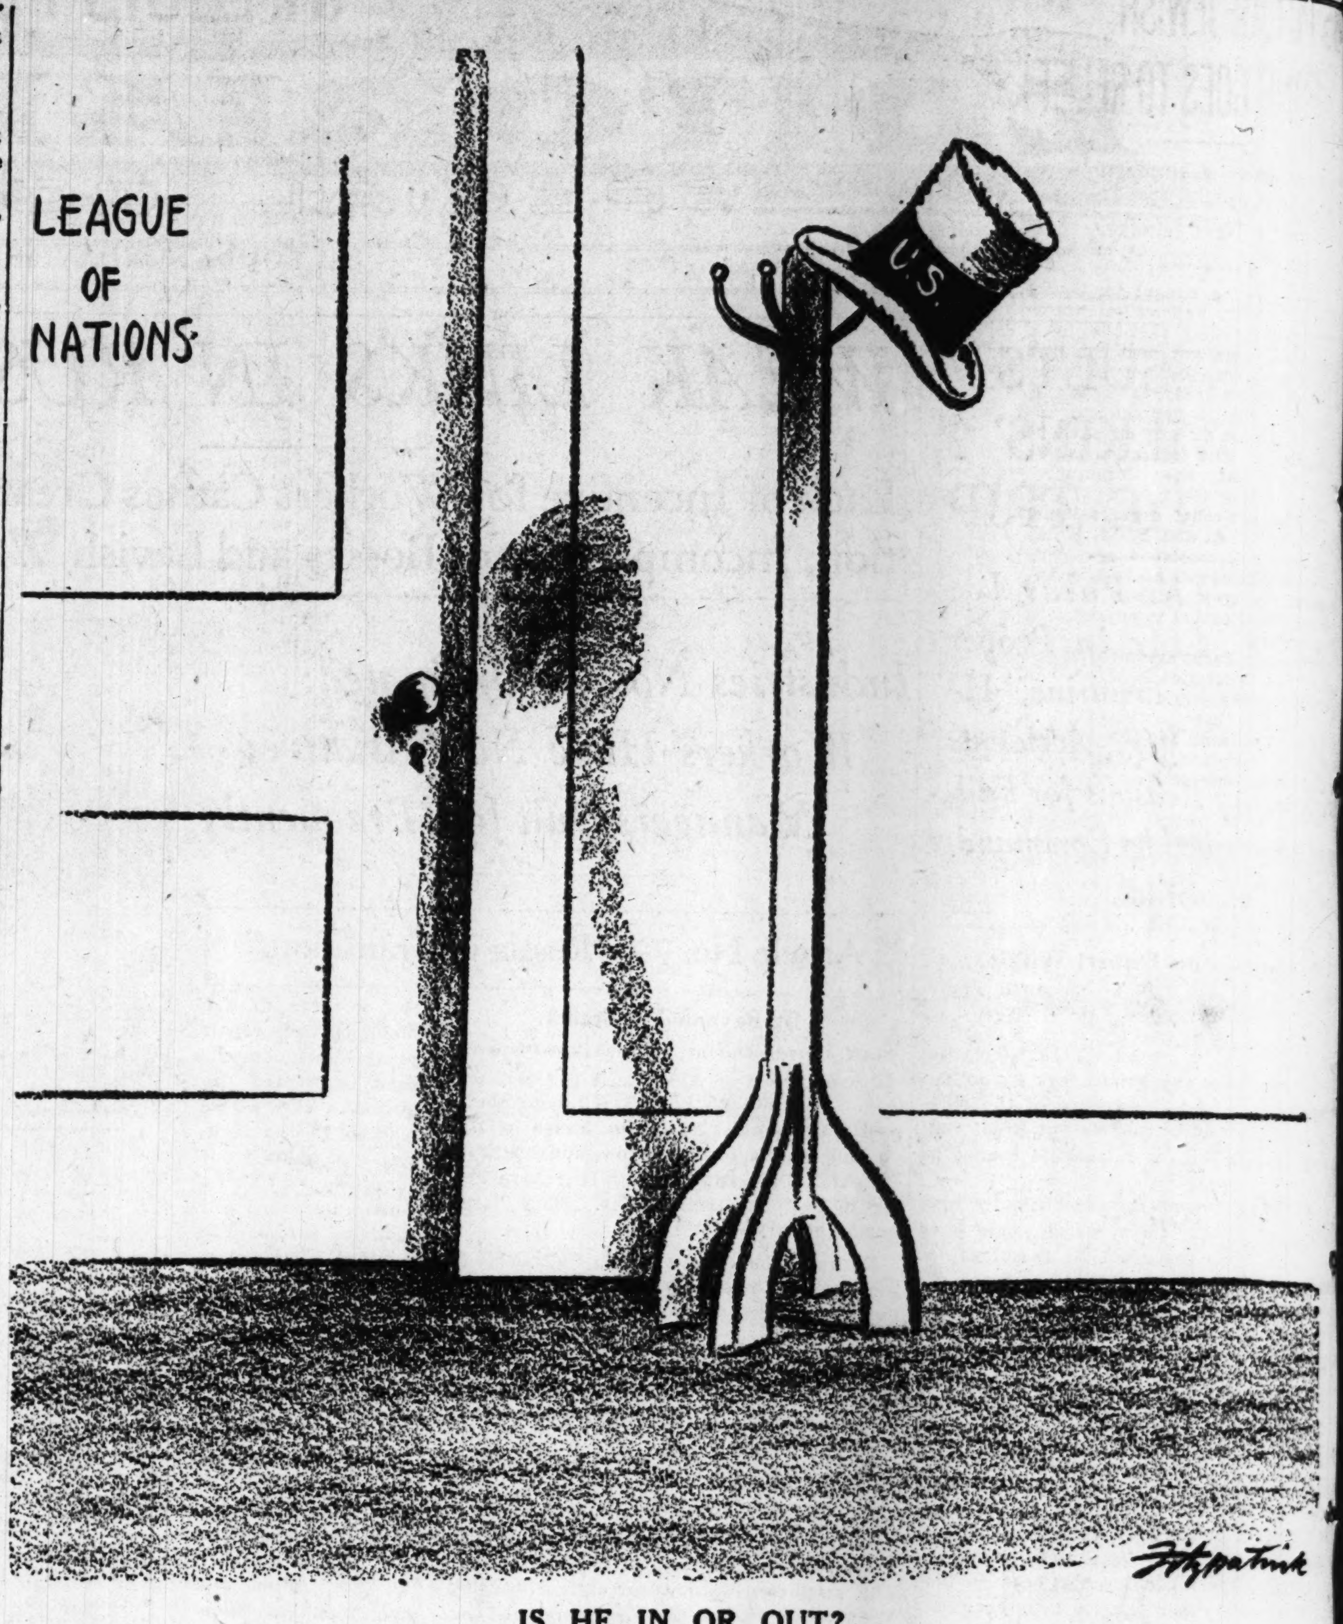
Score Prof. Culbertson a grand slam.



IS HE IN OR OUT?

Monopoly in American Business

Despite anti-trust laws, business in many major lines has been gathered into the hands of one or a few concerns; International Nickel Co. has 90 per cent of world reserves, and four firms dominate rubber industry; interlocking directorates and trade associations add to domination; in their circle, price cutting is called a crime.

Stuart Chase in the New Republic.

WHILE the Sherman Act still stands on the statute books, Dr. Harry W. Laidler (in his new book, "Concentration in American Industry") adduces many examples of monopoly and near-monopoly. I have taken the liberty of casting some of the more flagrant cases into tabular form. But the table printed below gives only a sample of the prevailing tendency. In prepared foods, the General Foods Corporation, Quaker Oats and Kellogg occupy an increasingly commanding position; in dairy products, National Dairy and Borden's can regard their competitors with reasonable equanimity; in paper, International Paper & Power can bid its rivals go jump in the lake. The chains now claim 20 per cent of all retail sales, eight billions out of 40, while in 1927 their share was only 12.5 per cent. In some lines, the chains completely dominate the field. Even in agriculture, the last refuge of rugged individualism, chain farms and factory farms, with due corporate set-ups, are steadily advancing.

Rubber	4 companies	Dominate field

Aviation	3 companies	Dominate field
Electric power	4 groups	Dominate field
Insurance	10 companies	66 pct. insurance in force
Banking	1 per cent of banks' control	99 pct. resources

Nor do the figures as set forth tell the whole story. For instance, in the four corporations dominating the power industry, what is the ratio of interlocking directorships? In the eight corporations dominating the anthracite fields? Samuel Insull in 1930 was serving on more than 80 boards, Richard B. Mellon on nearly 50, Percy A. Rockefeller on 68, Albert H. Wiggin on 50, Charles E. Mitchell on 32. Not until we know the full extent of the community of interest, not to say gentlemen's agreement, can we give in cold percentages the measure of monopoly or concentration. Unhappily, such facts are difficult to come by quantitatively, notorious as they are qualitatively.

Again, we must reckon with the amazing development of the trade association. In an industry where no great constellation takes command, where competition appears to be rife amid a thousand small fry, the trade association can give, and, alas, has given, the spirit of the Sherman law another sock in the eye. Are you aware of what price cutting is now called in trade association circles? It is called a crime. To lower prices is a criminal offense.

Laissez-faire, attacked by the bacilli of mergers, interlocking directorates and trade associations, is at the point of death, and it is about time we threw open the windows and called honestly for the mortician.

Free competition in the classical sense is moribund; the Sherman law was a sheet of tissue paper across Niagara. Well, what of it? Dr. Laidler does not give way to tears, nor shall your reviewer. Neither of us has the slightest interest in replacing Humpty Dumpty upon his wall, Let the merry mergers merge, and the trade associations cry criminal.

What American industry needs above all else, in my opinion, is co-ordination—an integration of supply to demand, and an end to the crucifying wastes and leakages of free competition. The more promptly a given industry acts as an intelligent unit instead of a mob of maniacs, the better I shall be pleased. And when it has rationalized itself, I shall be even more pleased if, like the railroads, it is declared to be "affected with a public interest" and neatly taken under the wing of the Government.

One hundred per cent monopolies should hardly be permitted to go their untrammeled way. But perhaps all that we ultimate consumers would need to do under the circumstances would be to collect excess profits under the income tax law. There, thank God, is a statute made of something stouter than tissue paper.

"International Larceny"

F. H. Sterbenz in the Cleveland Press.

THE Manchurian problem, which has again seized the attention of the world, is at bottom a question of international larceny.

Considered at short range, which is all that will be done in any of the suggested international inquiries now supposedly pending, the Mukden incident seems to require only a determination of whether the clashes arose of Japanese or from Chinese provocation. At best, the immediate settlement, if submitted to by Japan, will involve nothing more than reverting to the status quo ante, to await successive Manchurian crises. Such settlement may be followed according to the best of form and still do violence to simple justice.

What is involved in the Sino-Japanese controversy is the right of a nation to seize part of the territory of another nation, to exploit that territory at the expense of the native population, and ultimately to claim full sovereignty over it. China, having seen Japan on the march for four decades, has no delusions over Japan's aims. Its principal concern is to rid itself of foreign exploitation and to prevent the dismembering of its empire.

From the Japanese viewpoint, the advance in Manchuria arises from and is justified by urgent economic necessity. Externally, its chief concern has been to legalize its present position and to set up the claim to permanent enjoyment of rights now enjoyed.

From the signing of the treaty of Portsmouth, Japan has sought international recognition of its claim to "special interests" in Manchuria. Recognition of this claim was most especially sought in the Pacific settlement arrived at in the Washington conference in 1922. There the Powers rejected it, but Japan's assertion of the claim, paralleling what are sometimes believed (erroneously) to be the American claims under the Monroe Doctrine, and paralleling the claims of Britain in the vicinity of the Suez Canal, continues.

At the Washington conference, Japan stated with great positiveness its intention to retain what it now has in Manchuria. In the last 15 years, it has become the most ardent defender of the sanctity of treaties, having obtained in 1915 an extension to 99 years of the rights gained after the war with Russia.

The circumstances surrounding this treaty extension, following the presentation of the "Twenty-one Demands," are the center of bitter contest. One need be no particular friend of China's to arrive at the conclusion that the imposition of the 1915 treaties resembles closely the seizure of a watch from a helpless invalid by an armed highwayman. The fact that the highwayman may exhibit a paper showing that the invalid signed away his watch by his free act and deed may be of help to him in a court of law, but it still does not give him just title to the watch.

The rights Japan has obtained in Manchuria it considers essential to its economic development and to its national safety. Any realistic view of the Far East must admit the force of these claims. Japan asserts that historical and geographical circumstances make identical Japanese military, political and business policies at home and in Manchuria.

France and Germany Now on Better Terms

ists have long held the same attitude, what could not happen if France would herself adopt the same attitude?

The new French Ambassador, Poncet, in his very first utterances upon assuming his post declared in most praiseworthy manner that he regarded it as the aim of his activities in Berlin to bring about a peaceful and understanding co-operation of France and Germany. Laval, who evoked sympathy everywhere he showed himself because of his frankness and straightforwardness, exhibited the same attitude in all his various official addresses, and declared that the task and aim of his policies was the establishing of a peaceful and trustful relation between the two countries.

Naturally one could not expect far-reaching political results from a visit lasting only two days. Nevertheless the agreed upon creation of a mixed German-French economic commission, to be composed of representatives of the governmental departments concerned, of men from different branches of economic life, and also of representatives of labor, and to meet now in France and now in Germany, as the situation may require, must be welcomed as a good beginning, and it is to be hoped that it will be followed by good decisions. It is a noteworthy fact that its competency is not restricted, but that on the contrary it is to consider all economic problems of interest to the two nations, as is declared in the official communique in express words.

Personal visits and discussions between the statesmen of the great countries of the world, such as those inaugurated in such praiseworthy manner by Chancellor Bruening, undoubtedly promise the best results. But they cannot lead to binding decisions. For this is an international political conference more and more obviously become necessary.

"The world is shaking," declared Dr. Curtius at the last session of the League of Nations with full justification. The matter is urgent, winter is approaching, and a further extension of the already menacing crisis threatens. "The ice is broken," said a German newspaper in its comment on the visit of the French statesmen. It is to be hoped that a spring sun will soon throw its bright rays upon wretched humanity which is calling urgently for help.

A political factor of great importance which came to the front during the visit of Laval and Briand must not be overlooked. The two French Ministers expressly requested that they be received by President von Hindenburg, and the reception led to a lengthy talk which, it can be assumed, was of the heartiest character. But General Marshal von Hindenburg's name still stands on the list of war criminals whose delivery over to France for trial was demanded in the treaty of peace. In magnanimous manner Premier Laval, through his personal visit, characterized this provision of the treaty as out of date and to be disregarded.

The heartiest acknowledgment for this must be expressed to him and Briand. In international law no express repeal is required of antiquated provisions, contrary to the demands made by dishonest or naive politicians like the National Socialists with great tamtam and nationalistic outcry. Or do these men perhaps—and one could credit them with it—desire to have France expressly reject a demand for the repeal of this treaty provision? Such a course would fit in with their desire to render the existing wretchedness still more bitter and sadder. But their day would be past as soon as reason and justice secure the upper hand in the victorious states as well.

The German people in their by far greatest majority desire to have nothing to do with them. The result of the election in Hamburg was due to local reasons. The majority of the Germans will greet with joy every path that leads to peace and to the maintaining of their national honor. The French statesmen's visit in Berlin was a promising beginning. May his visit to Washington very soon lead to happy results.

Weak Links in Russia's Five-Year Plan

them to raise their "qualifications," that is, to improve themselves technically, they shall enjoy the same rights as "responsible workers"—Communists — in obtaining additional living space.

8. Engineers and technical workers are granted the same priority as industrial workers in getting materials and labor for housing co-operatives.

"Privileges" Part of Pay.

In granting the engineers and technical workers the same rights to obtain additional housing space as "responsible workers," the Communist party made a great concession. Housing space is at a dear premium in all the Russian cities. By enlarging the group entitled to these privileges the resolution in effect lessened the privileges of the Communists.

Despite the propaganda that the Communists can receive only 450 rubles a month regardless of their real worth to the Government, the party members or "responsible workers" have always enjoyed many privileges denied others in Russia, privileges which constituted high "real wages." While the Communists' salary was kept low in comparison with specialists, they had expense accounts; they belonged to low priced co-operatives that were well stocked; they were supplied with transportation facilities and they received prior treatment at all Government institutions. This does not mean that they did not earn their higher "real wages." The Communists on the whole are the hardest working people in Russia. But the 450 ruble maximum compensation propaganda needs explanation. A Communist receiving 450 rubles a month could live better than a nonparty member receiving 1000 rubles a month.

The joint resolution virtually abolished the second category of workers. Many well-informed foreigners in Russia forecast the abolition of all categories if the Government continues its trend to the Right. Russians won't admit this. They insist that what foreigners call trends to the Right are merely temporary "zig-zags" and that the Communist goal of equality for all will eventually be attained.

Weeding Out Disloyal.

Before Stalin made his speech and before the joint resolution was issued to put part of his ideas into effect, the Government relied mainly on two agencies to see that its industrial plans were carried out. These agencies were the Commissariat of Workers and Peasants Inspection and the dreaded secret police, the Gay-Pay-Oo. It was—and is— their job to unearth graft, corruption and sabotage, either active or passive, in Government institutions.

The Workers and Peasants Inspection, known as the RKI, is also used by the Communist party to "purge" itself of unworthy members—the careerists, the incompetents and the grafters. The purging is known as "chistka." This year, through the efforts of the RKI and the Gay-Pay-Oo, over 400,000 persons were expelled from the party. The total membership is now said to be about two and a quarter millions. Above the RKI is the Council of Labor and Defense, of which Stalin is a member. This council is also superior to the State Planning Commission, which drew up the present five-year plan and is working on the next five-year plan, scheduled to start in 1933.

In keeping with the communistic policy of self-criticism, the Government does not minimize the difficulties it is facing in industry. Chairman Andreyev of the Commissariat of Workers and Peasants Inspection reported in July that "a serious lack in our industry is our waste and unnecessary expenditure both in production and distribution."

"The cost-cutting planned for 1931," he continued, "amounts to 10 per cent. If this were achieved, it means 1,600,000,000 rubles saving, which would build us several Dnieprostroys, several Magnetostroys. But in actual fact the industries are raising costs, not cutting them. In the four months cost rose 2.9 per cent on an average. Part of this can be blamed on fuel and transport troubles. None the less industry took from us a billion rubles by failing to cut costs Moreover, in the effort to achieve a fictitious cost-cutting, quality is often sacrificed—an impermissible method.

Tremendous Waste in Factories.

"We are treating our material reserves very lavishly, to say the least. Investigations made by the RKI in four plants of the Railway Administration showed 60 to 70 per cent of metal wasted in shavings and scrap. Another investigation of 12 large plants showed reserve supplies worth 10,389,000 rubles; Stalingrad Tractor Works alone had 1,800,000 rubles' worth of materials in storage. A preliminary investigation into metal resources shows in Moscow alone unused supplies of 2652 tons of metals, not including 3768 tons of scrap iron.

"Waste is also observed in the delay of goods between factory and consumer. Cotton prints, for instance, take four months to go from Moscow to purchasers in Kharkov. This means not merely the tying up of capital in the goods themselves but the expense of overhead in moving them about from one place to another during four months."

Reporting on engineers and technical workers, the chairman said that a survey of many plants disclosed that "we use only 30 to 40 per cent of the time of our engineers for production while in Germany 90 per cent of the engineers' time was utilized." The remainder of the time, Andreyev declared, the engineers were attending conferences and writing all sorts of reports.

What the American engineers cannot understand is why the Government, with the difficulties it is having with co-ordination and labor, persists in planning greater industrial units before it has reached scheduled production in the present plants.

Not Steadfast on Jobs.

Last month the Soviet press carried news stories about "the largest electrical machine plant in the world" to be erected in the Urals. According to the press, this plant is to have seven times the total output of all the electrical machine plants in the Union last year. The productive capacity of the plant, the account said, would be three times that of General Electric in the United States and five times that of the A. E. G. company of Germany. It is expected to employ 100,000 workers, including 12,500 engineers and technicians. Preliminary work, the account stated, would be started this year.

An American construction engineer who has a wide reputation in the United States and in Russia told the writer that the best thing that could happen in Russia would be for the Government to finish the projects it has started before taking on new ones.

"Officials get excited at the beginning of the work," he said, "but before the project is completed their interest declines. The result is that materials and labor are difficult to get. These people haven't learned to go through with a project until it is completed. This attitude is costing the country millions of dollars and is slowing up the planned economy."

Despite the difficulties and the costs—which the engineers think will continue to increase—the Government is making considerable progress.

Chairman Andreyev compared present production with 1913, Russia's peak production year under the monarchy, with 1931. "Oil output in 1913," he said, "was 9.2 million tons; in 1931 it will be 27.5 million tons. Coal output has grown from 29 to 86 million tons in the same period. Pig iron from 4.5 to 8 million tons. The output of farm implements has grown more than tenfold, from 70 million rubles' worth in 1913 to 815 million rubles' worth this year. General machine building has increased from 398 million rubles' worth to 4191 million rubles' worth.

Estimating Russia's Progress.

"The U. S. S. R. has attained this growth at a time when in the largest countries, for instance in America, industrial production has sunk from 30 to 40 per cent in the basic industries during the past year. There is no doubt that we shall fulfill our five-year plan in four years."

Non-industrial figures also bear out Andreyev's claims. For instance, St. Petersburg under the Czar had 673 kilometers of pipes for water supply. Leningrad under the present Government has extended these pipes to 860 kilometers. The sewer system was 486 kilometers in 1913; in 1931 it was 885 kilometers. Street car trackage has been increased from 124 kilometers to 410 kilometers and 1000 new cars have been added. And at the end of the year the municipality expects to have 35 bath houses with 500 baths each for its population of 2,400,000!

For local consumption the Soviet propaganda compares present conditions in the United States. This is possible because the Russians are misinformed about many things in the United States. A fairer comparison is with the United States of 50, 60 or even 100 years ago. Machinery is just coming into widespread use in Russia, and it is estimated that the per capita wealth of the U. S. S. R. is about 1 per cent of that of the United States. Russia has a long way to go to catch up, but in 1850 the total wealth in the United States was estimated at only $7,136,000,000. Recent estimates put it at $360,000,000,000. In other words, while the population in the United States has increased five times, wealth has increased about 50 times. The increase was accompanied by great waste. Many large railroad systems in the United States have grown through bankruptcy or mismanagement at some time or other in their history and the losses to the security holders was enormous, probably in the hundreds of millions. Russia is going through that period now. The waste of competition is eliminated. The waste of inexperience and mismanagement is still there.

'PIE IN THE SKY,' NEW NOVEL WRITTEN BY ST. LOUISAN

It Contemplates Life as Exciting Adventure of Getting Into "the Right Sort of Trouble."

A novel contemplating life as less a comfortable business of keeping out of trouble than a purposeful and exciting adventure of getting into "the right sort of trouble," written by Frederick Hazlitt Brennan of St. Louis, prolific author of short stories, has just been published by the Century Co.

Brennan, a former reporter for the Post-Dispatch, has written one other novel, "God Got One Vote." The second, though it also is obviously laid in St. Louis, is in other respects a marked departure from the first. It is the story of a young man, reared in a family of ranting radicals and proselyting atheists, who grows up to doubt the dogmas of disbelief but likewise to mistrust the opposite dogmas thrust at him by the rest of the world. The title, "Pie in the Sky," is taken from the sardonic I. W. W. parody:

You'll get pie in the sky when you die!

Deviled by a disquieting perception of more than one side in most people and most issues, the young man moves through riot, loves, bloodshed, courtrooms and national disaster toward the conception of "Humanity, Inc.," which "shall devote itself to the naive, quixotic and well-nigh impossible task of restoring the economic doctrine of Jesus Christ. Humanity, Inc., shall sound one last appeal to the consciences of American business men, acting on the rather preposterous hypothesis that the majority of them are still capable of receiving such an appeal."

SPENCER MILLER JR. TO SPEAK

"The Church and Industry" to Be Subject Tonight.

Spencer Miller Jr. of New York, consultant for industrial relations in the social service department of the Episcopal Church, will speak in Christ Church Cathedral tonight on "The Church and Industry." He is secretary of the Industrial Workers' Bureau of the American Federation of Labor, and is returning from the Federation convention in Vancouver, where he was a speaker. He has been connected in various capacities with the New York State Factory Commission, the United States Department of Labor, the United States Industrial Commission, the industrial department of the United States Navy, and the industrial administration of Sing Sing prison. He has been engaged for three years in studying the church's relation to industrial problems, and has written a book on the subject.

Conference on Mooney Appeal.

A pardon committee representing the International Molders' Union locals No. 10 and No. 59, will meet at 8 p. m. Wednesday at the Central Library to devise further plans to secure the release of Thomas Mooney. The local committee is co-operating with the national defense committee at San Francisco, Cal. The public is invited.

Net Results of Wilkins Expedition is a possibility that had it been necessary we could have done without them on a journey to the Pole this season. Our trials with them this year will enable us to design drills more likely to be adequate for the job.

We have learned that one is not "blind" under the ice. It was possible to see at least 30 feet clearly, and probably 50 feet in parts of the Arctic, where the water is as clear as that we encountered.

It was possible when traveling at three miles an hour to slow the vessel in such a short distance that no damage would have been sustained from contact with the ice.

The two leaks in the hull we experienced this year are a result of traveling fast through widely scattered pack and a helmsman being not quite quick enough to avoid striking the ice lumps, although there was ample room on either side.

Such is the list of our difficulties this year.

On the other side of the ledger we have a unique record of scientific results that could not have been obtained with such facility in any other type of vessel.

Scientific Knowledge Gained.

The series of "deep bottom" samples taken could hardly have been obtained except by a submarine. The same might be said of the gravity measurements. The air lock and diving compartment proved to be as convenient and valuable, if not more so than we expected. With its aid this year we have achieved sufficient success with the scientific work to fairly well satisfy the scientists in the oceanographical department on board.

These results hardly are as exclusively academic as the public is generally inclined to believe. They have a bearing on many matters of economic importance. This I will not try to explain, because Prof. Sverdrup, in another article, will some time go into more detail with regard to the scientific results.

Altogether we were not entirely disappointed with our results. While not spectacular, we believe they are a genuine advance in the method of polar exploration.

Our journey was indeed one of true exploration. Much of the sea we covered had not been traversed by boat, and the area we probed—the sea bottom with our depth finder, bottom sampler thermometers and gravity machine—was virgin territory for the means employed. In a way subsea exploration is as much geographical as land above sea level, and in the underwater area of the Arctic is a vast storehouse of knowledge to which we hope we have opened a road.

LEGION DELAYS ACTION ON MAYOR'S PROPOSAL

Still Considering Offer to Combine Soldiers' Memorial With City Auditorium.

The American Legion decision on Mayor Miller's proposal to combine the Soldiers' Memorial with the Municipal Auditorium provided by the 1923 bond issue, to enable immediate erection of the auditorium, was postponed for another month at a meeting of the Commanders' Conference Friday night at City Hall.

Herbert F. Lewis, vice chairman of the conference and head of a committee appointed last month to consider the suggestion, said that the election of new commanders had intervened and the committee required more time. The next meeting of the conference will be held Nov. 24.

The $6,000,000 bond issue item for the plaza site and the Soldiers' Memorial has been exhausted in obtaining the most of the site, including virtually all the auditorium site. A $1,000,000 fund which might be made available for the Memorial building by reversal of Circuit Judge Bader's decision against special benefit taxes is tied up pending Supreme Court action on the city's appeal. The Mayor's suggestion would permit erection meantime of the northern half of the Municipal Auditorium, with a seating capacity of 3500, at an estimated cost of $3,000,000.

President Kinsey of the Board of Public Service, who presented a statement outlining the situation, said he doubted that any city official had power to give veterans exclusive assignment to quarters in the building, as Lewis had asked at the first meeting.

St. Louis loses $5,000,000 a year due to lack of a suitable meeting place for large conventions, said Charles F. Hatfield of the Convention Bureau. Carl Roessler, president of the Hotel Association, emphasized the business that might be brought to the city by conventions using the auditorium, and remarked that, if it had taken as long to mobilize the American forces for the World War as it has to build the auditorium, "we'd have lost the war." E. R. Kroeger, musician, spoke of the lack of a suitable place for concerts and opera.

While the movement for a Municipal Auditorium limped along for 11 years, the American Medical Association had sought in vain for a place to meet in St. Louis, said Dr. Elsworth Smith, past president of the St. Louis Medical Society. On the association's last convention here, its meetings had to be split up among several halls.

Not only the Medical Association, but the American Hospital Association and others would be attracted to meet here by the Municipal Auditorium, he said. He said cities a third as large as St. Louis had built auditoriums and profited by the meetings of such associations.

"I can't understand why a suitable auditorium can't be erected for $5,000,000," he said, referring to the present estimate of $6,000,000, or $1,000,000 more than the bond issue item for the Auditorium. "Everything I've heard about the changing price scale indicates that a 1923 dollar ought to be worth $1.60 in building costs now."

Thompson's "DOUBLE MALTED" MALTED MILK

"Sure It's Good—Our Team Trains On It"

Bill Edwards knows results when he sees them. His peppy team has Thompson's "Double Malted" at luncheon because the enzymes aid digestion, and after practice as a "pick-up." They know it has increased their energy and endurance.

Well digested food is very important to children, because they must eat more than grown folks in order to grow. The greatest digestion helpers for little stomachs are enzymes. Thompson's "Double Malted" (double enzymes) digests five times its own weight of other foods. Helps young, growing bodies get full benefit from the food they eat. Then they eat more—hence gain in height, weight, energy. Thompson's practically doubles the food value of milk and is rich in the food elements that develop strong bones and teeth, firm flesh and sturdy muscles.

Resolve that your boy or girl shall have the tremendous advantage in life that a vigorous body gives. Order Thompson's "Double Malted" from your druggist or grocer now.

FURTHER CUT ORDERED IN ILLINOIS GAS RATES

State Board Then Will Permit Mixing of Natural and Artificial Fuel.

By the Associated Press.

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., Oct. 17.—Granting petitions of 30 villages and cities in McHenry, Kane, Cook, Du Page, De Kalb, Kendall and Will counties, the Illinois Commerce Commission today ordered the Western United Gas & Electric Co. to file new reduced experimental rate schedules for natural gas service in that area.

As soon as these rates have been filed, the company may mix natural with artificial gas and may increase the heating value of the gas it supplies to its customers.

The company offered a reduction in present rates of 2½ per cent for gas for domestic use and 20 per cent for gas for house heating purposes. The Commission, however, ordered a reduction in rates for domestic gas service of 5 per cent and of 30 per cent for house heating gas from rates now in effect except in Batavia, Geneva, St. Charles, Wheaton and Elmhurst.

The rate ordered for these five cities is to provide revenue not to exceed 5 per cent for Wheaton and Elmhurst and 3 per cent for Batavia, Geneva and St. Charles above what would be provided under rates ordered into effect in other parts of the company's territory. The order, however, rules that no bills be increased above what they would be under existing rates.

The order regarding the five cities is due to the fact that in Batavia, Geneva and St. Charles, the Western United Gas & Electric Co. pays into the city treasury 3 per cent of its gross receipts from gas service and in Wheaton and Elmhurst pays in 5 per cent.

TWICE SAVED FROM ELECTRIC CHAIR, GRANTED NEW TRIAL

Two Convicted of Firing Same Shot; Lawyer Reports Client's Confession.

BOSTON, Oct. 17.—One of the most unusual murder cases in Massachusetts jurisprudence took a dramatic new turn today when Superior Court Judge William A. Burns granted a new trial to Samuel Gallo, twice respited from death in the electric chair.

Judge Burns allowed the trial on grounds of newly discovered evidence coincident with the announcement by Attorney William R. Scharton that he would obtain a release from his former client, Gangi Cero, allowing him to testify that Cero had confessed the slaying for which Gallo was convicted.

The slaying was that of Joseph Fantasia in the north end of this city in the summer of 1927. Cero was first tried and convicted. Just before he was to have been electrocuted, his sweetheart, Philomena Romano, implicated Gallo.

Gallo was indicted, tried and convicted with the result that the State was faced with the unusual situation of having convicted two men for having fired the identical shot which killed Fantasia.

Both were granted new trials and tried jointly but that time Cero was acquitted and Gallo was convicted. Cero is now in Italy. Gallo again appealed for a new trial which at first was refused. Scharton, who had defended Cero, then appeared before Gov. Ely and told him that Cero had admitted the crime. Galo, who was to have died in the electric chair on July 27, was twice respited by the Governor while the chief executive investigated the unusual case.

American Announces Plays

Downtown Theater to Reopen Next Sunday With Taylor Holmes in "Salt Water"—Musical Benefit Show at Shubert—Midtown Has "This Thing Called Love," and Mary Hart Continues With Suzanne Caubaye in "Naughty Cinderella."

EXCEPT for a musical revue called "Fads and Fancies," presented for charity under the sponsorship of the local Down Town Lions' Club, the Woodward Players, at the Midtown, and Mary Hart's company at the Orpheum will have dramatic things to themselves this week. Miss Hart, who is presenting Suzanne Caubaye in "Naughty Cinderella" goes into her second and final week of that teasing comedy tonight while, this afternoon, the stock company at the Midtown will begin a week of "This Thing Called Love," a comedy which was played in New York several seasons ago by Violet Hemming and Minor Watson.

The Shubert has no booking, at the moment, to follow "Fads and Fancies," until Nov. 9, when Channing Pollock's drama, "The House Beautiful," comes as the first offering under the auspices of the Drama Association of St. Louis.

The American, however, is to begin its season next Sunday night by presenting Dan Jarrett's comedy, "Salt Water," with Taylor Holmes in the stellar role, and announces, now, a list of some 20 plays and musical shows to come later in the season.

THE Midtown's play, "This Thing Called Love," was written by Edwin Burke, since turned movie author with the cinema, "Bad Girl," to his credit. Described by St. John Ervine, in the Post-Dispatch, at the time of its New York presentation, as an amusing piece, it deals with the idea that marriage is only endurable when the parties to it do not love each other. All of the Woodward favorites, including, of course, Miss Whitmore and George Barnes, will appear in the cast.

"Naughty Cinderella," the Frenchy farce at the Orpheum, caught on well with Miss Hart's enthusiastic following last week and Miss Caubaye, the guest artist of the occasion, adds to the attractiveness of the piece by singing several pleasant little songs.

Next Sunday night Miss Hart is to offer "The Greeks Had a Word for It" for the first time in St. Louis. This is Zoe Akins' ribald comedy of a certain section of New York life which was a great hit in the metropolis. Edna Hibbard, lately seen in "High Hat" at the Shubert, will be the guest star.

"Fads and Fancies" at the Shubert, is called a Revusical and will bring to the Grand avenue stage a number of well known singers and dancers and a large chorus. It was written and produced by Cora Belle Morse and among those in the cast will be Virginia Futrelle who made a fine reputation here several seasons ago by singing at Loew's Theater.

FOLLOWING "Salt Water," the second attraction at the American Theater will be Noel Coward's comedy, "Private Lives," one of the big successes of last season in New York. Donald Brian and Edith Taliaferro are the stars of the cast which is now playing at the Erlanger Theater in Chicago.

Other attractions booked for November at the American is the widely heralded picture, "The Dreyfus Case," and Walter Hampden and Fay Bainter in George C. Tyler's production of Barrie's comedy, "The Admirable Crichton."

Among the dramatic novelties to be seen later at the American are the Pulitzer prize play, "The Green Pastures"; Maude Adams and Otis Skinner in "The Merchant of Venice"; the Stratford-Upon-Avon Players in Shakspearean repertory; Rachel Crothers' comedy hit, "As Husbands Go"; Gilbert Miller's production of Philip Barry's play, "Tomorrow and Tomorrow," and three plays to be sent here by the Theater Guild of New York.

The Guild offerings will include "The House of Connelly," recently produced in New York, and Lynn Fontanne and Alfred Lunt in Robert Sherwood's play, "Reunion in Vienna," and one play to be selected from a list that the organization will produce this season. "As Husbands Go" and "Tomorrow and Tomorrow," while produced by other managerial offices, will be included in the Guild's St. Louis subscription season.

The musical attractions booked for the American include Joe Cook in the extravaganza, "Rain or Shine"; last year's edition of Earl Carroll "Vanities"; the highly regarded revue, "Three's a Crowd," starring Fred Allen, Libby Holman and Clifton Webb; the edition of the Ziegfeld "Follies" now current on Broadway, and the revue, "The Band Wagon," now playing at the New Amsterdam Theater, New York.

Thurston, the magician, will play his usual two weeks at the American.

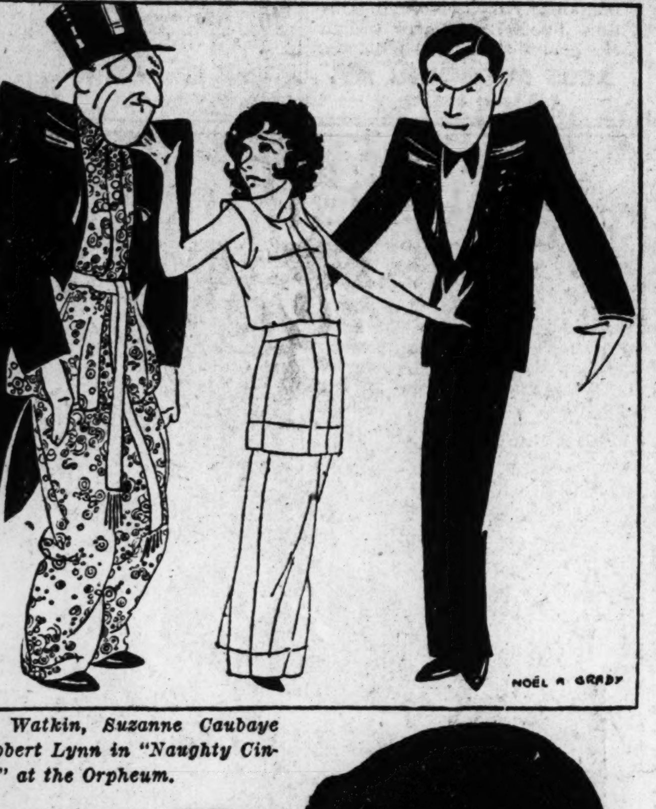
OCCASIONALLY a bit of amazing news comes out of the theater and along these lines is the announcement that Mae West will appear next month as Lady Macbeth. She is to take the piece on tour and plans a visit to the Shubert Theater here later in the season.

Not content with assuming a Shakspearean role, this buxom, blonde actress-playwright says she is rewriting "Macbeth" into modern, colloquial English, including many slang terms.

Miss West, it will be recalled, is the one responsible for "Sex," "The Wicked Age," "Diamond Lil" and other plays which succeeded mainly in shocking the police. For her connection with one of these shows, deemed immoral by the censors, she was sentenced to a term on Welfare Island.

And one of the surprising items of the early season is the success of an Ibsen play in New York. It is "The Father," with Robert Loraine and Haidee Wright as principals.

Although in the typical gloomy Ibsen mood, it is proving one of the very few popular box office attractions. Perhaps the fact that the plot is unusually brutal in denouncing women has something to do with it.



Pierre Watkin, Suzanne Caubaye and Robert Lynn in "Naughty Cinderella" at the Orpheum.

Greta Garbo in "Susan Lenox" at the Fox.

The Week's New Films

—:— By NIE —:—

THE late David Graham Phillips' old story "Susan Lenox, Her Fall and Rise," which the Shuberts did as a play back in 1920, has been brushed off and made into an emotional cinema for Greta Garbo being on view at the Fox Theater now. It tells the story of a Swedish girl in America who runs away from her uncle's farm and bumps into Clark Gable, a high minded young engineer who builds bridges and things like that. It is a case of love at first sight but when Clark steps out for a moment or two to erect a big bridge somewhere, Greta has to move on again to keep out of the clutches of her wicked uncle who wants to marry her off to a tough fellow countryman. All sorts of misunderstandings follow and Greta is so full of love that she neglects to tell her boy friend the simple truth and end the picture then and there. Instead she lets him go away thinking she is a bad gal. He goes down hill rapidly, filling his system with cheap hootch and bridges which won't stand up. Susan gets revenge by taking up with a lot of different men, most of 'em wealthy. But she is still crazy about Clark and in the end she finds him down in Central America somewhere and they team up again. The picture is neither very good nor very bad but it gives the mysterious Garbo a chance to do all of her stuff in a manner to satisfy her considerable following.

The Fighting Irish.

FLAMING youth, the backbone of most college films, plays no part in "The Spirit of Notre Dame," a fine football picture at the St. Louis. The plot is free of any complications and runs right to the standard studio measure with the hero getting into the game in the last few seconds of play so that Notre Dame can beat the Army by a score of 7 to 6 as the whistle blows. But the spirit of youth has been well caught and pictured and Lew Ayres, looking a trifle slight to become a Rockne tower of strength, is excellent, nevertheless, as triple threat man. The late Knute Rockne, himself, is seen in some preliminary shots with the Notre Dame team and after that an actor, looking remarkably like the coach, plays the part of the football instructor and does a fine job of it. There are one or two girls who appear, incidentally, in the picture but there is no love story tangled up with the business of winning the big game and the film belongs entirely to the college boys and their coach.

Sin in Panama.

TALLULAH BANKHEAD, a 10-cents-a-dance girl down in Panama in "My Sin," at the Ambassador, was in a pretty bad fix when her no-good husband was found shot to death in her room. She couldn't even get a lawyer to take her case, but Frederic March, a derelict barrister, steps up and sees that she is acquitted. March has to sober up to handle the case and the first thing you know he is back in New York and one of the big town's leading legal lights. Tallulah goes to New York, too, changes her name and is about to marry a nice young fellow when her past catches up with her. Once more Frederic steps into the spotlight and, for a finish, he and Tallulah discover that they loved each other all the time. It makes a good, interesting story throughout and Miss Bankhead and March do splendid work, as they always do.

And Sin in the Sahara.

IN "The Unholy Garden," at Loews, Ronald Colman is a gentleman crook who is forced to leave England and reside in a wonderful underworld sanctuary in the Saraha Desert. There are other crooks there, hard boiled boys who are scheming to get hold of the millions of francs hidden by an old Frenchman who left his bank and Paris in a hurry. He happens to have Fay Wray for a granddaughter and Fay is there with him. Ronald comes along in time to save Fay from a fate worse than death and ship her back to Paris but he has to stay behind and take his chances with the other cutthroats so that the film ends without the customary clinch. It's an impossible sort of story but good meller just the same.

High Life in Reno.

"THE ROAD TO RENO," at the Missouri, is just what you would expect with Lilyan Tashman running away with the story as a New York woman taking the cure in the Nevada courts. She has a couple of children—Peggy Shannon is one of them—and the daughter and Buddy Rogers see their own romance blighted for seven reels but in the end they come together happily enough after we have learned that the road to Reno is a gay one which leads to murder and suicide as well as the rapid fire divorce court. The Missouri's other picture is "Shanghaied Love." You know—a full-rigged ship, a tough old sea captain, his pretty daughter, a mutiny and a sailor boy who was on the level.

Chevalier Back in Hollywood.

After a long vacation in France, Maurice Chevalier is back in Hollywood working on his next film, "One Hour With You."

Lew Ayres in "The Spirit of Notre Dame," St. Louis.

Virginia Futrelle with "Fads and Fancies" at the Shubert.

Little Theater to Begin Season With 'Makropoulos Secret'

"THE MAKROPOULAS SECRET" opens the Little Theater of St. Louis' 1931-32 season Thursday night. The play is by Karel Capek, the author of "R. U. R.," and is in three acts. The cast includes Hazel M. Jones, Frank Bacon, Noel Grady, Willis Wager, Sara Selby, Bruce McFarlane, Elliot Bergfeld, Eugene Wood, George Wendling, Adelaide Kalkman, Charity Grace and J. William Lucas.

Neal Caldwell, the associate director of the theater, who left the ranks of the New York Theater Guild Acting company to serve with Thomas Wood Stevens at the Little Theater this year, directed "The Makropoulos Secret," and also designed its impressionistic settings. Stevens is expected to arrive in St. Louis this week, just as soon as his duties as director of the Yorktown, Pa., sesquicentennial pageant of "The Surrender of Cornwallis" are completed.

"The Makropoulos Secret" will run nine nights, the first three, Thursday, Friday and Saturday, are already taken for the season by affiliated groups at the Artists' Guild. The following week will be open to the general public.

Gordon Trio Concert.

The Concordia Seminary Lyceum Committee will present the Gordon Trio in a recital next Friday evening at 8:15 in the Seminary auditorium. This is the first musicale on the Seminary Lyceum course for this season. The concert is free to the public.

Free Symphony Tickets.

Deserving music students may apply for free symphony tickets to Mrs. David Kriegshaber, 4943 Washington avenue. Applications must be made in writing, giving age, teacher and some references as to applicant's merit. These tickets are given through the Ladies' Friday Musical Club.

Brahms' Second Symphony Heads Golschmann's Opening Concert

WITH a gala orchestral program, the major work of which is Brahms' Second Symphony, Vladimir Golschmann will inaugurate the St. Louis Symphony Orchestra's fifty-second season at the Odeon at 3:30 o'clock next Friday afternoon. The same program is repeated for the Saturday evening concert, which completes the first regular pair.

Two weeks of intensive rehearsals at the Odeon have served to create of the orchestra a flexible and responsive unit. It is the first time in the orchestra's history that rehearsals have been held in the hall in which the concert is given. In his work of preparation for the season Golschmann has had the collaboration of Scipione Guidi, the new assistant conductor and concertmaster, and of an Orchestra re-enforced in important positions by a group of 14 new instrumentalists.

The St. Louis Symphony Society's new permanent conductor provides for his advent to that post, a program characteristic of his deep interest in the classics of orchestral literature. Because as Golschmann believes the overture is not merely something "to play the audience into its seats," but should be of musical importance, he introduces the season with "Der Frieschutz" overture of Carl Maria von Weber. After that will come the Brahms' D major Symphony.

As a tribute to the memory of the late Frederick Fischer, for many years assistant conductor and personnel manager of the orchestra, Golschmann will present Strauss' "Death and Transfiguration" to introduce the second half of the program—a work which, music lovers will recall, gave Mr. Fischer one of his greatest orchestral triumphs when he presented it in memory of Max Zach, shortly after the death of that former conductor of the Orchestra. Rimsky-Korsakoff's "Russian Easter," will complete the program.

GARRICK—Burlesque.

LIBERTY—Musical Revue.

Gayety to Re-Open As Burlesque House

Under the direction of Sam Reidner, manager of the Gayety Theater at Fourteenth and Locust, during the best days of its history as a burlesque house, the place is to reopen next Saturday night as one of a chain of eight circulating stock burlesque places. The company will rotate around the circuit, but some 30 local chorines will be engaged locally.

The house will open with a so-called dress rehearsal at 8:15 Saturday night to be followed by the regular show which will start at midnight. Thereafter the Gayety will present two frolics daily.

In the meantime the Liberty Theater, which has been playing burlesque for some time, has changed its plan and is now presenting shows called Musical Comedy Revues, with I. N. Hamp and Gertrude Beck heading the cast of entertainers.

Tibbett Here Nov. 6.

Lawrence Tibbett, American baritone, who has been starred in opera, the movies and on the concert platform, will be heard at the Odeon Nov. 6, when the College Club presents him at a concert for the benefit of its scholarship fund, the twenty-fifth anniversary of which is being celebrated.

German Play Tonight.

"Alpenkoenig und Menschenfeind," by Ferdinand Raimunds, a romantic, humorous fairy tale, will be given tonight by the German Theater Stock Company in the auditorium of the German House, Jefferson and Lafayette avenues.

'Ain't no Garbo'--Studio Gag

Hollywoodsmen, Who Never Get a Glimpse of the Star Except on a Screen, Say the Swedish Actress Is Nothing But a Myth—in Reality She Is Just a Shy Young Woman Who Likes to Enjoy Her Life Entirely in Her Own Way.

THE late Lon Chaney, by reason of his meticulous avoidance of publicity, secretiveness in private life, mysterious characterizations and general retirement, was the object of many "gags," perhaps most famous of all being:

"Don't step on that spider—it may be Lon Chaney!"

Now the wisecrackers seem to have fastened their attention upon Greta Garbo, whose timidity of the spotlight, hermit-like manner of living, refusal to see any interviewers, has intrigued the curiosity of all Hollywood.

The popular "gag" today is: "There isn't any such person—Greta Garbo is only a myth!"

Those who have been associated with the Swedish star for the five years she has been making motion pictures in this country say she enjoys the "Garbo gags" she hears and reads just as the "Don't step on it" catchline brought amusement to Chaney.

Neither, in fact, chose to shut the world out of their lives. They were forced to by natural desires to protect at any cost the right to do, think and go as they please. Constant harassment caused them to seek refuge in solitude.

I saw La Garbo once last summer out in Hollywood. She was making a picture and could not be disturbed. A meeting later was half way promised but it never came about for the publicity directors at her studio understand their business and the "Mysterious Garbo" gets a great deal more space than a talkative Garbo could ever hope for.

But from the few people who are really close to her one learns that Greta, who is on view at the Fox Theater this week in "Susan Lenox—Her Fall and Rise," is an extremely personable young woman—she was 25 just last month—who manages to have a pretty good time in her retirement.

GARBO is shy almost to a fault and highly nervous under the cynosure of strange eyes. Among familiar faces, she is relaxed, alive with buoyant humor. On the sets, guarded against visitors, surrounded by the same crews on every picture, she knows everyone by name. Very likely she will be found between scenes eaves-dropping on a "kidding" argument engaged in by Alma, her colored maid, and an electrician. Perhaps she may be romping on the lawn with a dog or cuddling a playful kitten. She has been known to start a baseball game on locations and if there are any children working on the picture they are sure to have her undivided attention, for she adores children.

Garbo lives in a rambling home near the beach at Santa Monica. A huge hedge screens the house from the road and few passing the dwelling ever catch a glimpse of the elusive tenant. She is devoted to swimming and sun baths and enjoys them only in strict privacy. On the other hand she is apt to be found galloping over any of the numerous bridle paths, especially if there is rain in the air, when she dons a cavalry slicker and dashes over the trails, rain beating down upon her bare head. She also is fond of the theater, particularly the Mexican Village puppet shows where a miniature likeness of herself in "Anna Christie" is used in the performances. A lover of good food and a hearty eater, Garbo is ever on the hunt for new restaurants off the beaten paths, but the moment her patronage is discovered or advertised she is never again seen at a cafe.

Contrary to popular belief, Garbo never wears her hair "Garbo style" except on the screen. Her long eyelashes are genuine. She freckles like a schoolgirl and constant sun bathing has bronzed her skin a copper shade. She is not averse to wearing fine clothes, but prefers the more simple sport togs and tailored suit ensembles. A beret is her usual headgear. She enjoys, more than anything else, a good laugh and—her associates say—laughs most heartily at the various magazine articles written about the "real Garbo."

MOVIE stars who, unlike Garbo, will enlighten you by the hour on their romances and other aspects of their private lives, generally become clamish when the subject of their salaries is raised, although it is a topic in which it seems public interest is unfailing.

This reticence, quite natural, since it is shared by men and women everywhere, is especially acute among movie stars, because experience has taught them that Hollywood has innumerable racketeers eager to pounce upon the screen's wealthy with schemes for their own enrichment.

Salary figures, too, become exaggerated in rumors, presenting another danger in a colony where one must live in style befitting one's position.

The recent protests of theater owners assembled in convention in New York against Hollywood "extravagance" in the matter of salaries gives the stars another reason to regret that stories of their fabulous earnings have become widespread.

Constance Bennett's $30,000 a week—not her year-around salary but merely her vacation pin-money—came in for especial fire.

The answer to the salary question here as elsewhere is found in the ancient law of supply and demand.

Keen competition for certain stars' services naturally boosted the players' opinions of their own worth, placing many in a position not only to dictate their salary terms but also to dominate their screen productions.

¤ ¤ ¤ ¤

THOSE who are at popularity's height when their contracts expire have only to threaten a transfer to another company, to dicker with rival studios, in order to bring the home lot around to more generous terms.

Ruth Chatterton thus found her Warner Brothers adventure extremely profitable in getting higher bids from her home studio.

Bidding in the open market runs up the stakes, and presently, when the smoke clears, the star emerges with a contract that is nothing to sniff at.

Every few years the studios have tried to do away with the starring system, to import new faces and glorify the screen story rather than the star.

BOY SCOUT ACTIVITIES

6 BOARDS OF REVIEW FOR BOY SCOUTS SET

Last Such Meetings Planned in St. Louis Council Until December.

The last boards of review to be conducted for St. Louis Council Boy Scouts before December, will be held in each of the five council districts this week, scout headquarters announces. The boards will examine scout candidates for higher rank and for merit badges, certification by a review board being necessary before the candidate may receive his new badge at a court of honor.

Six reviews are scheduled as follows: Inter-racial District, Banneker School, tomorrow evening; North District, Farragut School, Tuesday evening; West District, Clark School, Wednesday evening; Central District, Gallaudet School, Wednesday evening; Suburban District, Webster Groves High School, Wednesday evening, and South District, Fanning School, Thursday evening.

All reviews will start at 7:30 o'clock and close at 9:30. While scouts are in general expected to attend the review in their own districts, all are privileged to attend the review of any district desired. Those who failed to complete a previous review in one district, however, and wish now to complete it in another, must notify scout headquarters in order that the review cards may be transferred to the files of the completing districts.

Each candidate must present his certificate of rank card, signed by his scoutmaster, indicating that all tests have been passed. If this card has been lost, the candidate must have a statement from his scoutmaster certifying the tests have been passed, and naming the date on which the last one was completed. Each second class candidate must bring his bankbook or other evidence of passing the thrift test, while first class candidates must bring bank book, article of carpentry, hike account, map and field notes made during the drawing of the map.

No reviews will be held next month because of the annual Boy Scout Merit Badge Show at The Arena Nov. 12 to 14.

Troop Notes

West District.

Scout Frank Dubbs has been appointed Scribe of Troop 17, which meets at First United Presbyterian Church. A team led by Scout John Senne won a treasure hunt conducted by the troop at the regular meeting last week. The hunt was under the direction of Scoutmaster James Butler. Games and instruction in tests followed the hunt.

Troop 21 of Sheldon Memorial discussed the third requirement of the photography merit badge, "Architectural Subjects in Street Scenes," at the troop meeting last week, in preparation for the demonstration of this badge at the Merit Badge Show. The discussion was led by Erwin C. Schmidt, artist, architect and instructor at Washington University. A troop court of honor will be held by the scouts next Friday evening. Parents, relatives and friends of the boys have been invited.

Seven new troop officers were appointed at a Cornertooth meeting held by Troop 26 of Delmar Baptist Church, last week. Carl Mausshardt and Claude Welch became assistant scoutmasters, Vester Thompson quartermaster, and Bob Gertside, Lee Beaver, Harvey Fitzwater and Winston McAdoo patrol leaders. It also was decided to change the meeting night from Friday to Thursday. A one-month contest in co-operation was started Thursday evening.

Troop 71 of Maple Avenue M. E. Church will demonstrate the signaling merit badge at the Merit Badge Show. The troop re-registered last week, with R. E. Davis as scoutmaster, and the same troop committee that has held office during the last six years. The committee is composed of Walter M. Lowry, chairman; R. E. Crowder, M. P. Jackson and Raymond R. Smith.

South District.

Troops 86 of the Horace Mann School, 200 of the Nelson Presbyterian Church and 209 of St. Matthews' Church are the only troops in the South District still due to re-register this month. These troops must re-register by Tuesday to preserve the district's record of no troops lapsed.

Troop 66 of Woodward School completed its re-registration last week, losing only one Scout out of an enrollment of 15. John B. Urquhart re-registered as Scoutmaster.

Central District.

Troop 106 of Second United Presbyterian Sunday School was the first October troop to re-register in the Central District. Ted McCluskey will remain as Scoutmaster. The troop held its membership even with that of last year, registering 18 Scouts, the entire troop committee, the Scoutmaster and the Assistant Scoutmaster.

Troop 138 of Shriners' Hospital held a birthday party at the hospital last Wednesday evening, with members of the troop committee as guests of honor. Several friends of the Scouts also attended and witnessed a program given by the boys. Scout Executive Earle W. Beckman, Activities Director Charles H. Mills and Field Executive L. J. Case were present, Case telling the Scouts a story and congratulating them on the success of their troop.

North District.

Scouts, troop committeemen and junior officers of Troop 228 of Columbia School attended the troop's annual banquet at the Northwestern Hotel Monday evening. A program for the winter was adopted and troop objectives set for the coming year.

Suburban District.

Fourteen scouts, three committeemen, and Scoutmaster Adrian de Young of Troop Rock Hill 1, of Rock Hill School, held an overnight camp at Rocques Farm near Eureka, Mo., last week-end. All equipment was taken to the camp in the "covered wagon," a trailer made by Junior Assistant Scotmaster Ed Sprink. Most of the time at the camp was spent hiking, cooking and in nature study and games. Despite a continuous rain Sunday, the troop remained at the camp all day.

Cub Notes.

Cub Pack 31, of the Froebel School, gave a party for mothers and fathers at the school last Wednesday evening. The party was the largest ever given by a pack in St. Louis. A grand march was held, with three prizes for the most original costumes. Games were played between the boys and their parents, and refreshments were served. At the close of the party the cubs presented their mothers with articles of handicraft made during their den meetings last month. Den Mothers Mrs. C. V. Meyer and Mrs. M. J. Sparwasser were in charge of the party.

TRAINING COURSE MEETINGS

Sessions at Michael and Stix Schools.

The third meetings of the elementary and advanced Boy Scout leadership training courses being given by the St. Louis Boy Scout Council this fall will be held tomorrow evening at the Michael and Stix schools, respectively. These will be the last meetings of the courses at which it will be possible for new members to join in time to qualify for training certificates.

The elementary course, for scoutmasters, assistant scoutmasters and troop committeemen of little experience, is the basic course of the council's leadership training program. It will be given again next spring. The advanced course, for leaders who have completed a previous elementary course, will not be repeated for another year.

WORLD PEACE MASS MEETING

To Be Held at Second Baptist Baptist Church Oct. 26.

A mass meeting in the interest of world peace will be held at the Second Baptist Church, Kingshighway and Washington boulevards, Monday, Oct. 26, under the auspices of the World Tomorrow.

Speakers will be Charles W. Gilky, dean of chapel at the University of Chicago; Prof. Edward A. Steiner of Grinnell College and Prof. A. Eustace Haydon of the University of Chicago.

Oakland and Pontiac Factory Now Third in Production in World

Advances From Sixth Position in Less Than Year, Says L. P. Hambuechen.

Through its appointment as downtown Oakland and Pontiac dealer, the Central States Motor Co., 3145 Locust boulevard, has become representative of the third largest automobile manufacturer in the world, according to L. P. Hambuechen, president of the firm.

"In less than a year," says Hambuechen," the Oakland Motor Car Co., which makes both the Oakland and the Pontiac, has climbed from sixth to third position in the automobile industry.

"To keep pace with the public requirements, the factor has found it necessary to step up production month after month of this year. The February output was greater than in January; March topped February; April exceeded March and May, in turn, surpassed all.

"An important development on both cars is the use of rubber compound at more than 40 separate points in the cars. This increases the riding comfort and establishes multiple barriers against the telegraphing of road shocks or sounds of engine and chassis operation. The rubber compound is so prepared as to be permanently resilient.

"Oakland's outstanding mechanical improvement is in the new synchro-mesh transmission. Combined with the 85 horsepower of the improved eight-cylinder engine, this quiet second gear provides acceleration up to 40 or 45 miles per hour. Shifting is exceptionally silent and easy. Oakland's wheelbase is 117 inches.

"The Pontiac Six wheelbase has been lengthened to 112 inches, and its 60-horsepower engine carries numerous refinements. Because of the high road speeds attained by both the 1931 Oakland and Pontiac, an added factor of safety is provided through larger brakes. Cars stop very easily and smoothly.

"Six body choices are offered in each line; the two and four door sedans, custom sedan, standard and sport coupes and convertible coupe, a new type offering the advantages of both a closed coupe and an open roadster."

Studebaker Explains Value of Stock Car Hill Climbing Records

"What do Studebaker's recent hill climbing records mean to the individual owner? To what extent does he benefit? Such questions may suggest themselves following the recent triumph of the stock Studebaker President Eight roadster which made 37 hill climbing records in the hands of Ab Jenkins, noted racing driver," says the Studebaker corporation.

"Each climb was supervised by the American Automobile Association. If the records are made with a strictly stock car—identical in design and specifications with those available to any purchaser from any dealer's floor—it gives a true picture of what the car is capable of doing. It supplies performance facts in place of claims.

"That is why Studebaker has used stock cars in its attempts to set new records, whether for speed, stamina, hill climbing ability or economy. And always the competing model has been selected at random by representatives of the American Automobile Association.

"For instance, the President Eight's spectacular run of 30,000 miles in 26,326 consecutive minutes at Atlantic City three years ago became as truly a yardstick of President Eight speed and stamina in Chicago, San Francisco or Oscaloosa as it was on the Atlantic Coast. Likewise, Jenkins' latest feats or those of the Studebaker Six a year ago constitute a measure of Studebaker hill climbing ability. The President's capture of the national economy title in the Gilmore economy run in California this spring gave irrefutable proof of the unusual operating economy of all Studebaker free wheeling cars."

Three Large Fleet Sales by Graham

The sale of three large fleets of Graham cars for exacting duties in widely diversified public services is announced by the Graham-Paige Motors Corporation.

The purchasers are the New York City Fire Department, 20 sedans for the use of battalion chiefs; the Oregan State Police Department, 25 coupes for road patrol; and the United States Department of Commerce, 25 sedans for the Bureau of Public roads.

Goodyear Expands Locally

Motorists to Get Better Tire Service Through Formation of Goodyear Service, Inc., as Successor to Henry-Maginnis Tire Co. and Addition of Washington Boulevard Store.

Don Henry and Louis Maginnis, well known as proprietors of the Henry-Maginnis Tire Co., which has for years handled Goodyear automobile and truck tires in the downtown area, announce the formation of a new corporation, Goodyear Service, Inc., as successor to the Henry-Maginnis Tire Co. The formal opening yesterday of an additional tire and battery store at 2843 Washington avenue also was announced. The Morgan street store is at No. 1721.

J. H. Allen.

Frank Britton.

George H. Kemmerer, who formerly lived in St. Louis and who is well known here, will be associated with the new corporation as manager. Kemmerer was recently in charge of Goodyear distribution in the Toledo territory. He is thoroughly versed in Goodyear automobile and truck tire development and service.

L. T. Teter.

Emil Meyer, who is well known in the St. Louis tire industry, will have charge of service at the Morgan street store. Lonzo Davis will have charge of service at the Washington avenue store. The sales organization will consist of J. H. Allen, H. L. Rohacik, L. T. Teter and Frank Britton. All have had years of experience in the tire business. Allen has been associated with Henry and Maginnis since they started in business.

H. L. Rohacik.

Henry said that the rapid growth of the business of the Henry-Maginnis Tire Co. had made this downtown expansion program necessary. "We felt the need of providing more service for our growing patronage," he said. "The new store with its modern equipment and drive-in facilities, and its up-to-date battery department, will make a convenient headquarters for our patrons in the downtown area."

Maginnis also emphasized the fact that the business had grown so fast that this additional service for customers was essential.

Prest-O-Lite batteries and complete battery service are features of the expansion program.

Cadillac Installs Instrument to Test Structure of Metals

A step forward in testing metals was made by the Cadillac Motor Car Co. the past week when it installed a new metallographic microscope in its metallurigical laboratory.

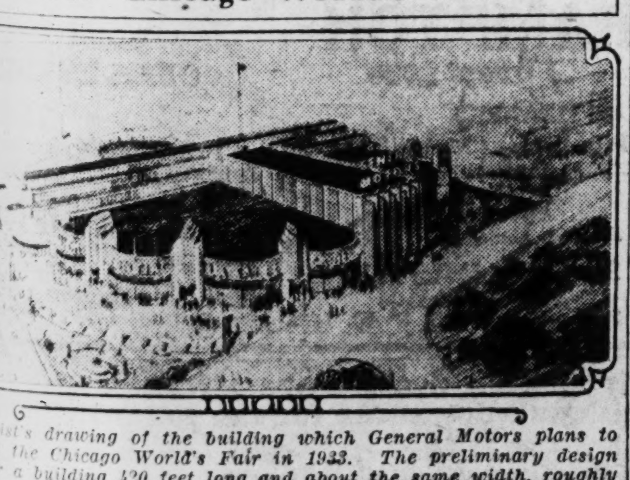
With this instrument, a microscopist can complete in 30 seconds a test which would require 20 minutes with the old design. He can determine the physical state of crystals in structure to within the 100,000th part of an inch. He can completely take apart the microscope and reassemble it in one minute, whereas he would need from four to five hours to perform the same task with former types.

The metallographic microscope installed by Cadillac is the only one of its kind in existence.

Tourist Traffic.

If all the automobiles driven into Canada by United States tourists during 1930 were laid end to end, they would tie up traffic for 15,368 miles. This tourist traffic between the United States and Canada involves a larger total expenditure than that between any other two countries in the world. In the depression year of 1930, there were 5,500,000 cars "imported into Canada for touring purposes."

For Chicago World's Fair



Artist's drawing of the building which General Motors plans to erect at the Chicago World's Fair in 1933. The preliminary design calls for a building 420 feet long and about the same width, roughly shaped like a butterfly, with a complete car assembly plant in the center. General Motors expects to spend about $1,290,000 on building and exhibits.

Auburn Sales Head Credits Women With Auto Design Advance

Style and speed, comfort and safety are the salient features the American woman of today demands in the car she drives, according to John Tainsh, sales manager of the Auburn Automobile Co.

"Gone are those days," he says, "when a woman was content to take her place behind the steering lever of a staid, old-time electric and pursue a calm, dignified course through the less crowded thoroughfares.

"The woman of today rivals her husband in driving skill. Her car must not be inferior in performance to his. If she drives his car it must meet her requirements."

For this reason, he said, women are playing a highly important part in the development of the American automobile industry. Manufacturers keep women drivers uppermost in mind and almost no car is designed today without definite consideration to its appeal to women.

The fact that a car can be designed with definite feminine appeal and still retain its popularity with men is a distinct compliment to feminine judgment, Tainsh said. As a matter of fact, he said, the demands made by women drivers invariably are for features which are appreciated by all drivers, regardless of sex.

Willys-Overland Plans Close Contact With Its Dealerships

A realignment of the general sales division of Willys-Overland for more intimate contact between factory and the dealer organization, is announced by N. A. Beardsley, general sales manager.

G. W. Madison and W. Ward Mohun will be assistant sales managers. The plan also provides for three new divisional managers—E. D. Knowles, F. M. Brown and R. E. Wedekind, former district sales managers. Knowles operated from Omaha, Brown out of Toledo and Wedekind at Louisville. Under the new arrangement these three executives will maintain close contact with their district sales managers.

Executives Visit Ford Laboratories

Fifty-two executives who are touring the country's research laboratories under the auspices of the National Research Council's division of Engineering and Industrial Research will spend Thursday in Dearborn, Mich., as guests of the Ford Motor Co. The day will be divided between the Rouge Plant and the Edison Institute of Technology.

Accompanied by Ford engineers, who will explain the various methods and processes, the visitors will be shown the experimental paper laboratory, glass plant, open hearth building with its junked motor car disassembly lines and "casting forging" process, the garbage distillation plant, die-typing, welding and other departments where special research work is being carried out.

Marr Says Stock 'Special' May Win Next 500-Mile Race

The 1932 Indianapolis 500-mile race may be won by a car that is practically stock, changed only to meet racing conditions, says "Buddy" Marr, who built the Marr Special of 95 per cent Hudson and Essex parts which has just finished ninth in points in the A. A. A. 1931 championship.

Marr bases his opinion on the showing made by the near-stock cars at Indianapolis this year. Of the 17 cars finishing, he says, seven were of this type.

Marr's Special has competed in five championship races, covering a distance of nearly 1500 miles, without any motor trouble. In a field of 40 starters at Indianapolis it finished tenth, qualifying for the race with an average speed of 106.5 miles per hour. Twenty-one cars made lower qualifying speeds.

In the Altoona race Labor day, the Marr Special finished third and averaged 108 miles an hour against a field of 18 starters. It also raced successfully at Syracuse and Detroit. The car's highest speed clocked was 120 miles an hour.

Marr built the Marr Special in spare moments in his own private garage. It cost him $1500. Marr used an Essex chassis, cutting it down seven inches. His engine came from a Hudson sedan which had been driven 2300 miles. No change was made in the engine except in the carburetor, exhaust pipe and the compression ratio.

"Chet" Miller drove the Marr Special in all of the championship events.

Tenth of Gasoline Wasted When Aged Spark Plugs Are Used

In a demonstration at a meeting of the Pittsburg section of the Society of Automotive Engineers, Sumner S. Howard and R. C. Diebl of Flint showed that one out of 10 gallons of gasoline is wasted when spark plugs are used longer than 10,000 miles.

Automobile engine in which were a set of spark plugs that had been used 10,150 miles was placed in the meeting room before the 100 engineers in attendance. The engine, with a "flowmeter" attached, was put into operation, the "flowmeter" measuring the amount of gasoline consumed at different speeds. Then the engine was stopped, new spark plugs installed and gasoline consumption measured.

Wiemeyer Co. Will Distribute Otwell Heaters for Autos

The Otwell Co. of Detroit, maker of the Otwell health heater for Ford, Chevrolet and Plymouth cars, has appointed F. S. Wiemeyer Co., 2625 Locust street, exclusive distributer in charge of sales and service in the St. Louis territory. The Otwell, utilizing hot exhaust gases, eliminates the exhaust manifold and, instead, the hot gases pass through multiple radiating fins which multiply heat radiation while divisional radiating surfaces multiply air radiation. An ingenious heat deflector affords complete ventilation and distribution of heat in the car.

A carload shipment for immediate stock requirements has been received by the Wiemeyer Co. The Otwell heater in tests has met with no disapproval by the makers of the cars for which it is designed.

Prices of Dodge Half-Ton Trucks Reduced $60 and $70

Dodge Brothers announce a reduction of $60 and $70, respectively, in the chassis price of the Dodge four and six cylinder UF-10 series half-ton trucks. The price is effective immediately and is the lowest that Dodge Brothers have ever placed on these particular units.

The price of the four-cylinder unit has been reduced from $435 to $375 and of the six-cylinder from $515 to $445, at Detroit.

The Dodge truck has four-wheel hydraulic brakes, full-pressure engine lubrication and other features.

Following are prices of the various models produced on the two chasses: Four-cylinder chassis, $375; chassis and cab, $470; canopy, $570; panel, $570; screen, $570, and pickup, $500.

Six-cylinder chassis, $445; chassis and cab, $550; canopy, $655; panel, $655; screen, $655, and pickup, $580.

New Auto Finish Marketed Here

The Lacquer Regenerator Products Co., 2739 Locust street, has been appointed sole distributor in Missouri, Southern Illinois and Kansas of Lacquer Regenerator, a new automobile finish. The new product when applied to a car, regardless of age, is said to bring out the luster of the original lacquer 90 per cent brighter and seals the pigment 95 per cent preventing further "chalking."

During the past three weeks carload shipments of the new product have been necessitated to supply municipal, fleet owner and trade demand in the St. Louis trade territory. L. F. McBride and H. Schuessler are president and secretary-treasurer, respectively of the local distributing firm.

Another Safety Plan.

As a means of ridding streets and highways of unsafe automobiles, the American Motorists' Association is urging adoption of compulsory automobile inspection. This inspection would assign unfit cars to junk heaps.

Total of 113,438 Buicks Registered In Year in U. S.

Total national registrations of Buick cars from Aug. 1, 1930, to Aug. 1, 1931, a period representing approximately a year of sales effort after the introduction of the Buick straight eight, were 113,438. The figures cover the 48 states and the District of Columbia. Of this total, 2673 were registered in Missouri.

The Buick Motor Co. says that during this 12 months period, the Buick valve-in-head straight eight outsold its nearest competitor in the national running by a ratio of four to one.

Street Car Has Right of Way.

Attempting to beat a street car across an intersection is now illegal in Pennsylvania. The motor vehicle code provides that when a street car has started to cross an intersection, no operator of a vehicle shall drive upon or across the car tracks within the intersection and in front of the street car.

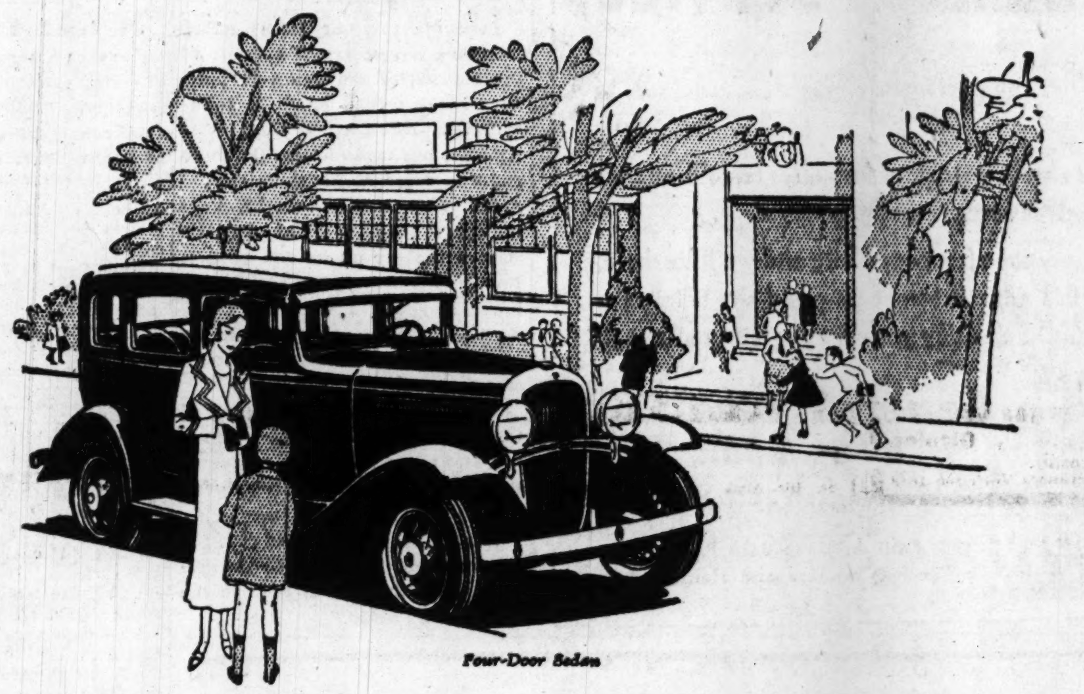
IN ALL THE FOUR FACTORS of ECONOMY OLDSMOBILE STANDS HIGH



Four-Door Sedan

First cost . . . operating expense . . . long life . . . and service costs . . . these are the four fundamental factors which determine how economically you can acquire and own a motor car. And in all four of these factors of economy Oldsmobile stands high.

First, it is economical to buy. Moderate pricing makes it possible for you to enjoy Oldsmobile's fine-car advantages for as little as $845, f. o. b. Lansing. And many of these advantages, including the famous Syncro-Mesh non-clashing transmission, are available in no other car so low in price.

Second, Oldsmobile is economical to drive, because its cost of operation, month after month, is uniformly low. Demands on fuel, oil, and tires . . . and, hence, on the pocketbook . . . are unusually light.

Third, it is economical to own because its proved design and sturdy construction contribute to remarkable durability . . . as proved in the hands of over a quarter of a million owners during the past three years.

Finally, Oldsmobile is economical to operate, due to a fair and equitable owner service policy. This policy is explicit in its terms . . . and as broad in its application as any in the industry.

These four factors are responsible, in no small way, for the popularity Oldsmobile has enjoyed in the past. And they are sound reasons why today's Oldsmobile represents a logical and economical investment.

Packard Car Salon Planned for St. Louis Beginning October 27

Full Packard Lines, Including Finest Custom Models Will Be in the Display.

An unusual salon display of Packard cars, which will be more comprehensive than any seen at a St. Louis auto show, will be held by the Berry Motor Car Co., distributer, the last week of this month, beginning Oct. 27.

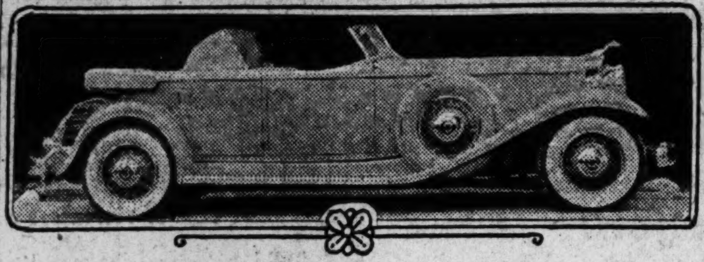
The finest custom built Packard models will be displayed in the large showroom on the first floor of the Berry Motor Car Co. building at 2201 Locust boulevard. The standard models also will be shown.

Although the first of the 1932 Packard cars, known as the Ninth Series, were first shown here June 23, it is only lately that the last of the new models have appeared. This, then will be the first opportunity to see all of the new Packards in one display.

George Berry, president of the distributing firm, said that the company would go to as great expense to stage this salon as it would in the most prosperous times.

He said that the salon would be a real automobile show, to be enjoyed by the public at large, and that visitors would not be annoyed by pressure to purchase.

Dietrich Designed This Body



Dietrich sport phaeton on the Packard Eight 147-inch chassis, the first of which was delivered to Earl B. Songer, 3619 Lafayette, by the Berry Motor Car Co., distributer. One of these models will be in the special Packard salon which will be held by the Berry Motor Co. the last week of this month.

Auburn Car Sets Colorado Endurance Record on Long Run

Driven a total of 7124.8 miles, including a run to the summit of Pikes Peak, an Auburn 8-98 four-door sedan owned by E. J. Johnson, Inc., Auburn and Cord distributer, has made a new Colorado endurance record for stock cars.

For more than two weeks, from the time Western Union officials started the car on its run until it finally was driven in, the engine never stopped. During the climb up the 14,190 foot mountain its performance was flawless, officials said.

From Pueblo to the summit of the peak the speedometer registered 73 miles. Gasoline consumption was five gallons, an average of 14.6 miles to the gallon.

During the whole of the run, the car averaged 15.1 miles to the gallon over every type of road in the vicinity of Pueblo.

Oil Flows in 2.62 Seconds as Zero Cold Autos Are Started

The Standard Oil Co. of Indiana announces results of a test of starting automobiles at zero temperature. The test was made in cold rooms of automotive plants at South Bend, Ind., under supervision of the Contest Board of the American Automobile Association. It was performed on the same 13 cars of the Standard Oil of Indiana's fleet that were used in fueling and lubrication tests of 9000 miles on the Indianapolis speedway last spring and in a road tour throughout the summer.

After each car had been in the cooler nearly 24 hours, long enough for everything from working parts to fuel and oil to get down to the zero temperature of the room, an expert stepped on the starter while others stood by with stop watches until oil began to flow in the oil gauge tube. The starting was performed in each instance by the same men. The stop watches showed the time elapsing between engine start and flow of oil.

The cars used included a Buick, Cadillac, Chevrolet, Chrysler, Cord, Ford, Hudson, Nash, Oldsmobile, Pontiac, Reo, Studebaker and Willys-Knight.

It had been freely predicted that, even using the same kind of gasoline and oil, the cars would show variations up to a minute in time of oil circulation. But the variation was only 11 seconds. The average time between starting and beginning of oil circulation was only 2.62 seconds.

The Standard Oil engineers declare the test proves that if a car is in correct mechanical condition, it can be started quickly and easily even at zero with the right kind of fuel and lubricants.

Car Engine Should Be Readjusted for Fall-Winter Driving

With the wide temperature ranges experienced at this season a motorist will find it to his advantage to have the motor retuned and adjusted, according to M. D. Douglas, general parts and service manager of the Chevrolet Motor Co.

"One of the advantages of the modern automobile over its early predecessors is the fact that a motor today can be adjusted to give maximum performance in all seasons. A motorist who drives through the winter with a car adjusted to summer weather conditions deprives himself of much of the car's capacity for performance and needlessly increases its operating expense," Douglas said.

The carburetor should be checked, and the valves should be adjusted to prevent loss of compression. The ignition system, especially the timing, should be cleaned thoroughly and checked for proper adjustment; the proper functioning of the ignition system is essential to easy starting on cold mornings.

Other suggestions made by Douglas include thorough flushing out and cleaning of the cooling system; draining and flushing the crank case and refilling with a good grade of oil. Perhaps most important of all, the brakes should be adjusted or, if necessary, relined.

Wapeco Co. Handles Windshield Liquid

The Wapeco Products Co., 3532 Gravois, has been appointed exclusive distributer in Missouri of "C liquid," which is used for cleaning badly messed up windshields. The liquid is sprayed on a windshield which can then be cleaned with a few strokes of a cloth or chamois.

Service stations are adopting this sprayer and "C liquid." Also a smaller sprayer and liquid are available for the car owner. A patented socket device prevents the liquid from leaking into a car pocket.

Chrysler Organizes Division for Fleet Truck and Car Sales

Walter P. Chrysler announces the formation of a new sales division of the Chrysler Corporation to be known as Chrysler Motors Fargo Division.

This new division will handle factory fleet sales of all products produced by the corporation—Fargo motor coaches, Dodge trucks, Dodge, De Soto, Chrysler and Plymouth passenger cars. In addition to fleet sales representatives, there will be a group of capable maintenance men, not only able to serve under timely and efficient service, but also competent to act as constructive advisors to the operating and maintenance branches of the transportation systems of fleet users.

Executive control of this nationwide sales and service organization has been vested in the following: A. C. Downey, president; John R. Lee, executive vice president; A. G. Herreshoff, vice president in charge of engineering; J. H. Mack, vice president in charge of truck and passenger car fleet sales; A. H. Ferrandou, vice president in charge of motor coach sales; R. L. Biggers, vice president in charge of field activities and transportation engineering, and D. W. Russell, manager railway sales division.

Take the ANXIETIES out of Winter Driving

WILL your winter driving be a constant series of distressing adventures? Will you go out to the garage in the morning wondering whether the car will start, and, after starting, whether it will run until you get downtown? Does your car seem to read a "Welcome" sign on every service station?

If the answer to any or all of these questions is a mournful "Yes," why not take the only sure cure for your troubles and buy a new car? Can you afford the constant petty expenses that your old car is going to levy on you this winter — expenditures that probably would go a long way towards making the down payment on a new car?

And there are other reasons for buying a new car besides that of saving money and trouble. This new De Soto Six offers much more than you ever imagined could be had at the price.

There have been more than two-score basic betterments in the De Soto Six since the beginning of the year. Included in these improvements are such splendid features as Free Wheeling and an Easy-Shift Transmission with Silent Second. De Soto uses its own perfected type of Free Wheeling (optional at only $20 extra). You never need touch the clutch in shifting from one forward speed to another. The Easy-Shift Transmission is the quickest, quietest type ever introduced on a car of this class. You can shift silently in either direction between second and high at car speeds up to 45 miles an hour.

Come in and let us give you a demonstration that will show what performance means in terms of today's motoring.

TRADE-IN TIME IS HERE

OUR Big Fall Appraisal Campaign Is Now Going On

NEVER AGAIN will your car be worth as much as RIGHT NOW on a new Hudson Eight or a new Essex Super-Six . . . . .

LOOK—at these Generous Allowances

During 1931 there has been such a steadily increasing demand for previous Hudson and Essex models—and the cost of reconditioning such cars has been so low due to their rugged construction and built-in long life—that these models are now bringing higher prices. Consequently, these factors and our big Fall Appraisal Campaign permit us to give extraordinary, liberal trade-in allowances. For example—

Hudson
1928—We are allowing as high as $410 on some models of the 1928 series.
1929—Now in big demand. Our trade-in price as high as $600 on some body types.
1930—Some cars in the 1930 series are being taken in as high as $710.

Essex
1928—On many cars we are giving as high as $300 on trade-ins.
1929—Our price is as high as $400 allowance on a new Hudson or Essex.
1930—Trade-in allowance as high as $525 on some body styles.

GET OUR APPRAISAL TODAY!

Right now you can do one of two things—spend a lot of money on your present car fixing it up to drive this winter or you can take advantage of the maximum trade-in value of your car by buying a new Hudson 8 or Essex Super-Six during this Fall Appraisal Campaign.

Every dollar you spend on your present car is just so much thrown away as far as the trade-in value of your car is concerned. And the longer you keep your car, the less it will be worth when you do trade it in.

Trade-in time is here right now. Regardless of what make of car you are now driving, come in and get our appraisal. We will allow you the full buying power of your present car on any Hudson or Essex model in our stock. This includes the beautiful new De Luxe models as well as standard body types. At slight additional cost you can have Selective Free Wheeling and the Hudson-Essex "Startix" which automatically starts your motor and restarts it anytime, anywhere should it stall for any reason.

Don't delay! This offer is limited to a very short time only. Come in to-day and get our allowance on your present car.

Radio Trade Notes

Radiatron Dealers Told of Big Tube Market.

Dealers attending a meeting held by the RCA Radiatron Co. at Hotel Chase Thursday night were told of a tremendous tube replacement market and of the necessity of impressing listeners with the fact that programs are better than ever before and can be received better if tubes are replaced often enough to keep sets at an efficient operating point. They were advised to use outside canvassing and to make their stores and interiors attractive enough to bring customers inside and into contact with their tube departments. The Raditron Co. has a wealth of material to aid them in developing new tube business.

Speakers included George Isham from the Radiatron factory; Hays Clarke, district manager for the Central States; Ben Barber, Mid-West sales promotion manager, and C. H. Hunter, district manager.

New Sparton Sets in Wide Variety of Models.

The new Sparton receivers were shown to dealers Friday at a luncheon and meeting held by the E. J. Straus Radio Co., in its building at 2865 Locust boulevard. Merchandising plans were discussed by K. G. Lee, divisional sales manager for the Sparks-Withington Co.

The Sparton line ranges from midget and mantel type sets, police and motor car sets to eight and 10 tube sets and a 13-tube de luxe phonograph-radio combination. In additon, there is the Sparton Visionola home talkie machine.

The smallest receiver in the line has five tubes in a tuned radio frequency circuit. There is also a five-tube console model. Then there is a six-tube table type set, and a mantel receiver with a seven-tube superheterodyne chassis with pentode audio, variable-mu tubes and tone control.

Spartons with the eight-tube and larger chassis all have automatic volume control, as well as special tone control. The four largest models, having 10-tube and 13-tube chassis, are fitted with a new Lafoy automatic volume control in a special superheterodyne circuit called the "supersonne."

Silver-Marshall Builds Sets to Tune in Short Waves.

The trend toward interest among broadcast listeners in short wave programs is causing a number of radio manufacturers to build combination broadcast-short wave models or converters by which any broadcast receiver may be used to tune in short wave stations. Among these manufacturers is Silver-Marshall, Inc., Chicago, which makes both short wave converters and combination sets. With these, short wave stations in this country or Canada can be tuned in and under favorable circumstances foreign stations, such as 5CSW at Chelmsford, England, or PCJ, Holland, can be heard with speaker volume.

4-GANG CONDENSER

Only Zenette, among low-priced radios, has 4-gang condensers. Not even all high-priced radios have them. 4-gang condensers cut out annoying "cross-talk" and "riding-in". Before you buy any radio make sure it has a 4-gang condenser.

The extra condenser...the fourth in the gang...makes your low-priced Zenette super-heterodyne a real super-heterodyne. It makes it razor-sharp; washes its reception of "cross-talk" and "riding-in". Heretofore only some of the highest-priced radios had 4-gang condensers. ● Remember that you buy a radio for ENTERTAINMENT as well as looks...then make sure it has a 4-gang condenser. Get all that your money can buy...Get 25 percent more by buying a Zenette!

On Nov. 1 the chain broadcasting situation in Chicago will change materially. WGN will shift from part-time membership in the NBC networks to affiliation with the Columbia System, while WMAQ will go over to the NBC, which has acquired a part ownership of this 5000-watt station. WGN is to devote "a limited number of hours" to CBS programs, but the Chicago Tribune will continue to be sole owner and operator. When the shift goes into effect NBC programs will be broadcast by the following Chicago stations: WMAQ, WENR-WLS, KYW, WCFL and WIBO, while WGN, WBBM and WJJD will carry the CBS banner.

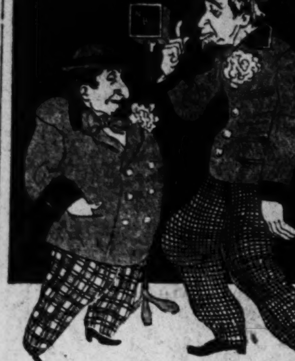
Suit for $500,000 damages has been filed against the Columbia Broadcasting System and the Buffalo Broadcasting Corporation by the Churchill Evangelistic Association, Inc., Buffalo, N. Y. The suit grows out of the decision of the Columbia System to discontinue all individual religious programs and to broadcast only programs sponsored by the Protestant, Catholic and Jewish church organizations. It was this decision that caused the Rev. Father Charles E. Coughlin to organize an independent chain to broadcast his Golden Hour of the Little Flower programs on Sundays. It was announced at the time by the Columbia System that there would be one exception to the putting of the new policy into immediate effect, as the Rev. Donald G. Barnhouse of the Tenth Presbyterian Church, Philadelphia, had a contract for broadcasting over the CBS chain that had some time to run. Incidentally, the Rev. Dr. Barnhouse has begun his fall and winter season on the CBS chain.



JOE WEBER and LEW FIELDS, who share with Rolfe's dance orchestra an hour on KSD and the WEAF chain three nights a week.

The Churchill Evangelistic Association for some time broadcast a weekly "Back Home Hour" Sunday nights over WKBW, Buffalo, and the CBS chain, including KMOX. The broadcasts were discontinued last April when control of WKBW passed from the association to the Buffalo Broadcasting Corporation. Now the association, in addition to the $500,000 suit, seeks an injunction to bar all CBS programs from stations of the Buffalo Broadcasting Corporation until these stations and the CBS put the Rev. Clinton H. Churchill's weekly "Back Home" hour back on the country-wide network again. The association alleges that it has a contract whereby the Back Home hour should be broadcast without charge by the Buffalo stations and by 30 stations in the CBS chain until November of next year. The $500,000 damages are sought as compensation for the time the Back Home hour has been off the CBS chain.

In its decision denying the plea of WIL, St. Louis, for full time on the 1200 kilocycle channel and permitting KFWF owned by the St. Louis Truth Center, to continue with plans for a downtown transmitter and studio, the Federal Radio Commission says: "While Station WIL offers a more diversified type of program than Station KFWF, it can not be concluded from this record that the program service of the latter station is such that the facilities of this station should be forfeited by reason thereof. (2) It is not shown by this record that Station WIL is in a better financial position to render meritorious service than KFWF. (3) Respondent (KFWF) has been authorized to make changes in the equipment of the station in order to comply with the regulations of this Commission. (4) The granting of this application would not serve the public interest, convenience or necessity."

The Commission also has denied WIL's motion to rescind a previous decision to permit KFWF to move its transmitter and studio to the Jefferson Hotel. The matter is still before the District of Columbia Courts on WIL's motion for an injunction to prevent the Commission from making effective its permit to KFWF to move to the Jefferson Hotel.

The petition of WTAD, at Quincy, Ill., for permission to move its transmitter and studios to the Murphy building, 234 Collinsville avenue, East St. Louis, has been ordered set for hearing by the Federal Radio Commision. WTAD is licensed on 1440 kilocycles.

Having purchased WGBS, New York, William Randolph Hearst, the publisher, is expected soon to acquire WCAE, Pittsburg. The New York station is the first in that city to come under the control of newspaper interests. It will be affiliated with Hearst's New York American, New York Journal and King Features Syndicate. The Pittsburg station probably will be affiliated with the Pittsburg Sun-Telegraph. Although Hearst newspapers in almost every case are closely affiliated with radio stations, the only stations which he is known to own or control are WISM of the Milwaukee News and WGBS. The call letters of the latter station may be changed to WINS, presumably standing for International News Service, the Hearst press association. Hearst also operates the Westinghouse-owned station, KYW, Chicago, under lease.

Morton Downey is reported to be getting $9000 a week out of radio and theater appearances. He and Boswell Sisters have just succeeded Kate Smith at the Palace Theater, in New York, where the latter had a record run of 11 weeks. . . . A new five-nights-a-week broadcast is billed on the CBS chain to start Nov. 2. Featuring an orchestra and several noted principals, it will be the first Columbia System commercial program put into competition with the WJZ chain's Amos and Andy, at 7 o'clock Eastern time. . . . Al Jolson is slated for some radio programs soon. . . . Little Jack Little is to continue on the WEAF chain, at least until the end of the year. . . . The Romancers Trio, with Paul Whiteman, are from Los Angeles, two of them having been members of the Biltmore Trio. . . . Toscha Seidel, violinist, will play the "Prize Song" from "Die Meistersinger" in a Wagner concert at 8 p. m. Thursday over the CBS chain. . . . Clara, Lu and Em got $2000 for a week in vaudeville in Chicago recently. . . . The Three Doctors are on a daily except Saturday and Sunday schedule in a new program on the WJZ chain, at 2.30 p. m. They are Russell Pratt, Ransome Sherman and Joseph Rudolph. . . . Arthur Tracy, starred by the CBS chain as "The Street Singer," will go aloft in a blimp for a program communication test from 2:45 to 3 o'clock tomorrow afternoon. He is to sing and accompany himself on an accordion.

Although it ranks high in number of families owning radio sets, Texas is low in the proportion of radio ownership, according to the census. Only 18.6 per cent of its families have radio-equipped homes.

Concert groups of the National Music League will give a series of programs over the WEAF chain, including KSD, from 3 to 3:30 Mondays, starting Oct. 26. The Brahms Quartet, the Roxy Male Quartet, Concert Trio, Recital Trio, Manhattan String Quartet, American Vocal Quartet and Woodwind Quartet are billed. . . . President Hoover's greeting to the Methodist Ecumenical Conference at Atlanta will be broadcast by the WJZ chain at 3:45 next Sunday. . . . Restoration of Monticello, home of Thomas Jefferson, will be celebrated in a broadcast at 3 p. m. Tuesday over the WEAF network, probably including KSD and WGN. . . . President Hoover will speak on a "college night" program to be broadcast Nov. 14. . . . A concert by the Rochester Philharmonic Orchestra will be broadcast by the WJZ chain at 2:30 Friday and also by short wave for Germany. Nine other concerts by this orchestra under famous conductors will go on the air in the same way. WLW is among stations scheduled. . . . Next Saturday at 7 o'clock, the WJZ chain will broadcast the first of a series of "Danger Fighters" dramatic programs based on Paul de Kruif's books, "Microbe Hunters" and "Hunger Fighters." Each program will be devoted to the invasion by some particular disease of human life. . . . The Ohio School of the Air has gone into session over WLW at 1 o'clock Monday, Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday afternoons.

Suits in the courts of this country, Mexico and Canada and international complications are predicted as XER, the 75,000-watt station which Dr. John F. Brinkley is operating on 735 kilocycles from Villa Acuna, Mexico, causes more and more interference with WSB, Atlanta, and Canadian stations on the 730 kc. channel.

Though it is admitted that the station has been built with Brinkley capital, its erection has been authorized by the Mexican Government and licensed to a Mexican corporation. This despite the fact that an official of the Mexican embassy was informed, when he made inquiries at the Federal Radio Commission some months ago, that Dr. Brinkley's radio license had been revoked by the commission, for carrying medical advice regarded as inimical to public health and contrary to public interest. Dr. Brinkley was defeated for Governor of Kansas by a narrow margin after using his station at Milford, Kan., as his campaign mouthpiece.

First of the international complications arises from Brinkley's announced intention to establish studios in American cities, and from them to pick up programs designed to attract an audience to which he will resume giving medical advice. He has been quoted as stating that he has completed arrangements for the necessary wire hookups between the station and his old home town of Milford, as well as Wichita, Oklahoma City, San Antonio and other Southwestern cities.

Since the American radio law designates the site of the studio as the locus of a station, it is probable that the Radio Commission through the Department of Justice will prosecute an action against Brinkley if he uses such studios. The commission now has this matter under the advisement of its legal division, but its members in the meantime have been outspoken in their conviction that something should be done about the Mexican station.

There is a question whether American law can apply to a station in Mexico, if that country has no similar law and is unwilling to recognize the American law. It is questionable whether the Brinkley wire transmissions, though plainly interstate commerce, can be halted on this side of the border, and Brinkley will probably go to the courts to maintain that they cannot.

The second complication arises out of the selection of a wave length for XER. Operating with such high power on 735 kilocycles, the station is only five kilocycles from the American clear channel of 740 kilocycles and the Canadian clear channel of 730 kilocycles, on both of which are 5000-watt stations owned by important newspapers. The normal separation between channels is 10 kilocycles.

The American station is WSB of the Atlanta Journal, and the Canadian station is CKAC of the Montreal La Presse. The Montreal newspaper is considerably concerned and has taken the matter up with Dominion officials. The American station, being so much nearer the site of XER, stands to suffer much more interference.

Dr. Brinkley is said to be planning to resume his "Medical Question Box" over the new station, giving advice to persons who describe their ailments to him by letter. According to his own testimony before the Radio Commission, he usually prescribed a medicine prepared by him and described to the ailing one by number. He had an arrangement with an association of druggists in Middle Western states, which he formed, whereby they distributed the medicine. It was this feature of his conduct of the station at Milford that evoked the chief criticism of the commission and the courts. At present, Dr. Brinkley has a suit for $5,000,000 pending against the Kansas City Star, which conducted the campaign which led to his removal from the air.

After assurances from officials of the Columbia System, the Associated Broadcasters of America have withdrawn the protest filed with the Federal Radio Commission against erection of a 250-watt booster station for the CBS chain in Washington. Objection had been made on the ground that it was the first step toward a country-wide system of booster stations and that it would result in the displacement of stations on the Columbia network. The Associated Broadcasters were informed that there had been unnecessary apprehension in this respect.

The idea that a receiver draws more current from the electric lines or from batteries when the volume control is turned up is mistaken. Erroneous also is the idea that tuning for distant stations puts more of a strain on a set than listening to nearby stations.

Gold Trophy Put Up for Steeplechase

New Race Attracts Many Out-of-Town Entries; Parties Planned Over Weekend.

A GOLD trophy, donated by members of the Bridlespur Hunt Club, and given for the first time this year, will be the chief award at the third annual steeplechase to be run over Huntleigh Downs, the grounds adjoining the clubhouse next Saturday. The cup, together with a purse of a thousand dollars, will go to the winner in the fourth race, to be known as the Mississippi Valley Gold Cup. The purse will be paid every year and the trophy will become the permanent possession of the owner who wins it three times, not necessarily in succession nor on the same horse. The Bridlespur Hunt Club, together with the Onwentsia Hunt Club in Chicago, and the Mission Valley Hunt Club in Kansas City, recently organized the Mississippi Valley Hunt Club Association.

Members of the St. Louis organization in Huntleigh Village, through its reception committee, are making arrangements for the entertainment of out-of-town guests who will be here later this week to attend the meeting. Invitations have been sent for a stag dinner to be given Thursday night and the hunt ball following the races Saturday night. Acceptances have already been received from Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin Leslie Beh of Lake Forest, Ill., who will be guests of Mr. and Mrs. Theodore Gale Barstow; Mr. and Mrs. Austin H. Niblack, Chicago, and Col. Her an Flodstrom of the Swedish cavalry and Prince Cantacuzene who are in Chicago at present. Col. Flodstrom will ride Flit, a horse owned by August A. Other guests will be Mr. and Mrs. Mitchell Wallis Jr., Racine, Wis., and Mr. and Mrs. Warrell Clarkson of White Bear Lake, Minn. Most of them have entries in the races and will be here to school their horses before Saturday. Mrs. Andrew W. Johnson and Mrs. Louis A. Hager Jr., who will present the trophies to the winners, will assist in the entertaining.

At 3 o'clock this afternoon members of the Bridlespur Club will give their own horses their last schooling over the course, and those interested may attend.

Next Sunday there will be a special drag hunt for the out-of-town guests. Mr. Niblack, who is master of the fox hounds at the Onwentsia Club, will act as honorary master, and Mr. Nafziger, master of the hounds at Mission Valley, will be acting field master. The hunt will start early in the morning from the home of Mr. and Mrs. George S. Tiffany, near Chesterfield, Mo., and will return there for a hunt breakfast afterwards.

Of the 12 horses entered in the Mississippi Valley Gold Cup, one of the best known is Maitland, owned by Mr. Niblack and ridden by Eric W. L. Atterbury, famous gentleman rider, who has won in England, Ireland, France and Australia. Maitland ran third at Nashville, Tenn., last year to the great Alligator, said to be the best brush horse in this country, and was one of three out of 17 starters to finish. Maitland won the Onwentsia Hunt Cup in Chicago last week over a soggy, perilous course.

Miss Chapman Makes Debut At 'Kid Party'

Debutantes Romp in Bellerive Country Club, Transformed Into a Big Playhouse.

THE debutantes discarded their recently acquired dignity Friday night and, dressed for the part, romped like the children they really are in a fascinating playhouse built into the Bellerive Country Club for Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin G. Chapman Jr., 58 Kingsbury place, as a setting for the debut party and a birthday celebration for their younger daughter, Miss Jaquelin.

Equipped with dolls and doll buggies, rubber balls and even teething rings, adding to the wealth of toys provided for them, they trooped in, little girls and little boy escorts, to spend an evening with a playmate.

They passed through the great reception hall garlanded with smilax and filled with tall wicker baskets of scarlet dahlias. That was a garden, with interesting nursery figure signs directing them to the "childrens' entrance" to the house proper, an entrance which proved to be a black covered tunnel at the end of which the youthful guests climbed steps and slid precipitately into the lounge of the clubhouse and hilariously greeted the debutante and her parents. At the signal for dinner the little remaining restraint was forgotten and the first course was served to the concerted beating of 175 pink-faced rattles that sounded like African tom-toms.

Decorations in the dining room, continuing the theme of the party, presented a colorful picture. The ceiling was covered by hundreds of bright balloons, their ribbons within easy reach of capricious diners. The table, a great horse shoe for the debutantes and their escorts, a long one for the second year girls, and a small one for Mr. and Mrs. Chapman and a group of their friends, bore many evidences of a children's party. Mother Goose figures cut from heavy paper and painted, emerged from pink rose Jack Horner pies. Pink candles nestled in silver leaves which adorned silver holders. At intervals doll cinderellas, dressed in pink and silver, sat in pink paper pumpkin chariots and drove white rubber mice over myrtle leaves to their own coming-out dances. As in the fairy tale, midnight proved disastrous, for the mice were used as noise-makers and the cinderellas were sorry figures.

The real play room was the East living room, depicting an out-of-door recreation yard. Toys of every description filled the available space. There were swings, sand boxes and kiddie coops, tricycles and kiddie cars, a wigwam, in which to play Indian and wagons to putt about. There were enormous rubber balls, Raggedy Anns and Raggedy Andys and squeeky see-saws which soon proved popular. Imitation grass covered hardwood floors in this lavish al fresco nursery and a great silver crystal sat sedately on its pedestal in the center. Growing trees encircled the room and tables and chairs under striped umbrellas provided real comfort for the merrymakers.

At intervals during the dinner and between dances wagon loads of girls pulled by energetic youths in whoopee socks and shorts whirled by at top speed, often narrowly averting collisions with boys on kiddie cars. Six feet tall babies trying vainly to propel themselves in long dresses, dancing with tiny rompered misses, stopped for a turn at the slide or to obligingly push a swing. Many a reveler was almost upset by indiscriminate ball players toying with colored water balls.

As to the costumes, there were prim little girls in starched dresses and neat little boys in Oliver Twist suits, tomboys in knickers, sailors and nurse maids and their charges, one with a mustache and an enormous frilled bonnet tied under a well-shaved chin.

Miss Chapman chose for her own costume a Kate Greenaway frock of the period made popular by the woman for whom it was named in her children's fashions of a few decades ago. Blue organdie veiled pink satin and the rather short waisted bodice with tiny puffed sleves was tied with a sash of pink and blue satin ribbon. The skirt was long and full and she carried her hat, a large leghorn, reversed and filled with pink roses, tied to her wrist with broad blue streamers.

One of the guests was Jack Barrymore Colt, son of the famous Ethel Barrymore, who appeared at a St. Louis theater last week. The Veiled Prophet Queen, Miss Ann Ferriss, wore a romper suit of flowered voile with her long hair held by ribbon bows. Miss Marjorie Capen looked like a little girl dressed up for her first party in white dotted Swiss with Irish lace inserts, and pink hair ribbon. Miss Mary Lucas Hart

Miss Erle Hall Harsh Marries J. Y. Lund

THE marriage of Miss Erle Hall Harsh, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Harsh of Geyer road, and Joel Yowell Lund, son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert L. Lund, 5968 West Cabanne place, took place last night at the St. Louis Women's Club before a large gathering of friends and relatives. The ceremony was performed before a temporary altar of smilax and button chrysanthemums built in the bay window enclosure in the east drawing room, to which the bridal party walked through a satin ribbon aisle. The Rev. George A. Campbell of the Union Avenue Christian Church read the service by candle light.

The bride was attended by her sister, Miss Betty Harsh, as maid of honor, and by Mr. Lund's debutante sister, Miss Dorothy Lund, as bridesmaid. They wore taffeta frocks. Miss Harsh was in shell pink, and Miss Lund in turquoise blue, designed in mode of 1870 with square necked bodices from which shoulder straps crossed to form a low-cut back. The flared circular skirts were partly covered by short aprons edged with pleating caught up and tied to the waistlines at the back in bustle effects. They wore satin slippers to match their gowns and carried snapdragon and roses. The bride's gifts to her attendants were old gold clips and earrings of gold and pearls, which they wore.

The bride was given in marriage by her father. She was gowned in ivory satin made on close fitting lines with circular fullness from the knees, extending into a long train. The bodice was crossed in a surplice from front to back revealing deep V inserts of rose point lace. There were long mous-

Sally Crosby Wed To Z. Lyle Brown

THE marriage of Miss Sally Hardeman Crosby, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Howard W. Crosby of Kirkwood, to Z. Lyle Brown, son of Mr. and Mrs. Zara E. Brown of Holton, Kan., took place Wednesday evening at the Kirkwood Methodist Church, with the Rev. Thomas Lord officiating.

The bride was given in marriage by her father. She wore a gown of ivory satin made on princess lines with long sleeves. A court train of the satin was attached at the waist line. Around the shoulders was a short mantilla of Chantilly lace that had been used for wedding ceremonies in her family for four generations. The veil was fastened to the coiffure with two small sprays of orange blossoms and she wore a short face veil of old lace. Instead of a bouquet she carried a white prayer book with a marker of lilies of the valley.

The maid of honor, Miss Nancy Buell Crosby, sister of the bride, wore an Empire gown of crepe in a Spanish tile shade, and carried an arm bouquet of deep yellow chrysanthemums. The bridesmaids, Miss Jean Russell, Miss Eleanor Walker, Mrs. Charles Malcolm Hamilton and Mrs. John D. McEwan, wore gowns similar to that of the maid of honor, in canary yellow, orange and bronze. The bodices were designed with deep collars crossing to form V necklines, and tied at the back. At the V in front were fastened porcelain medallions.

Mr. Brown had as his best man John D. McEwan. Dr. O. E. Seabaugh, Robert C. Lloyd, William V. Vallett, Robert H. Smith, Charles Malcolm Hamilton and Evans Crosby were groomsmen. The two small flower girls were De France Crosby, sister of the bride, and Townsend Hardeman, a cousin.

A reception at the home of the bride's parents for 200 guests followed the ceremony.

After the wedding trip, Mr. and Mrs. Brown will return to Kirkwood, where they have taken a house at 412 South Clay avenue.

Out-of-town guests included Mr. and Mrs. Brown, parents of the bridegroom; Mr. and Mrs. C. J. Kaul of St. Joseph, Mo., and Mr. and Mrs. L. L. Bottsford of Akron, O.

Miss Shilkee Weds F. W. Jameson Jr.

AT a candle service last night in the First Congregational Church, Webster Groves, Miss Elizabeth Shilkee, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Shilkee, 405 West Swon avenue, Webster Groves, became the bride of Frederick William Jameson Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Frederick William Jameson of Wilmette, Ill.

The church was decorated with palms, ferns and baskets of chrysanthemums. Candelabra illuminated the front of the church, while the bridal party passed through a candle-lit center aisle. The Rev. George M. Gibson Jr. officiated.

The bride was preceded to the altar by Miss Virginia Ingamells, maid of honor, who wore beige satin fitted to the knees, where a flare of the same material was introduced. Her sleeveless bodice was designed with a deep cowl neckline held in place by a jeweled ornament. She wore brown sandals and gloves to match, and carried a bouquet of talisman roses and bittersweet. The bridesmaids, Miss Marian Lincoln, Miss Virginia Leigh Cook, Miss Katherine Drescher and Miss Kathleen Barker, wore satin of different tones. Miss Lincoln's gown was yellow, and she carried bronze chrysanthemums. Miss Cook wore blue and carried chrysanthemums of the same color. Miss Barker was gowned in pink, and her bouquet was of lavender chrysanthemums. Miss Drescher's gown was chartreuse-colored satin and her bouquet of chrysanthemums to harmonize.

The bride was gowned in deep ivory satin designed simply, with no trimming and modelled after the empress silhouette. The skirt, close-fitting to the knees and flaring to the floor, depended from a deep V-shaped bodice and ended in a rosepoint lace and tulle train. There were long sleeves. She wore a strand of crystal and pearls, a gift of the bridegroom. The bridal veil of ivory tulle was arranged from a madonna cap with a narrow chin strap. Her flowers were lilies of the valley.

The bridegroom'r cousin, Charles Edward Gordon of Leavenworth, Kan., served as best man. William Knipe and Charles Snyder, Leavenworth; James N. Snyder, Kansas City, and Joseph Nolan Jr. were groomsmen. The parents of the bride entertained at their home with a supper for the bridal party, following the ceremony.

Mr. Knese and his bride will make their home in Cincinnati, O.

The marriage of Miss Myra Littmann, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edgar Littmann, 5601 Waterman avenue, to Lawrence I. Cohen, son of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel C. Cohen of Chicago, took place last Monday at Westwood Country Club. Mrs. Robert Lustgarten of Chicago, sister of the bridegroom, was matron of honor. Her gown was made of coral velvet. The maids of honor, Miss Myra Solomon, Chicago, and Mrs. Joseph Corn, wore lace gowns of rose and peach tones. Miss Carol Littmann, sister of the bride, was bridesmaid, and wore yellow taffeta. All of the women in the bridal party carried chrysanthemums in gold and bronze colors. Dorothy Rossen and Marjorie Freund were ribbon bearers.

The bride wore her mother's wedding gown of ivory satin and rose point lace molded to the figure, with a long satin train. A court train of rose point lace was fastened to her shoulders with orange blossoms. She wore a tulle veil arranged from a cap of rose point and bordered with more of the same lace, a gift from her grandmother.

Ellis Littmann, brother of the bride, was best man, and the ushers were Berthold Harris and Julius Manaster of Chicago. There were about 35 out-of-town guests. A reception followed the ceremony.

Mr. and Mrs. Cohen sailed yesterday on the Franconia for a wedding trip to Bermuda.

Miss Mercer Catlett of Staunton, Va., was married to Mr. Willis Kellogg, son of Mrs. John C. Salter, 5389 Pershing avenue, which took place yesterday afternoon at 5 o'clock at Trinity Episcopal Church in Staunton. The bridegroom had as his best man his brother, Marion Kellogg of New York, also formerly of St. Louis.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. Charles Catlett of Staunton, Va.

Mr. Kellogg, a graduate of the Virginia Military Institute, has for the past few years made his home in Phoenix, Ariz.

Mr. and Mrs. Kellogg left immediately following the reception for a short motor trip.

They will be the guests of Dr. and Mrs. Salter for a few days this week, before leaving for Phoenix, where they will make their home.

The marriage of Miss Ontamenia Coates, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Coates, 420 Summit avenue, Webster Groves, and Richard Hassell, took place Wednesday, Oct. 7, at the home of the bride's parents. The Rev. Dr. J. Courtney Jones, former rector of the Episcopal Church of Webster, performed the ceremony. Mr. and Mrs. Hassell will make their home in Webster Groves.

The wedding of Miss Margaret E. Dayball, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William F. Dayball, 5007 Devonshire avenue, and Charles Hoffmann, son of Mrs. Dora Hoffmann, 4408 Holly avenue, took place yesterday morning at 1 o'clock. Following the ceermony a dinner was served at Hotel Kings-Way.

Mr. and Mrs. Hoffmann have departed for a honeymoon in the South, and will visit Asheville, N. C. On their return they will live at 4970A Eichelberger avenue.

The wedding of Miss Ruth Schopfer, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Oscar C. Schopfer, 829 Bates street, to Roy J. Harris, son of Mrs. Sarah M. Harris of Excelsior Springs, Mo., will take place quietly this afternoon at the Carondelet Presbyterian Church, the Rev. William D. Johnson officiating. Miss Ethel Schopfer will be maid of honor, and Peter B. Manion Jr., best man. A reception will follow at the Schopfer home. Following a brief honeymoon, Mr. Harris and his bride will live at 22 North Meramec street, Clayton.

Mr. Harris attended the University of Illinois and is a member of Beta Psi. He is a member of the Post-Dispatch staff.

Miss Dorothy Moore, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur C. Moore, 4043 Cleveland avenue, became the bride of William J. Savage Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. William J. Savage of Alexandria, La., yesterday morning at 10 o'clock at the Union Methodist Episcopal Church, the Rev. Dr. W. E. Bell performing the ceremony. The pair departed after the ceremony for a motor tour to Nebraska and will live in Omaha.

The marriage of Miss Minnie Myrtle Beggs of Springfield, Ill., to William H. Waltman, 6263 Delmar boulevard, took place yesterday at 4 p. m., in the Wesley Methodist Episcopal Church, Springfield. The bride's father, the Rev. S. W. Beggs, performed the ceremony.

Mr. Waltman and his bride will make their home at 6263 Delmar boulevard, after Nov. 1.

Mr. and Mrs. William Glicker, 728 Yale avenue, announce the engagement of their daughter, Miss Edith, to Sol Wolff, son of Mr. and Mrs. Sam Wolff, 5917 Maple avenue.

Mr. and Mrs. Louis Maltz, 4527 Lewis place, announce the marriage of their daughter, Miss Frances, to Herman Lief, Sunday, Oct. 11. The ceremony took place at noon, and was followed by a wedding breakfast at Hotel Chase. The pair will make their home at 6734 Clayton road after Nov. 1.

Mr. and Mrs. M. Holtzman, 4738A Vernon avenue, announce the engagement of their daughter, Miss Frieda, to Al Melnick, son of Mr. and Mrs. S. Melnick.

might have been a Lord Fauntleroy out for a lark, or a Buster Brown, in boy's clothes and hat and a long red coat. Miss Mary D. Shipley wore an attractive lace trimmed blue pinafore with sunbonnet to match, and Miss Caroline Kennard was a nurse maid wheeling a doll buggy in which sat her doll baby.

Boys were often mistaken for girls in curled wigs, bonnets and skirts. Some even wore hair ribbons and carried their own toys. Miss Betty Meston had on the net dress in which she played in a piano recital at the age of 10, and Miss Mary Coit Day was a petite figure in ruffled blue and white checkered frock with short knickers. Miss Eleanor Hoblitzelle wore her blonde hair curled tightly in old-fashioned finger curls and a short white ruffled frock. Calhoun Jones transformed himself into a young miss wearing yellow rompers and a yellow bow tied to black wig curls. Miss Peggy Pirrung was in ruffled organdie and Miss Margaret Vieths was a tall baby in long clothes. Miss Virginia Cave wore abbreviated pink rompers and Miss Sara Benoist, her curly blonde hair caught with blue, was attired in a blue voile frock of the wide bertha variety which has regained its popularity.

Miss Erle Harsh Weds J. Y. Lund

quetaire sleeves. She wore a veil of ivory tulle arranged from a coronet of rose point lace, held at the back with a spray of orange blossoms. She carried gardenias and lilies of the valley.

William Lund was his brother's best man, and George Jr. and William Harsh, brothers of the bride, Arthur Koelle and Fred Niemeyer, were ushers.

The wedding party held a reception in the lounge of the clubhouse where lilies and greenery were combined as the decorations. The table in the dining room had a centerpiece of lilies of the valley and white roses, surrounded by silver candelabra holding white tapers. Mr. Lund presented silver cigarette boxes to his attendants.

Mr. and Mrs. Lund have gone to Hot Springs, Va., on their wedding trip and will make their home at 7625 Wydown boulevard.

The bride was graduated from Mary Institute and attended Washington University. Mr. Lund is a graduate of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, class of 1923, and is a member of the University Club.

AT JEFFERSON BARRACKS

—Items of Social Interest From the Army Post

CAPT. AUBREY J. BASSETT departed Wednesday for Fort Meyer, Virginia, accompanying the Machine Gun Troop of the 10th Cavalry, to that station. This unit formerly was stationed at Fort Hauchuca, Ariz. Capt. Bassett will return to Jefferson Barracks.

Col. Pegram Whitworth returned from Chicago Wednesday after a visit of several days. He has been attending a conference of Citizens' Military Training Camp Commanders.

Lieut. Stuart R. James of the Infantry Reserve, has reported for active duty and has been assigned to Company E.

Members of the Army Nurse Corps, stationed on the post, entertained in honor of Col. and Mrs. Charles F. Morse at a bridge dinner Friday.

Capt. and Mrs. Arthur G. Hutchinson, accompanied by Vincent Tiefenbrum of St. Louis, who won the Crowell trophy at the national rifle matches held at Camp Perry, O., this past summer, motored to Chicago Friday. They will be the guests the of Maj. and Mrs. B. E. Bowen. Before returning to Jefferson Barracks they will visit Maj. and Mrs. Arthur R. Underwood in Champaign, Ill.

Mrs. Joseph P. Catte entertained at a bridge tea Friday in honor of Mrs. Clifford D. Overfelt, who, with Capt. Overfelt, will depart soon for their new station in Hawaii.

Col. and Mrs. Charles F. Morse were the guests of Col. and Mrs. Reasoner of Alton Wednesday night.

Mrs. William H. Arnold entertained Mrs. Gardner Flint, Mrs. G. O. Broun, Mrs. Woodson K. Woods and Mrs. Max Starkloff, all of St. Louis, at luncheon Saturday.

Capt. and Mrs. Sherman P. Walker entertained the following guests at dinner Monday evening: Mr. and Mrs. Charlton Alexander, Mr. and Mrs. George Logan and Mr. and Mrs. Owen Mitchell.

Col. and Mrs. Pegram Whitworth, Mrs. William E. Brougher and Miss Doris Brougher had dinner with the officers of the First Battalion at Lambert Field, Friday evening.

Mrs. Oswaldo de la Rosa and her small son Louis, Mrs. John T. Westermeier and Mrs. Roy K. Kauffman spent the week-end in Ferguson where their husbands were in camp with the First Battalion.

Mrs. Arnold M. Reeve entertained at a bridge luncheon Thursday in honor of Mrs. Charles F. Morse and Mrs. Clifford D. Overfelt.

Mrs. Edward L. Trett and her small son Teddy will depart Monday for a week's visit with her sister, Mrs. S. B. Harry of Indianapolis, Ind.

Mr. and Mrs. G. R. Miller of Chicago were week-end guests of Col. and Mrs. Charles F. Morse.

Delphian Chapters.

The Spirit of St. Louis Delphian Chapter will meet Thursday at 2 p. m. in the Kings-Way Hotel.

Fidelis Delphian Chapter will observe its charter signing Tuesday evening at Hotel Kings-Way.

Dinner will be served at 7, followed by a program depicting the "Traditional View of Delphian."

"The Symbols of Our Cover Page" will be given by Mrs. B. A. Beckham, president; "The Oracle of Delphi" by Miss Marie Chitwood; an allegory, "An Evening on Mount Olympus" will be portrayed by Miss Mabel Bruns, seeker; Miss Lucile Schroer, Oracle of Delphi; Miss Wilmine Giesler, leader of the band of "What's-the-Use"; Miss Lillian Sagorske and Mrs. Thelma Young, keepers of the Fires of Time. The program is under the direction of Mrs. R. Monroe Fredeking, Delphian supervisor. Music will be furnished by Misses Vera J. Wiess, Mabel Bruns and Mrs. Elsa Cass.

Invitations have been issued to Mrs. Richard E. Heinrichs, president of the Delphian Council of St. Louis; Mrs. Emily Ruth Wright, Delphian supervisor, council officers and presidents of the 22 chapters of the city.

Alpha Delphian will meet tomorrow at 2 p. m. in the library of Kingshighway Presbyterian Church. The president, Mrs. E. H. Sager, will review the last lesson, Ibsen's social dramas. The leader of the day, Mrs. H. T. Miller, will introduce the speakers, who will demonstrate the method of play-building, using "The Wild Duck" as an example. The story of the plot will be given by Mrs. F. H. Barrington; the technique of the plot by Mrs. R. C. Bridges; use of dramatic devices by Mrs. G. B. Lindsay; characters and incidents by Mrs. Evelyn Heerich; the theme and symbolism of the play by Mrs. W. H. Dickey, and study of the dialogue by Mrs. B. A. Thompson.

Doctor's THREE RULES
Big Help to Constipation

WHAT a joy to have the bowels move like clockwork, every day! It's easy, if you mind these simple rules of a famous old doctor:

1. Drink a big tumblerful of water before breakfast, and several times a day.
2. Get plenty of outdoor exercise without unduly fatiguing yourself.
3. Try for a movement at exactly the same hour daily.

Everyone's bowels need help at times, but the thing to use is Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin. You'll get a thorough cleaning out, and it won't leave you weak and uncomfortable. This family doctor's prescription is just fresh laxative herbs, pure pepsin and other mild ingredients that could not hurt even a child. But how it wakes up those lazy bowels; How good you feel with your system rid of all that poisonous waste matter.

Clean up that coated tongue, sweeten that unpleasant breath, and get rid of those bilious headaches. Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin will soon free the bowels from waste. You'll eat better and sleep better, and feel better all over. Generous bottles at all drugstores.

DR. W. B. CALDWELL'S
SYRUP PEPSIN
A Doctor's Family Laxative

Kirkwood

MR. AND MRS. HENRY C. WALKER, 316 North Taylor avenue, have as their guests for the week-end Miss Lillian, Miss Harriet and Miss Hazel Nutt of Whittier, Cal., who are motoring to Ohio for a visit with relatives.

Mrs. Herman Gross, 516 South Kirkwood road, arrived home last week from a six weeks' stay in California with her husband Lieut. Herman Gross, U. S. N.

Mrs. James R. Thursby, South Clay and Woodbine avenue, and Mrs. James Nash of Webster Groves are spending several days in Kansas City attending the Eastern Star convention. Mr. Thursby departed Friday by motor for Kansas City to join Mrs. Thursby and Mrs. Nash, who will return to Kirkwood with him today.

Mr. and Mrs. A. B. Crowe of University City have disposed of their home there and have taken an apartment in the Colonial, Argonne drive and Taylor avenue.

Miss Emily Boyd, daughter of Mrs. Josephine Drake Boyd, 630 North Taylor avenue, entertained members of the cast of "She Stoops to Conquer," at a buffet supper following the final performance Thursday evening. Miss Mary Broderick is president of the Little Theater Group that presented the play.

The first dance of the season of the Kirkwood Junior Fortnightly Dancing Club was given last evening at the Studio Guild. The hours were from 7:30 to 9:30 and the chaperons were Mrs. John D'Arcy, Mrs. Edward Beecher, Mrs. Walter Skinner and Mrs. George Jackman.

Mrs. Frank H. Morgan, 700 North Taylor avenue, will be the hostess at a meeting of the Kirkwood Flower Club Monday afternoon.

Mrs. Floyd Bates, 445 North Harrison avenue, will entertain Tuesday at a bridge luncheon for Mrs. Mark Alexander of Tampa, Fla., who is the guest of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Edward Brown of Webster Groves.

Max Good Jr. of Flagstaff, Ari., is visiting his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Max Good, 222 East Jefferson avenue.

Miss Georgiana McLaughlin of Evanston, Ill., will arrive this week for a visit of several days with Mr. and Mrs. George Jackman, 735 North Kirkwood road. Miss McLaughlin will take part in the musical play, the "Gypsy's Quest," to be presented next Friday and Saturday evenings by the Kirkwood Choral Club.

Mrs. Marshall McCarthy, Sappington and Monroe avenue, has gone to Stockbridge, Mass., for a stay of several weeks. During her absence her young daughter, Eleanor, will be with her uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. Walter Clarke, 211 South Woodlawn avenue.

The board of directors, St. Louis County League of Women Voters, will meet Tuesday morning at the home of the county president, Mrs. D. E. Horton, 7 Algonquin lane, Webster Groves. Plans will be discussed for the forming of study groups in sections of the county where there is no league.

The Rev. and Mrs. H. H. Johnson, who have been residing in St. Louis for several years, have returned to Kirkwood and are now located at 218 East Washington avenue.

Mr. and Mrs. H. L. Higgins, 645 Scott avenue, and their daughter, Betty, have been spending several days at Kentland, Ind., where they were called because of the death of Mr. Higgins' father.

Mr. and Mrs. Frederick W. Hoyt, 437 South Kirkwood road, have as their guest for a fortnight Mrs. Hoyt's sister, Miss Elizabeth Andrews of Washington, D. C.

The Rev. Thomas L. Small of Christ Church Cathedral will occupy the pulpit at both services of Grace Episcopal Church today. The former rector, the Rev. Francis J. Bloy, with Mrs. Bloy, left Thursday for their new home at La Jolla, Cal. They were accompanied by their daughter, Miss Dulcie Bloy.

The Week at the Town Club.

Organization of group activities, the annual fire-lighting ceremony and the semiannual business meeting will be on the program for this week at the Town Club.

Tomorrow at 3 o'clock Mrs. T. M. Sayman, club president, will touch a flame to the logs in the lounge fireplace symbolizing the welcome that awaits Town Club members after the vacation season. A program of songs and vacation experiences will be given in connection with the ceremony.

Under the direction of Miss Mignon Rosenthal, a drama group will be organized Tuesday evening. This group will represent the club in the Drama League and provide study of plays and play-giving for the members.

A supper for junior members, a classification recently added to the club membership, will be arranged Wednesday evening. In addition to other group activities, a class in tap dancing will be organized.

Thursday evening will be devoted to a discussion of the business affairs of the club, the semiannual meeting taking place on that date. Plans will also be discussed for the presentation of the Maharajah of Burdwan, who will speak Thursday evening, Nov. 19, in the Jefferson Hotel under Town Club auspices. The Maharajah is reigning Prince of India and will come direct from the Conference in London to talk on the present situation in that country.

Miss Adaline Ruenzi in a talk on "Work With the Blind," and Miss Geneva Koenker, dramatic soprano, will share a program open to members and guests on Friday evening.

EVENTS AND TOPICS AMONG WOMEN'S CLUBS

THE Wednesday Club program for next Wednesday includes one section meeting and a business meeting.

The dramatic study section, of which Mrs. Luther Avon Blue Jr. is chairman and Mrs. Walter J. Knight, vice chairman, will hold its opening meeting. This section has chosen as the general subject for study for the year "New Formulae for the Drama of Tomorrow." Mrs. Ray A. Burns, leader for the day, will present Miss Margaret Ewing of the dramatic department of John Burroughs School, whose subject will be "The Audiences of the Future." Mrs. Everett W. Pattison will speak on "Plays seen this summer on the Continent," after which Mrs. Frederick J. Taussig will give an account of the first performance of the New York Theater Guild this season.

Business meeting will be held later. The usual afternoon tea will be served at 4:30, following the meeting.

Study class in fundamentals of expressive speech, conducted by Mrs. Willard Bartlett, meets the second and third Tuesdays of the month at 10:30 a. m. The next meeting will be Tuesday, and will be open to members of the Wednesday Club.

The next regular meeting of the Monday Club will be held tomorrow afternoon at 2 o'clock in charge of the current literature group. The program will include piano selections by Mrs. Roy Rucker, and a review by the Rev. George M. Gibson og Willa Cather's "Shadows on the Rock."

Wednesday those who will take part in the Monday Club Chorus will meet in the auditorium at 9:30 a. m. Mrs. David Kriegshaber will be the new conductor.

The meeting of the Music and Drama group will begin at 10:30 a. m. on Wednesday. Percival Chubb will discuss the "Relation of Music and Literature, Poetry and Drama."

The art exhibit by Charles B. Galt held in the Club Building will be open to the public Monday evening. Galt will be present from 7:30 to 10.

The Tercentenary Shakspeare Society will present Dr. Robert Hall Atchison in a lecture tomorrow at 2 p. m. in Vandervoort's auditorium. His subject will be "Love's Labor Lost Applied to Life." Shakspeare songs arranged by Madame Clara E. Thoms and sung by Miss Marjorie Ammon, Miss Agnes Vogler, Miss Hilda de Mello and Jack Coleman will be given. At 1 o'clock the regular study class will meet under the leadership of the president, Miss Agnes Ruth Hoffinger.

Mrs. David Hoover of Joplin, Mo., state president of the American Association of University Women in Missouri, will be honor guest at a formal dinner to be given by the St. Louis College Club Friday night, at 6:30 o'clock at the club house, 5428 Delmar boulevard.

Other guests will be Mrs. Otto Ruhl of Joplin, Mrs. Marshall E. Ford of Maryville and members of the State Board. Following the dinner, Mrs. Ruhl, State International Relations Committee chairman, will make a short talk. Mrs. Ford will explain briefly the work that the Fellowship Committee has been doing in Missouri. A musicale will also be given. Mrs. Harry Collins will entertain the members of the State Board and the local board at a luncheon at her home Saturday.

Tuesday afternoon, at 3:30 p. m., Willa Cather's new novel, "Shadows on the Rock," will be compared with a former novel of hers, "Death Comes to the Archbishop," by Rev. Dr. George Gibson, pastor of the First Congregational Church of Webster Groves. The hostesses will be Miss Helen Koch and Dr. Kate Spain. Assisting them will be Dr. Francis L. Bishop and Miss Charlotte Lomax of Western College and Mrs. John B. Edwards and Mrs. Edgar Swift of Wellesley College.

INFORMATION supplied by correspondents should be typewritten, whenever possible, and always double spaced. Wide spacing, whether in hand writing or type writing, is most important. Specify dates, rather than days of the week, and give names and addresses with complete accuracy.

Wednesday afternoon, Oct. 31, at 3:30 o'clock, the French Study Group will meet at the clubhouse. M. George de la Roche will speak on the subject, "Epude des grands ecrivains francais."

Members and guests have been invited.

The Amacitia Club will give a bridge party Tuesday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Nellie Rose, 3802 Castleman avenue. The purpose of this party is to raise funds for Christmas baskets given by the club.

The Classical Club of St. Louis began its activities for the year with a luncheon at Hosmer Hall, 6584 Wydown boulevard, yesterday afternoon, at 12:30 o'clock. Addresses of greeting were given by representatives of St. Louis and Washington universities and other educational institutions. Prof. Thomas S. Duncan of Washington University gave an address on "The Beginnings of Greek Comedy." William C. Korfmacher of St. Louis University, president of the organization, introduced the speakers. The other officers are: Miss Lillian Heltzel of Central High School, vice president; Miss Hazel L. Tompkins of Cleveland High School, secretary; James Duffy of Washington University, treasurer; Prof. Duncan and Miss Ellen Craig of Hosmer Hall, members of the executive committee.

Roosevelt High School Mothers' Circle will meet Friday, at 3 p. m., in the school library. Dr. Willis H. Reals, professor of secondary education at Washington University, will discuss "Parent Education," which is the topic of the month. Mrs. Guy Randall, president of the Circle, will report on the State convention of the Parent-Teacher Association, held in Columbia recently.

The St. Louis Parliamentary Law Club will hold its regular meeting tomorrow at 10 a. m. in Vandervoort's auditorium. Mrs. J. J. O'Reilly, president, will preside, and Mrs. N. P. Zimmer will conduct the parliamentary instruction.

The Cheer Club has arranged for a sale of cake, candy and jelly to be held Saturday, at 3187 South Grand boulevard. The proceeds will be used for charity. Mrs. Henry Roettger has charge of the sale.

Daleth Delphian Chapter will meet Friday at the Melbourne Hotel. Prof. O. Wade Fallert will speak on the "Beginning and Development of Music."

The Century Boat Club will give its opening dinner dance Saturday evening. The harvest dance will be given Nov. 25.

The Twentieth Century Art Club held its first meeting of the season Monday afternoon. The program for the club year was planned by Mrs. Sam Myerson and her committee and will be the study of old world museums. A. Blair Ridington was the speaker. A social hour followed.

The Stephens College Club will meet Wednesday at the home of Mrs. W. C. Markham, 3940 Russell avenue, with Mrs. A. F. Barnes assisting. The program will consist of talks on travel in the United States, Alaska and South America by Mrs. Markham, Mrs. C. W. Herald and Mrs. W. G. Brownlee.

The Mallinckrodt School Mothers' Circle held its monthly meeting Thursday at the school. Mrs. Ethel Ross, drawing supervisor, gave a talk on art in the public schools, which was illustrated with samples of pupils' work. A social hour followed.

The new officers are: Mrs. O. H. Bill, president; Mrs. E. T. Smith, first vice president; Mrs. John A. Hope, second vice president; Mrs. William J. Goldsworthy, recording secretary; Mrs. James C. Crowdus, corresponding secretary; Mrs. Charles H. Seay, treasurer; Mrs. Audrey Echols, registrar, and Mrs. W. N. McConkin, historian.

The directors are Mrs. R. P. Williams, retiring president; Mrs. George P. Atkins, Mrs. Julia Jones and Mrs. J. P. Moore.

Barr Study Unit will hold its regular meeting tomorrow at 10:30 a. m. at Hotel Saum, 1919 South Grand boulevard, with Mrs. Mary A. Butler as hostess.

Luncheon will be served at 12:30, followed by a business meeting. Mrs. A. J. Burr presiding. Immediately following the meeting a program, the subject of which is "Montaigne," will be conducted by Mrs. R. E. Schlueter.

Cornelia Greene Chapter, Daughters of the American Revolution, met Wednesday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Douglas Jones, 450 East Big Bend road, with Mrs. L. M. Ottofy and Mrs. J. Richmond as assisting hostesses. Reports of the state conference at Columbia were given by Mrs. W. Antonie Hall and the delegates, Mrs. Joseph Jamison, Mrs. L. M. Ottofy and Mrs. H. A. Kreitz. Miss Janet and Miss Adele Stine of Webster Groves Chapter, D. A. R., were guests.

"Wherefore Cornelia Greene," by Mrs. James L. Carlisle, mother of the hostess, Mrs. Douglas Jones, was read by Miss Kathryn Jones. The Philanthropic Committee, of which Miss Essie Matlack is chairman, reported on the work planned.

Scrap books have been distributed to be completed as Christmas gifts at various institutions. Mrs. L. M. Ottofy gave an account of her recent trip to Chicago as a guest at the Fort Dearborn celebration. Mrs. J. Zahorsky, chairman of the Conservation Committee, reported a location had been selected in Forest Park and a tree would be planted about Nov. 1.

The next meeting will be the annual meeting, Nov. 4, at Jefferson Memorial.

The University Thimble Club will meet Wednesday at 2 p. m. at the home of Mrs. Robert Railey, 6801 Pershing avenue. The assisting hostesses will be: Mrs. D. A. Ruebel, Mrs. J. F. Blackburn and Mrs. J. O. Jeager.

The National Council of Jewish Juniors will meet next Sunday at the Park Plaza, at 2:30 p. m.

The Pioneers will meet Friday at Shaare Emeth Temple, University City. Mrs. Ernst Jonas will read a paper on "Physic's Greatest Contribution to Modern Life," and Mrs. Milton Greenfield will speak on "Scientific and Industrial Chemistry." "The Limitations of Science" will be discussed by Miss Jeanne Marx.

There will be a rally day exercise today at the Y. W. C. A., 1411 Locust street. Mrs. Hayward Gatch, chairman, has planned a program beginning at 5 o'clock. Mrs. Thomas L. Anderson, president of the board of directors, will preside. Mrs. Richard H. Buffum, general secretary, will speak. Tea will be served at 6 o'clock. Miss Caroline Fowler, hostess.

LAZY GLANDS

Don't fool yourself! DANDRUFF means an UNHEALTHY SCALP. You can't brush away or wash away the CAUSE of dandruff. There is only one remedy—stimulate the lazy glands.

Dandruff is our national shame because people ignore the truth about their hair. Dandruff is a scalp disorder. Soap and water can't cure a sick scalp.

Forget surface treatments and get down to the glands.

All hair is nourished by tiny glands, deep in the scalp. When they don't open, your hair starves, gets dry and brittle, and in time falls out. What hair is left loses color. But instead of "touching up" hair that's streaked or off-color, try gland stimulation. Pigmentation will revive the natural color of any hair not completely, permanently gray.

Start the stimulation of those lazy glands tonight. The only way to wake them is by massage. Use the fingertips, dipped in Danderine, to cut through to the pores. One treatment will loosen and dissolve dandruff. The first week will give you a vastly improved scalp. Two weeks will give the hair new life. If you don't believe Danderine makes the hair grow, measure a lock before you begin treatment!

If your hair is so dead it will scarcely hold a wave, or your scalp is in poor condition from wasted secretions, stimulate the lazy glands with Danderine and see what happens before you have used up one thirty-five cent bottle!

To the Mothers
whose children won't eat

NATURE knows best. Never coax a child to eat! Remove the cause of a youngster's poor appetite. When appetite fails, tongue is coated white, eyes are a bilious yellow, don't give small children a constipating cathartic that drains the system and weakens the bowels! California fig syrup is all the "medicine" they require.

The Child's Appetite
Will Always Respond

Specialists will tell you that a sluggish appetite almost always means the child has a sluggish colon. Correct this condition called stasis, and see how quickly a listless, drooping boy or girl begins to eat—and gain! The only "medicine" such children need is pure, unadulterated fig syrup.

California fig syrup is doing wonderful things for ailing, sickly children all over the United States. Children who get fig syrup, now and then, soon have the appetite and energy of young animals! They keep well and avoid colds and sluggish spells.

Nature never made a finer laxative for children; and they all love the wholesome, fruity flavor of the real California fig syrup. It's purely vegetable, but every druggist has it all bottled, with directions. Begin with it at once. The very next day, your child will be eating better and feeling better. Keep on with the fig syrup a few days and you will see the most amazing improvement in appetite, color, weight, and spirits.

A single IF

The promises made by the bottlers of California fig syrup are true—and it will do the same for you—IF it's genuine CALIFORNIA fig syrup. Don't accept any bottle that does not plainly say CALIFORNIA. Every druggist has the genuine.

A close, crowded theatre . . . a hint of "B.O." . . . and one more romance ends!

DANGER! "B.O." KILLS ROMANCE

It may be hurting you, too, because one never knows when one is guilty

PERHAPS you think these warnings about "B.O."—body odor—are meant for the other person, not you. Don't fool yourself! We're all likely to offend now and then unless we take precautions.

Pores are constantly giving off odor-causing waste—a quart daily. A warm room—a little extra physical exertion or nervous strain—and this odor becomes noticeable to others. You yourself won't be aware of it, and nobody will tell you. But they'll think of you as careless . . . undesirable . . . someone to be avoided.

Don't risk offending perhaps the very people you want most to impress. Keep pores clean and deodorized by frequent bathing with Lifebuoy Health Soap.

You'll thoroughly enjoy this delightful toilet soap. You'll quickly learn to love its pleasant, extra-clean scent that vanishes as you rinse. Use Lifebuoy a week and you'll be a Lifebuoy fan for life. It gives such quantities of lather—leaves you feeling so genuinely, so satisfyingly clean. No danger of "B. O." now! Lifebuoy's gentle, searching lather purifies pores—removes all odor.

Watch complexions freshen

Every night massage Lifebuoy's bland, creamy lather well into the skin; then rinse. This simple treatment gently frees pores of clogged impurities that make the complexion look dull and cloudy—quickly brings fresh, healthy radiance. Adopt Lifebuoy today.

DELMAR FRONTAGE SOLD TO BUILDER FOR APARTMENTS

350 Feet West of Warder Av. to Greensfelder Lane Bought by W. J. Riley Who Plans 6 Buildings.

THEY WILL COST ABOUT $200,000

Purchased From William Remmert Construction Co. Which Also Owns Frontage on North Side.

By Berry Moore

Approximately 350 feet of ground on the south side of Delmar boulevard, beginning 100 feet west of Warder avenue and extending to Greensfelder lane, in University City, owned by the William Remmert Construction Co., has been purchased by W. J. Riley, builder, with plans for six apartment buildings involving an estimated outlay of $200,000.

The price for the ground, divided into six lots ranging in frontage from 55 to 62 feet, with a uniform depth of 160 feet, was withheld. The purchase includes the entire Delmar frontage of this block with the exception of the southwest corner of Warder, where a house stands now. It is understood that negotiations are pending for the latter which has a frontage of 100 feet on Delmar. Restrictions exclude business buildings.

Building to Begin at Once.

Construction is scheduled to begin at once. Plans have been made for five four-family apartments of the latest type, alternating in five and six rooms. Apartments of seven and eight rooms are planned for the northeast corner of Delmar boulevard and Greensfelder lane.

The sale and the apartment project are in response to lower construction costs. The ground was advertised for the first time, and exclusively in the Post-Dispatch, Sept. 13.

Offers were also reported for the ground on the north side of Delmar, extending west from Warder avenue, from other builders with apartment projects. The Delmar frontage of this block is also owned by the Remmert Construction Co. It is likewise being offered for sale for four-family apartments.

Remmert only recently acquired the Delmar frontage on both sides of this thoroughfare, between Warder avenue and a point near Center drive, from M. B. Greensfelder, a pioneer real estate investor. Sewers have been installed and Remmert is now having the pavement on Delmar widened from 20 to 54 feet. The 20-foot pavement, laid by the county last year, extends from Center drive west to Bonhomme road, and the county is preparing to extend Delmar farther west to Price road, and eventually to Lindbergh boulevard.

Acquires Ground on Teasdale.

Remmert also acquired all the ground on Teasdale avenue, a block south of Delmar, between Greensfelder lane and Center drive, formerly also owned by Greensfelder, which is being offered in lots for residence purposes. Greensfelder laid out the lane, named for him several years ago. It is a secluded street, occupied by fine homes of medium size. It runs west from Warder and south from Delmar, and within the angle is formed a small park dedicated to public use and named for Greensfelder. One lot in Remmert's holding extends between the park and Warder avenue.

Offers were made yesterday for tracts at the northeast corner of Hampton and Nottingham avenues and at the northeast corner of Hampton and Neosho avenues, comprising two half blocks recently acquired by the Boulevard Frontage Co. of which Harry Brinkop is president. Commanding St. Louis Hills, these corners, which are unrestricted, were bought for business purposes.

Makes Investment Loans.

The Hemmelmann Real Estate Co. reports having made a number of loans within the last week, including several in connection with purchases for investment purposes. It also has made others for building purposes on a conservative basis.

The concern is the St. Louis loan correspondent of the New York Life Insurance Co. and in addition has resources of its own from which to draw.

LE GRAND JONES, INC., SELLS 32 CLAYNORTH PLACE LOTS

LeGrand Jones, Inc., has sold for the Claynorth Realty Co., to the Bennett Realty Corporation, 32 lots comprising 1635 front feet of ground in Claynorth place, a subdivision situated at the southwest corner of Clayton and North and South roads.

4 BILLIONS IN DECADE FOR OFFICE BUILDINGS

Statistician Attributes Construction Record of 1921-30 to Need of Space.

The office building and its relation to population changes and sociologic trends as shown in the past decade are covered by L. Seth Schnitman, chief statistician, F. W. Dodge Corporation, in the current Architectural Record.

Changes in volume of commerce and large increases in the professional and other "white collar" occupation created the demand for $3,850,000,000 of office space in the ten years, 1921-1930, Schnitman shows.

"Using check payments as a yardstick, it is found that the rise between the depression year, 1921, and the peak in 1929, disregarding the effects of price changes during the interval, approximated 130 per cent. At the same time the advance in new office building expenditures approximated 660 per cent, between 1921 and the peak of the cycle, in this instance, the year 1927.

Demand for Space.

"The large increase in office building construction from 1921 to 1927," the writer continues, "came about fully as much because of genuine demand for space as because of any other single factor or combination of factors. This was the period of reconstruction after the war, when virtually all building of this type had been at a standstill; these were the years of readjustment of earning power to advancing land values and rising taxes. Then, too, the release of factory workers to non-industrial occupations, incident to technologic advances, proceeded apace, and a large absorption of workers into commercial, financial and professional pursuits took place.

"This was the period when our schools and colleges released more "white collar" graduates than in any similar period in our history. This was the dawn of an era of scientific study of the problems of distribution and the coincidental rise in services of every description to cope with these problems. This was the period when the dentist and the physican forsook the home as the place of his practice for the more conveniently located office building. These factors, to say nothing of the insistent demand for modern and ultra-modern facilities, to a greater or less extent, were forces that brought about the rapid and almost spectacular advance in new office construction."

Concentration in Large Cities.

Schnitman states that 53 per cent of new office building construction during the decade was concentrated in the 13 largest cities of the country, i. e., over 500,000 population. For these same 13 centers, commercial transactions, as measured by the volume of check payments over the decade, represented approximately 65 per cent of the entire money turnover of the country.

He pointed to the opportunities for new office structures in the smaller cities where present office building facilities have become obsolete in the light of standards known to larger centers.

GASEN CHAIN OPENS 3 MORE DRUG STORES

2714 Cherokee, Vandeventer and St. Louis, and Broadway and Baden.

Gasen Drug Stores, Inc., has closed long leases on stores at 2714 Cherokee street, at Vandeventer and St. Louis avenues and at Broadway and Baden street. The new stores were formally opened last week.

Gasen Drug Stores, a St. Louis concern, now operates 12 retail drug stores in the city. The first store was opened 12 years ago at St. Louis and Union avenues.

The Cherokee store was leased for a long period from the owner, Fred Wehrenberg, and both parties were represented by the Apex Realty Co.

The Gasen organization is headed by A. L. Gasen, president; Jake Gasen, vice president, and A. R. McIntyre, secretary and general manager.

26 Per Cent Loss in 37 States In Construction Contracts

In Some Sections Survey Shows Gains in Non-Residential Building and in Engineering.

Exceptions to the rule of a general loss of 26 per cent in third quarter construction contracts for the 37 states east of the Rocky Mountains compared with the third quarter of 1930 are found in certain construction class gains by F. W. Dodge Corporation. Among these gains is a 29 per cent advance in engineering in upstate New York, 6 per cent in the same class in the Middle Atlantic district; 34 per cent in nonresidential building in the Chicago territory; 3 per cent in nonresidential building and 248 per cent in engineering in the New Orleans district, and 14 per cent in engineering in Texas.

During September nonresidential building was the most important major construction class forming $112,417,500 of the entire $252,109,700 total for the month. Residential building amounted to $54,552,800, and public works and utilities to $85,139,400.

An advance over the total of September, 1930, is found in the $21,545,400 total for the upstate New York territory compared with $16,039,400 in September of last year. The Southeastern territory gained slightly over September, 1930, with $14,886,100. The district around New Orleans totaling $6,637,000 for the month led by more than $2,000,000 the corresponding month of 1930.

The gain over August in the entire 37 states when totals were low was well distributed among various special classes, only public buildings, residential buildings and social and recreational structures, declining below the August totals. Of these special classes commercial buildings amounting to $29,960,200 in September compared with $19,417,300 in August; $10,969,600 for September in factories compared with $4,749,800 in August. Educational buildings amounted to $21,155,100 in September against $19,266,700 in August.

The total in contemplated projects reported during September in the 37 states east of the Rockies is $222,843,000.

H. E. KNAUST TAKES FIRST FLOOR LEASE AT 1127 PINE

Henry E. Knaust has taken a long lease on the first floor of the Publicity Building of the Nelson Chesman Co., at 1127 Pine street, for a coffee shop. The concern now operates coffee shops in the Boatmen's Bank building at Broadway and Olive street, and in the Cotton Belt Building, formerly Planters Building, at Fourth and Pine and Chestnut streets.

The Publicity Building was erected and is owned by Nelson Chesman & Co., an advertising agency. While only five stories in height, the foundation and super structure of the building provide for a 12 or 14 story structure.

DIMITT-RICKHOFF-BAYER REPORTS SALES OF $200,000

The Dimmitt-Rickhoff-Bayer R. E. Co. reports a total in sales of over $200,000 since Sept. 1. They further report an increase in sales for the third quarter of 1931 of $87,628 over the corresponding period of 1930. Their sales are listed as follows: 3223 Pennsylvania, 4-4 single flat, sold for Emil Struckhoff and wife to Albert Johnson. 7465 Stanford avenue, new six-room residence sold for J. M. Liebowitz Construction Co. to H. H. Gallup. 1111 Boland avenue, new seven-room brick bungalow sold for Fred Best to J. M. Sandweg and Mary Agnes. 926 Newport avenue, Webster Groves, seven-room residence, sold for Albert Johnson to Emil Struckhoff. 415 West Point court, six-room residence, sold for Harold Neuman and Carrie Neuman, to a client of Wenzlick Real Estate Co. Residence on Audubon drive, sold to Harold G. Powell. 3117 Osage street, five-five single flat sold for Harold Neuman to a client of Wenzlick Real Estate Co. 7122 Pershing avenue, six-room residence in University City, sold for E. D. Wills to Dr. Emery E. Evans. 7319 Richmond place, five-room brick bungalow, sold for Walter Simon to Ray Rossi. 1943 Forest avenue, five-room brick bungalow, sold for a client of Wenzlick Real Estate Co. to Harold Neuman and Carrie Neuman.

MODEL HOME COMPLETED AT 7316 CHAMBERLAIN AV.

The Stealey Company, designers and builders of residence, 6515 Page boulevard, has completed a model home at 7316 Chamberlain avenue, near the new University City High School. The home, two-story, all brick, English style architecture, has six rooms and garage and is furnished throughout.

It has been built to prove to prospective home owners that high-class residences are now available at costs one-third less than prevailed a few years ago, according to Lee G. Stealey, president.

It is the third model home built by the concern in this section.

SUBURBAN PROP. FOR SALE

"More Than Bricks and Mortar"

Community Homes Corporation Adopts Slogan.

Bricks and mortar—they are necessary in the construction of a home. They cost money. So does labor. They do not necessarily constitute value. There is a difference between price and value. In the home that differenec is not in the bricks and mortar. It is an intangible factor. It depends on the desirability of that home from a standpoint of pleasant environment, permanent protection against nuisance, harmony not only in the individual home itself but in its neighbors, and in trees, shrubbery and lawns which only time and nature can provide. It depends on the association of families having similar ideals and living under similar circumstances. It depends on an appreciation of community interest.

Welfare of Children Paramount.

The home means more perhaps to children than to grownups. The influence of environment on a growing child is reflected in its thoughts and actions throughout its life. Only two things are necessary in the development of a normal child. They are activity and companionship with those of its own kind. Broad lawns, quiet drives which lead nowhere except to the homes they pass, community playgrounds where play is directed, sunshine and air, away from the city smoke, all mean more to the child than bricks and mortar, pink bathtubs and chromium fittings, desirable as these things are.

Pasadena Park a Planned Community.

Several years ago, when the intangible, vital elements of value of the home were first being given serious attention, Pasadena Park was planned. It was originally known as Los Angeles, St. Louis. About 175 homes were built under the supervision of a highly competent architect. Nowhere else in this section of the country is there found the harmony and charm that exisits in this little community. Nature has added her bit in the tree-lined drives and excellent planting, the wide spaces between homes and above all, the community spirit of the home owners, have produced a real value that in small homes has seldom been excelled.

Permanence Assured.

The Community Homes Corporation recently acquired a large number of properties in Pasadena Park and is now working out a plan whereby the present values will be assured to coming generations. Protection against undesirable use by valid restrictions, assurance of harmony in future homes through an architectural control board consisting of qualified architects, local government through a community association in which every home owner has a vote, are factors which place this community in a field by itself.

Some Homes Now Available.

A drive out Natural Bridge road to Normandy, entering Pasadena Park either through Pasadena Hills or from Florissant road, is well worth anyone's time. A number of homes are open for inspection and are now being offered for sale, some as low as $7000, on an unusual financing plan which provides for the entire payment of the principal without renewals. An office has been opened by the Albert Wenzlick Real Estate Co., agents for the Community Homes Corporation, at 411 North Hills drive, where additional information regarding Pasadena Park can be secured.

Solution Found to the Small Home Problem

Saint Louis interests produce very modest homes with unusual character and charm.

Several months ago, the Albert Wenzlick Real Estate Co., sponsored a program of small home construction under the direction of Klingensmith & Grover, Architects, with the object of proving that modest homes, well designed architecturally and well constructed, could be produced at costs comparable to average buildings.

First Group Completed

The first group of three buildings, located on Lloyd Avenue just west of Tamm, in a very modest home neighborhood, has just been completed. One is characteristic of the English Cottage type, one an English town house with half timbered second floor construction and the third a Colonial. They contain five and six rooms and the latest conveniences and built-in features in addition to the distinctive but simple and conservative exterior design. The lawns have been completely sodded and artistically planted with shrubbery. The little English Cottage has been completely furnished, in a very simple, charming and inexpensive manner by the Lammert Furniture Co. and American Stove Co.

Hoover's Conference Interested

As an interesting experiment, these homes have attracted the attention of President Hoover's Conference on Home Building and Home Ownership and are being visited by many who are interested in small homes from an architectural standpoint. All of these homes have been built to sell for less than $8,000.00.

Public Invited

The public is invited and the homes are open daily from 10:00 A. M. to 9:00 P. M. A hostess is in charge. They are located at 6478, 6482 and 6484 Lloyd Avenue, one and a half blocks west of Tamm Avenue, and can be easily reached by automobile from Tamm Avenue, either from Manchester on the south or the Tamm Avenue entrance to Forest Park on the north or by Manchester street car to Tamm Avenue. Lloyd Avenue is two blocks north of Manchester. A visit to this group is well worth anyone's time. (c)

SUGGESTS BAROMETER IN BUILDING INDUSTRY

Architect Says Monthly Check on Draftsmen at Work Would Be Basis.

A business barometer for the building industry, which would serve as a guide for business generally, is advocated by Electus D. Litchfield of the New York Chapter of the American Institute of Architects. Such an indicator could be created, he declares, by keeping a monthly check on the number of draftsmen employed by the architects of the country.

Litchfield, in outlining his plan to the Architects' Emergency Employment Committee for the region of New York, said:

"Today we are perhaps at the zero hour. Return of confidence will be indicated the moment a definite general increase in employment comes into the offices of the architects.

"Now, if monthly reports can be obtained of the number of draftsmen employed by the architects, we will have the most sensitive possible barometer of the attitude of the public mind. Such a barometer could be taken as an indicator for all industries insofar as the building industry reflects the true nature of business conditions generally.

"To date we have had thermometers which told the business conditions of the past and present, and we have had wind gauges which told just how bad the depression hurricane was, or was going to be, but we have had no barometer which would predict what business weather we were likely to have.

150 U. S. AGENTS IN DRY RAIDS IN TWO WISCONSIN TOWNS

Oshkosh and Fond du Lac Visited Unexpectedly; Jails Are Crowded.

By the Associated Press.

FOND DU LAC, Wis., Oct. 17.—Oshkosh and Fond du Lac, where beer is 10 cents a glass and prohibition seldom blighted a reputed flourishing liquor trade, were invaded tonight by Federal agents who made many arrests. Inside the city limits of Oshkosh, 29 places where undercover agents had purchased drinks were raided. The Oshkosh jail was crowded, and from the countryside, where agents had visited many roadhouses, came additional prisoners.

In Fond du Lac 18 saloons, roadhouses and restaurants were raided and 25 persons, including one woman, were arrested. About 150 prohibition agents in pairs and groups of three, entered the establishments.

All the prisoners will pass the week-end in jail, Federal officers said. There will be no hearings or admissions to bail, until Monday morning.

INCREASE IN AUTO OUTPUT SINCE 1923 DUE TO EXPORTS

Research by University of Michigan Show Foreign Demand Is Chiefly for Trucks.

By the Associated Press.

ANN ARBOR, Mich., Oct. 17.—Exports account for the entire increase in production of American automobiles since 1923, a business study by D. M. Phelps of the University of Michigan Bureau of Business Research, said today.

"The takings of the domestic market have not increased since that time," the report said, "but the volume of automotive products taken by the foreign market has increased rapidly from an absolute standpoint, relative to the total production of the industry, and as a part of our total manufactured goods export.

"The recent growth in automotive exports is chiefly attributable to the demand for American trucks. Whereas in earlier years only about 20 per cent of total exports were trucks, now about 40 per cent are of commercial design.

"The efforts of the automobile industry to increase foreign business are being counteracted by the United States protective tariff policy.

"In 1923, 50.6 per cent of the world demand for motor vehicles (excluding that from the United States and Canada) was supplied by American exports and 49.4 by European production. In 1930 Europe supplied 53.7 per cent and America 41.3 per cent of the outside world demand.

"Production abroad by American companies will do more to limit our future exports than competition from European producers."

HITLER REVIEWS FOLLOWERS ON EVE OF NATIONAL FETE

15 Injured in Street Fighting in Brunswick, Where Nazi Faction Meets Today.

BRUNSWICK, Germany, Oct. 17.—Thousands of Adolf Hitler's National Socialists marched down the streets here today, to the accompaniment of martial music, as a preliminary to the big Nazi meet.

Squad after squad, carrying flaming torches, marched past Hitler, who stood in an automobile and smilingly acknowledged the greeting of "Hoch," responding by raising his arm in the Fascist salute.

At least 75,000 of the Nazi "storm troops" are expected to be on hand tomorrow and an equal number of civilians. Those arriving on trains tonight already had donned the mustard-colored uniforms which are not permitted in Prussia and some other states. The uniforms were put on as soon as the Brunswick border was crossed.

About 15 persons were wounded in street fighting on the eve of the National Socialist day.

Award of John Gold Medal.

NEW YORK, Oct. 17.—The John Gold medal has been awarded for 1932 to Dr. Michael I. Pupin of Columbia University for his achievements as "scientist, engineer, author, inventor of the tuning of oscillating circuits and the loading of telephone circuits by inductance coils," it was announced today.

$10,894,835 RED CROSS DROUTH RELIEF BILL

Heaviest Expenditure $3,140,946 in Arkansas—Figures Up to Last June 30.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 17.—The American Red Cross today translated last year's great drouth into facts and figures in a 109-page illustrated bulletin.

Statistics made public for the first time showed it cost $10,894,835 up to June 30, the end of the fiscal year, with a balance of $4,694,944 available to finish relieving the "greatest peace-time disaster." These expenditures were made possible by $10,589,780 contributed by the public, and $5,000,000 from the Red Cross treasury.

For food, $7,229,104 was spent and for clothing $488,668. Hot school lunches, which brought an average gain of 4.6 pounds to each child where weighing was possible, cost $165,599. They were served to 184,459 children in 3524 schools. Yeast for pellagra control cost $15,903. Pellagra victims numbering 18,302 were under observation and special treatment. Other medical aid totaled $91,906.

Livestock feed cost $346,415. The Red Cross took occasion to deny reports that thousands of animals succumbed to starvation, though conceding that the livestock "deteriorated in condition.

Other items of expenditure were: Family service, $109,052; field supervision, $835,095; cash to chapters, $582,130; for continuation of chapter service, $146,979; fuel, bedding and miscellaneous supplies, $115,736.

In three badly-stricken states, the expenditures for drouth relief were as follows: Arkansas, $3,140,946; Kentucky, $1,490,353; Oklahoma, $1,385,879. Arkansas' food bill alone was $2,256,386.

An emphatic statement is made in the bulletin that no food riot occurred in England, Ark. "No stores were broken into," it says. No food was forcibly taken, and there was no indication of mob spirit. There was forcibly taken, and there was no indication of mob spirit. There was not a single case of violence. Food was furnished and the Red Cross paid for it."

Expenditures for relief in other states follow: Alabama, $299,265; Georgia, $32,345; Illinois, $112,821; Indiana, $108,185; Kansas, $1134; Louisiana, $955,453; Maryland, $22,995; Mississippi, $483,006; Missouri, $498,291; Montana, $57,550; New Mexico, $522; North Carolina, $54,310; North Dakota, $24,067; Ohio, $228,623; Pennsylvania, $10,827; South Carolina, $435; Tennessee, $389,073; Texas, $623,126; Virginia, $268,904; West Virginia, $184,768.

U. S. TO CONDEMN SITE FOR POSTOFFICE WING

Government Attorney Regards $2,000,000 Sought by Owners as Highly Excessive.

Suits will be filed by the Government soon to condemn four lots in the large site for the enlargement of the main Postoffice. Suits are pending in Federal Court now for the other 12 parcels in the site. The lots not yet subject to suit each have 25 feet frontage on Seventeenth street, between Market street and Clark avenue.

The viewers appointed by the Court are expected to appraise the entire site during November and report its cost to the Government. The viewers, who have held one organization meeting so far, are Jacob M. Lashly, a lawyer, and Henry Cornet and Joseph Hannauer, real estate dealers. After the viewers report, notice of their awards will be given all parties and there will be a 10-day period in which the property owners or the Government can file exceptions.

By the end of the year the Government probably will have title to the site, it was predicted by John C. Dyott, Special Assistant District Attorney and Attorney-General, who handles Federal condemnation matters in this district. Dyott said he had been unable to push these proceedings because of the pressure of work in acquiring right-of-way for the Mississippi floodway in Southeastern Missouri. He soon will be occupied also with condemning for dams and a nine-foot channel for the Mississippi in Northern Missouri.

Boundaries of New Site.

The site of the Postoffice addition consists of the block bounded by Market, Walnut, Eighteenth and Seventeenth streets and the block bounded by Market, Seventeenth and Moore streets and Clark avenue. The present building, erected in 1912 for $1,142,610, occupies the block bounded by Walnut, Seventeenth and Eighteenth streets and Clark avenue. The city will vacate Walnut, between Seventeenth and Eighteenth, and Seventeenth between Market and Clark. The two blocks being condemned contain 169,174 square feet, and the streets to be vacated will add 17,496 square feet to the site. The existing structure occupies a lot of about 100,000 square feet. Hence the total ground area of the enlarged Postoffice will be about 286,670 square feet.

It is intended to make the main entrance of the enlarged post office at Eighteenth and Market. Owners of the land to be taken have asked almost $2,000,000 for their property, Dyott said. He regards this sum a shighly excessive. Congress has appropriated $1,500,000 for the additional ground, and there has been one appraisal placing the value as somewhat less than this. Postoffice and Treasury officials have agreed to ask Congress this winter to appropriate $4,750,000 for construction.

Some property owners have complained that the Government has been slow in completing the condemnation proceedings, interfering with sales and leases by the present owners. The plan has been under discussion for several years. The first condemnation suits were filed last June.

New U. S. Building Site Cleared.

Work of removing the old structures from the new Federal Building site—the block bounded by Twelfth, Market, Eleventh and Walnut streets—has been virtually complted. Officials plan to start the excavation soon, and say the contract for the substructure should be awarded before the end of the year. The Government holds title to this block. Only about $2,570,000 is available from an existing appropriation for construction of the new building. It has been learned in informed quarters that about $2,000,000 more must be provided if the place is to be big enough to accommodate all the Government departments here. The architect's plan for a 10-story structure would take care of all departments, but it would be possible to omit the upper four floors at first.

Dynamite in Missouri U. Hall.

COLUMBIA, Mo., Oct. 17.—Discovery today of two pieces of dynamite with fuses attached in Jesse Hall, main administration building of the University of Missouri, resulted in an all-day investigation, after which university officials said they were convinced it was "merely a practical joke." The dynamite was found in the men's room on the second floor of the building. The explosive, which had been placed on a high shelf, was not there when he left last night, the janitor said. The fuses were not ignited.

ANTI-FREEZE COUNTERFEITERS SENTENCED UNDER U. S. AC

Four Sent to Federal Prison, O to Jail, Sixth to Marshal's Custody in Chicago.

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Oct. 17.—Six men arrested last August by Federal agents while pouring counterfeit anti-freeze mixture into cans bearing counterfeit labels of a legitimate product were convicted today in Federal Court.

Sam Katz, Earl S. Fisher, David W. Blanc, and Alfred L. Holtzman were sentenced to a year and a day each in the penitentiary; L Bloom to six months in jail and Adolph Postal to one hour custody of the Marshal.

Walter L. Wiles, Assistant United States District Attorney, said Blanc formerly lived in St. Louis and had made plans to flood the St. Louis market with the spurious product. Holtzman, Wiles said, formerly lived in Everett, Mass., and was sentenced to the penitentiary there for 10 years.

Fisher, Wiles said, had served a prison term for receiving stolen goods in Detroit and was free on bond on a charge pending against him in Federal Court there for allegedly counterfeiting another legitimate product.

Michigan's Fumbles Help Ohio State Win, 20-7, Before 70,000 Crowd

By the Associated Press.

ANN ARBOR, Mich., Oct. 17.—Rated as underdogs, a husky Ohio State eleven took Michigan by surprise today, swept them off their feet from the start, and delivered a major blow to the Wolverines' championship hopes. The final score, 20 to 7, was as unexpected to the 70,000 spectators as it was to coach Harry Kipke's 1931 co-champions.

Wray's Column

He's on the Air Again.

AS things are shaping up, the National League might as well call off the 1932 race, concede the pennant to the Cardinals, and save operating costs.

At least after listening to that celebrated loud-speaker Dizzy Dean, one might gather that impression. Dean has it all figured that he himself, aided by Martin and the rest of the Cardinals should win 141 victories next year. In a letter to a Texas newspaper friend he said: "The Cards won 101 games last year. I ought to be able to add at least 25 or 30 victories to this myself and this guy Martin ought to toss in at least a dozen extra. I figure about 141 games for us."

"Dizzy" Dean.

The record for modern baseball is 116 games, a mark which has stood since 1906, which seems to make the pennant, on Dean's prophecy, safe for the Cardinals by a big majority.

We feel safe in calling "Dizzy" the dean of all prophets. Or, put it this way: Of all prophets, Dean is the most dizzy.

Bargain Days.

IT'S a poor major league franchise that doesn't rate a million dollars, today. Try to buy one, if you think otherwise. The Chicago Cubs probably could not be bought for $2,500,000, throwing everything into the scales.

And yet it was this self-same major league outfit that was the medium of the greatest bargain sale in the history of the national game. The death recently of Charles Webb Murphy, former president of the Cubs, will recall to old timers this celebrated deal, one that made the fortunes of several men, including that of Murphy.

In 1905 Murphy was a plump little man in his thirties, acting as private secretary for Charles P. Taft of Cincinnati. He had been a newspaper man and his interest in baseball was attracted to the Chicago Cubs, then owned by James A. Hart, Cap Anson and a few others. Hart and Anson went broke, Anson on a billiard hall investment. As the Cubs were at a low ebb, the owners had to sell.

Murphy scented a bargain. He

Michigan's running attack was stopped on nearly every occasion and her vaunted aerial attack failed to function until too late to be effective.

A series of costly fumbles brought trouble to the Michigan line early in the game. One, by Jack Heston, sophomore fullback, second son of the famed Willie Heston of a generation ago, contributed directly to the first Ohio touchdown. Even Michigan's famous scoring play, "Old 83," developed years ago by Fielding H. Yost, failed when an official became entangled in the play and Ohio recovered the ball.

Heston's fumble gave Ohio the ball on Michigan's 31-yard line, midway in the first period. Hinchman, Buckeye halfback, drove through for a first down on the 11-yard line, and Carroll went around right end for the first Ohio score, aided by excellent blocking. Haubrich place-kicked the extra point.

Michigan scored in the second period when Williamson blocked Cramer's punt behind the goal line and fell on the ball for a touchdown. Goldsmith booted the placement, and the score was tied, 7 all.

Ohio came back in the third period, however, with a 55-yard march down the field to Michigan's two-yard line, where Carrol again slipped through for the second score. Haubrich failed to make the extra point.

Ohio's perfection in blocking brought the final touchdown in the fourth period, when Cramer caught Heston's punt and raced 45 yards down the side lines, Peppe kicking the extra point.

Ohio State had a net gain of 109 yards from rushing, while Michigan had 47. Three of the Buckeye's four forward passes were completed for a gain of 21 yards. Michigan completed four passes in 12 attempts for a gain of 95 yards.

CREIGHTON GIVES WASHINGTON U. A BEATING, 40-0

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

OMAHA, Neb., Oct. 17.—Ten thousand home-comers, the largest crowd to see a football game at Creighton in two years, turned out to watch the Bluejays defeat the Washington Bears, 40 to 0, here this evening.

For the first 10 minutes of play it looked as if the game was going to be a battle royal. In fact Miller and Weingart were skipping around the ends so consistently that it looked as if they were really going to be troublesome before the evening was over.

During the latter part of the quarter Cherighton got the ball on its own 30-yard line and from there started its victorious march to the goal. It was a 70-yard march which was featured with a 15-yard end run by Rose and a 13-yard dash by Gordon. During the march Creighton made six first downs. The Bears seemed unable to offer a defense for the off tackle drives.

Fumble Is Costly.

Scarcely had the cheering died down when Sklenar was seen diving through the aid to land on Miller's fumble on Washington's 23-yard line.

On a pass formartion Jelen faked the pass then tossed the ball to Gordon who side-stepped, wiggled, pushed and pulled his way through the entire Bear team, 23 yards for the touchdown.

Creighton scored in every period, making two touchdowns in the first quarter, one in the second, one in the third and two in the fourth.

The high spot of the entire game came during the sixth play in the fourth quarter. Creighton had the ball on its own 15-yard line. Collins skipped around end for nine yards. Creighton called for a pass formation but on a hidden pass Collin shot off tackle and behind

Columbia Beats Dartmouth, 19-6, For First Time Since 1889

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Oct. 17.—A red-headed sophomore end, Tony Matal, of Lawrence, Mass., leaped upon Dartmouth's Big Green brigade today to bring about two touchdowns and lead the Lions of Columbia to their first victory over the Green Mountaineers in 42 years. The score was 19 to 6.

Matal smothered one fumble that led to a score, blocked a kick and scrambled over the goal line with it and shattered the Dartmouth offense.

It was the first Columbia victory over Dartmouth since they played their first match in 1889.

Columbia scored its initial touchdown in the second period, after Matal recovered the ball after a Dartmouth fumble. Cliff Montgomery, second string sophomore, carried the ball over.

All alone Matal stormed in the final period, blocked Bill Morton's kick, and staggered 15 yards over the goal line.

Dartmouth stormed with forward passing in the third and final quarters but Matal nailed every Dartmouth onslaught that came his way.

One perfect play in the fourth quarter, a lateral pass from Ernie Frigard found Bob McCall loose on his own 47-yard line and he romped 53 yards for Dartmouth's lone touchdown behind perfect interference. With Dartmouth heaving wildly and the game already won, Montgomery, sub quarter back, plucked a heave out of the air and went 47 yards for the final Columbia points.

Huge Blanket With 40 Stars Given to Stagg

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Oct. 17.

THERE was a dramatic touch to today's football game between Yale and Chicago, when Amos Alonzo Stagg, veteran and honored coach of the Maroons, was presented with a huge "C" blanket between halves.

Three hundred "C" men, many of them gray-haired, gathered around the "old man" on the edge of the gridiron to participate. The blanket was white with the big maroon "C" in the middle and a ring of 40 maroon stars around it. These 40 stars signified the 40 years of service to intercollegiate athletics at Chicago by Stagg.

Andrew Wyant, captain of the 1892 team, made the presentation. Wyant was leader of the first team Stagg coached at Chicago.

YALE, IN FIRST TRIP TO WEST, BEATS CHICAGO

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Oct. 17.—The fond dreams of Amos Alonzo Stagg, 69-year-old dean of America's football coaches, to conquer Yale on the gridiron crashed to earth today.

Yale, playing for the first time on mid-Western soil, as a tribute to Stagg, its most illustrious alumnus, crushed Stagg's hopelessly outclassed University of Chicago eleven, 27 to 0, before 35,000 spectators.

It was a complete rout for the Maroons, who were outcharged, outclassed and outplayed in everything except courage. They never threatened and never penetrated beyond Yale's 34-yard line. The Maroon eleven, the fortieth team that Stagg has coached, trying its hardest for the "grand old man" of the gridiron, but was overwhelmed.

Leaving no doubt of its superiority, Yale crashed over with four touchdowns, scoring the last two in the final minutes of play.

Booth Leads Attack.

After a scoreless first period, the spirit of fight was instilled into the Elis by the appearance in the game of their captain and star, Albie Booth. After Booth entered the conflict the result was never in doubt. He tossed long and accurate forward passes and figured in the first two touchdowns. With the game tucked away, he retired in favor of Bob Lassiter, who carried on by smashing across with a third touchdown. Replacements eager to show their wares scored the fourth against the tired and battered Maroons in the last 60 seconds of play.

Perhaps that scoreless first period, with his son, Paul Stagg, leading the Maroons from quarterback, may have given the "old man" hope that his team had a chance, but Booth, one of the dramatic stars of the game raced on to the field at the start of the second period, replacing Crowley at left half for the Elis. He supplied the punch and the confidence Yale evidently needed. He played a smashing game, running back kicks intercepting passes and tossing them as he raced all over the field.

Young Stagg Stars.

Young Stagg played a brilliant game for the Maroons. Early in the first period he intercepted a Yale pass on Chicago's 8-yard line. In the second period, Stagg intercepted another Yale pass as he stood on his own goal line, and then fell into the end zone.

Yale made 17 first downs to 5 for the Maroons. In scrimmaging the Elis gained 224 yards to 43 for Chicago. Chicago completed 5 out of 12 passes for gains of only 32 yards, while the Elis piled up 109 yards in six out of 13 passes.

MRS. WALLACE WINS DISTRICT GOLF HONORS FOURTH TIME

By W. J. McGoogan.

Mrs. Mahlon B. Wallace Jr. of the St. Louis Country Club, pulled an old discarded putter out of her bag and defeated Mrs. Ignatius S. Hynes of Westborough, 1 up, at Bellerive Country Club yesterday to gain her fourth golf championship of the St. Louis district in the 36-hole match of the twelfth annual tournament.

The old putter had been cast away by Mrs. Wallace after she had used it in the district final of 1929, in which she lost to Mrs. Hynes. She regarded it as of no further use, but when she faced defeat after the morning 18 holes yesterday, on which Mrs. Hynes had piled up a lead of three holes, she decided something would have to be done. Particularly as it was due in a measure to her erratic work on the greens that she was behind.

So when the afternoon session began she laid aside the straight blade putter she had been using and took out the old club. It was nothing to look at. Just a wood-shafted club with a straight face to the head and a concave back, but there was magic in it yesterday, for with it Mrs. Wallace's putting improved and she whittled down Mrs. Hynes' lead to nothing within six holes and, although she never was able to get far ahead, she was even or at least 1 up from there on.

She then went 2 up by winning the next two holes in succession, but Mrs. Hynes cut that lead in half by winning the ninth. They battled evenly for the next two holes, and on the twelfth Mrs. Hynes ran down a 10-footer to square the match again. Mrs. Wallace won the next and Mrs. Hynes the fourteenth and the sixteenth was halved.

Short Putts on Final.

Mrs. Hynes missed a 3-foot putt at the seventeenth to go one down, while at the final hole she missed a 4-footer and they halved it in 4s after Mrs. Wallace had failed by less than an inch to sink her 3 and the match was over.

The two women were even from tee to green throughout the day, but it was on the greens that the story was told. Mrs. Hynes had an approximate medal score of 83 in the morning and fell off to a 93 in the afternoon, while Mrs. Wallace had an 88 on each round.

Mrs. Hynes started out in the morning as if she would make short work of her rival, for she won the first hole due to Mrs. Wallace's three-putting the green, and at the end of the ninth Mrs. Hynes was 2 up, although after the loss at the start Mrs. Wallace came back to win the third and fifth.

Sensational Shot by Mrs. Hynes.

Mrs. Hynes captured the seventh, eighth and ninth in a row due to some bad putting on the part of Mrs. Wallace and some fine work on the greens herself. Coming back they played evenly for three holes, then Mrs. Hynes went 3 up at the thirteenth, when Mrs. Wallace's tee shot was nearly out of bounds and she took three more to get to the green, while Mrs. Hynes' second was dead for a 3.

Mrs. Hynes ran down a 12-footer to go 4 up at No. 14, but Mrs. Wallace got that back at the fifteenth, with a fine approach shot, which enabled her to get a 4 to Mrs. Hynes' 5.

Mrs. Hynes made probably the most sensational shot of the day at the next hole, where she chipped her ball into the hole over a dead stymie with her niblick, for a half.

Mrs. Wallace cut one off Mrs. Hynes' lead at the seventeenth with an eagle 3 when her second shot from 150 yards hit the pin and bounced two feet away and she sank the putt.

But Mrs. Hynes got a spectacular deuce at the home hole where her tee shot over the water stopped within 5 feet of the pin and she knocked it in while Mrs. Wallace took a 4.

Mrs. Hynes 3 Up After 18.

Starting the afternoon round 3 down, Mrs. Wallace pulled all square by winning the second, fourth, fifth and sixth while Mrs. Hynes took the third.

Mrs. Hynes put her shot over the green at the second and Mrs. Wallace was in a trap in front of the Kakapo outbroke her field, had fine speed in the going, easily increased her advantage after reaching final three-eighths and held Pompeius safe the final eighth without need of pressure. The latter began fast, was rated along under steadying restraint first five-eighths and made up some ground when closing gamely but did not menace the winner. Air Pilot well up after a quarter, stood the drive gamely and shook off Big Beau in final eighth. Big Beau moved up fast at last turn but weakened in drive. Marse Robert crowded back at the start, raced wide final five-eighths and showed a fine effort. Sir Melton had no mishap. Byzantine was cut in. Mad Pursuit broke slowly and refused to extend himself. Cathop had early speed. Clotho was done early.

$2 mutuels paid: Kakapo win $9.98, place $4.70, show $3.26; Pompeius, place $10.86, show $4.94; Air Pilot, show, $2.46.

LATONIA, Ky., Oct. 17. — The Kentucky Jockey Club Stakes, richest two-year-old event ever contested here, was captured today by Kakapo, only filly entered in the race, holding a three-length lead over ten of the best colts in her class.

Kakapo, an R. S. Clark entry won $24,040 for her owner and ran the mile in 1:43 4-5 over a slow track. Pompeius was second and Air Pilot, coupled with Mad Pursuit, the favorite, Walter J. Salmon entry was third by a length and a half.

In the last four years the race has been noted for pointing to Kentucky Derby winners, Reigh Count, Clyde Van Dusen and Twenty Grand each having won the Kentucky Jockey Club Stakes in the two year old class.

Jockey Earl Pool, astride the winning mount got Kakapo away in front and he never was headed.

Pompieus was the only horse which threatened the filly and the two dominated the twelfth running of the stakes, transferred here from Churchill Downs after fall racing was abandoned at Louisville for this year.

The winner paid $9.98 on a $2 straight ticket, $4.70 for place and $3.26 to show. Pompieus' prices were $10.86 and $4.94. Air Pilot rewarded $2.46 to show.

Mad Pursuit, believed the better of the Salmon entries, had no early speed but managed to close some ground down the back stretch.

WEST POINT, N. Y., Oct. 17.—Due chiefly to the extraordinary versibility of Captain William Barry Wood Jr., Harvard came from behind today to conquer Army, 14 to 13, in a spectacular game that moved the Crimson to the front ranks of Eastern championship contenders.

Trailing by two touchdowns after the first period, Wood directed a brilliant attack that overcame the Cadets in the second period. His bullet-like passes led to a brace of touchdowns by Bernie White and then the slim Crimson captain played the stellar role in a defense that repulsed Army's desperate last-half threats to regain the lead.

Army Scores on 34-Yard Run.

Wood took command of the situation in the second quarter after Army's light cavalry backfield, featuring Ray Stecker of Hazelton, Pa., had romped to two touchdowns. The crowd of 26,000 that packed Michie Stadium and set a record for West Point, rocked the old fortifications above the Hudson as the Cadets appeared to be on their way to a rout.

Stecker scored the first Army touchdown on a 34-yard cut-back and Sheridan, an end, accounted for the next one as he pounced on Stecker's fumble across the Crimson goal line. Stecker missed one of his kicks for the extra point, but the big lead looked safe and the star halfback was withdrawn with his running mates at the outset of the second quarter.

"Breaks" Aid Harvard.

This was the signal for Wood to turn the tide. With the aid of two big "breaks," some great running by Jack Crickard and Bernie White, the Harvard leader put on a show that dazzled the big throng.

The first of these "breaks" was a penalty against the Army that forced Ken Fields to punt from back of his own goal line, instead of having the ball well up the field. From the 30-yard line, Wood engineered a quick scoring drive. His pass to Crickard put the ball on Army's four-yard line and on the second buck White scored.

Wood's Smart Play Averts Tie.

Here Wood pulled the smartest play of the game. He was set to drop-kick for the extra point, but the pass was low and he fumbled. Quickly recovering and then dodging Army tacklers, he raced around his left and to cross the line for the point that later proved decisive.

The second Harvard touchdown came quickly. Again an Army penalty, 15 yards for holding, enabled Harvard to gain the ball on the Cadet 36-yard line. White, on the next play, grabbed Wood's flat pass on Army's 9-yard line and scored easily. After which the captain drop-kicked for the point that put Harvard in front.

Wood, having won the game with his passing, kicking and quick-thinking, saved it with two spectacular defensive plays in the last period. The first was when he tackled Paul Johnson, Cadet halfback, from behind after this flashy boy from Ashland, O., had gotten into the clear. Johnson covered 58 yards before he was hauled down by Wood on Harvard's 22-yard line. Johnson got away later for another wild gallop on a pass from Fields, gaining 39 yards, but with a minute to play Wood intercepted Fields' next pass and returned the ball to Army's 36-yard line.

FLAGSTONE, OUTSIDER, VICTOR IN ONE-MILE LAUREL STAKES

WIDENER PAIR BADLY BEATEN IN MEETING'S BIGGEST UPSET

By the Associated Press.

LAUREL, Md., Oct. 17.—Flagstone, from the Linton Farms Stable, a rank outsider in the small field, was victor this afternoon in the nineteenth renewal of the Laurel Stakes, one-mile feature of the second Saturday of the meeting. The victory, the first of major importance for Flagstone, was worth $10,500 to his owners.

Clock Tower, from the M. L. Schwartz stable, was second, beaten by a short head, while two lengths further back was R. A. Fairbairn's Glastonbury. Backgammon was fourth, followed by Mr. Sponge and Curate, the J. E. Widener entries, and the Greentree Stable's Surfboard.

Many patrons were disappointed on the miserable showing of the Widener thoroughbreds.

"Daily Double" Pays $323.50.

Two long shots brought the spectators to their feet in the preceding race when Alton N. and Intruder, held at 70to 1 and 40 to 1 in the mutuels, made great fights for victory in the mile race. Senator Seth at 5 to 1 came on to win, with Alton N second and Intruder third.

Alton N. paid $88.46 to place and $29.86 to show while Intruder paid $14.30 to show.

With Bess Cloi and Shonna forming the winning combination in the second and third races, the "daily double" paid $323.50 and 40 investors held winning tickets. The management announced that 6920 tickets were sold in the special pool.

The "field" was the favorite in the first race, at six furlongs, and Vladimir, a field horse, galloped home with a margin of six lengths over Perfect Alibi, with Fortunate Mann third. The race was held up at the barrier when Favorit II ran away from the post and galloped a quarter of a mile before being brought under control.

Nichelson was the favorite in the second six-furlong sprint and appeared to be the winner until the band of nine reached the stretch. There Bess Cloi, an outsider, came to the front under a vigorous ride by Jockey Hernandez and snatched the victory away from Nichelson in the final strides. Bess Cloi paid the good price of $22.75 for $2 on the nose.

Shonna raced into an early lead in the third race, at one mile and 70 yards, and although tiring at the end had enough to stand off the challenge of Vanquish, second choice, about two-thirds of a length back in second place. Don Fernando was the favorite and ran unplaced, Corbeau taking third money.

Charlie, 3-year-old bay gelding, by Master Charles and Margaret Hampson, proved the best of a field of 12 in the six-furlong sixth race. Under Jockey J. Gianelloni, Charlie put four lengths between himself and the second place Top Cloud at the finish, with Eugene O'Sullivan a half length back in third place. Charlie ran the sprint in 1:14 2-5 and paid $11.02.

Three horses came down the stretch in a blanket finish in the seventh race and so far as the crowd knew it was anybody's race until the judges hung out the number of Uncle Charlie, Rave and Fair Catch as the winner, place and show horses, respectively. Uncle Charlie ran the mile and a furlong in 1:55 and paid $22.04.

Twelve horses raced over the mile and a furlong route in the final race of the day and the meeting. A field horse, Adalor T., proved the winner, with Esther Wiedel second by a length and a half and High Life third.

He's On His Way—Where?

Jack Dempsey is shown tuning up for his exhibition tour of 50 bouts. Or is it for a return to the ring as a title candidate? Many contend Dempsey is through and that comeback talk is mere ballyhoo for his exhibition tour. In any case, he has trained off a lot of weight, as the picture shows.

LAYTON QUALIFIES FOR DIVISIONAL BILLIARD TOURNAMENT

CHAMPAIGN, Ill., Oct. 17.—John Layton tonight defeated George Nuss, of Kansas City, and Coy Julian, of Springfield, Ill., in successive matches to win the championship of the north section of the south division pocket billiard tournament and the right to compete in the divisional tournament starting next Tuesday in St. Louis.

Layton defeated Nuss 100 to 69 in 14 innings, ending with a run of 59, which he continued by 27 in his first inning of his match with Julian for an unbroken string of 86 points. The score in the Layton-Julian match was 100 to 14 in six innings.

Nuss beat Julian in the first playoff match, 100 to 46.

HAINES WINNER AT TRAPS WITH 50 IN ROW

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

DAYTON, O., Oct. 17.—The sore shoulder of Jesse Haines, pride of Phillipsburg, O., did not keep him from winning a trapshoot at which he was the guest of honor today. Haines, although he had not shot at clay targets this year shouldered a gun that was strange to him and broke 50 straight from the 17-yard mark proving his eye at least is as good as ever.

KANSAS CITY POLOISTS DOWN ST. LOUIS, 9-4

The St. Louis County Club polo four played poorly yesterday afternoon in the first of a two-game series with the Kansas City Country Club horsemen. The visiting outfit, although it showed little in the way of teamwork, rode over the local team, 9 to 4. The second contest will be played this afternoon on the Country Club grounds, starting at 3 o'clock.

This is the second intercity series to be held here within a few weeks, St. Louis having won over the University of Missouri Tigers rather easily. Badly off form yesterday, the St. Louis men were unable to click in their offense, and Kansas City's riders scored in most of the periods.

The winners opened up their attack immediately in the first chukker, scoring two goals, but St. Louis came back in the second to knot the count, 3-3. From that time on Kansas City had easy going. With Wally Bales and Herb Peets starring in individual work, the remaining six goals were scored before the end of the fourth chukker. Play tightened in the fifth, the battle centering around the St. Louis goal, and in St. Louis' final effort, Mahlon Wallace shot a single goal through the posts late in the last period.

The lineups:

ST. LOUIS (4)	Pos.	KAN. CITY (9)
T. B. Boyd	No. 1	Walter Bales
Mahlon Wallace	No. 2	George Forrest
Bud Love	No. 3	Fred Harvey
Hayward Niedringhaus	No. 4	Herbert Peets

Alternates: Kansas City — Dinivible Groves; St. Louis—Bill Goltra, Clint Whittemore.

Score by chukkers:

St. Louis	0	3	0	0	0	1	—4
Kansas City	2	3	1	3	0	0	—9

Goals: St. Louis—Niedringhaus 2, Wallace 2; Kansas City—Bales 4, Peets 3, Forrest 2.

Officials: Referee—Alex T. Primm. Umpire—Capt. Cronelly.

Time of chukkers—Seven and one-half minutes.

E. St. Louis and Belleville Win

Some 1500 Southwestern Conference football fans saw the East St. Louis high school "Flyers" defeat the Granite City "Happy Warriors" yesterday afternoon at the Parsons Field in East St. Louis, 12-3, in an exciting battle.

Both teams were off to a slow start and the first quarter saw no scoring.

Late in the second period, East St. Louis punted and Aufderheide ran the ball back about 10 yards. Granite City then opened up a passing attack that netted about 45 yards and then in the last 20 seconds of play, Aufderheide dropkicked the ball between the bars from the 17-yard line for the first score of the game.

When the East St. Louisans took the field at the half they were a new team and started some line plunging that the "Happy Warriors" could not stop and soon Kavalier threw a long pass to Chambers, who trotted across the goal line.

In the final quarter Fash recovered a Granite City fumble and on two line plunges Kavalier got over for the second East Side touchdown.

The lineups of the game follows:

East St. Louis.	Pos.	Granite City.
Holten	L. E.	Bozarth
Egan	L. T.	Marcousky
F. Smith	L. G.	Sley
Fash	C.	Berendt

Kavalier	F. B.	Haack
Hinson	L. H. B.	Jhannigemeier
Chambers	R. H. B.	Henson
B. Smith	Q. B.	Aufderheide

Substitutions: East St. Louis—Browning for Schneider; Wheller for Hinson; Theiss for B. Smith; Kissalbach for F. Smith; Ernrst for Fash; Simpson for Kissalbach; Smith for Chambers; Sheehay for Browning; Schneider for Sheehay. Granite City—Moss for Bozarth; McCormich for Johannagmeier; Rupp for Konyica; Zachny for Slew; Curry for Nelson; Worthern for Haack.

Officials—Filley (Lebanon), referee; Rothacker (Alton), umpire; Newsom (Illinois), head linesman.

Score by quarters:

	1	2	3	4
Granite City	0	3	0	0	— 3
East St. Louis	0	0	6	6	—12

Touchdowns—Kavalier (East St. Louis); Chambers (East St. Louis). Field goal—Aufderheide (Granite City).

Belleville Downs Madison, 14-0.

The Belleville "Maroons" defeated the Madison High football team yesterday afternoon at Madison, 14 to 0, for their second Southwestern Conference victory.

Bad passes and fumbles marred the game.

Becker scored for Belleville in the second quarter and added the extra point with another plunge.

The third quarter saw the Madison eleven threaten the Belleville goal for the first time in the game when they completed seven passes and then when they tried to put the ball over for the touchdown failed and the Belleville team kicked out of danger.

In the fourth quarter, on a long pass, Saint Eve to Walker, Belleville registered its second touchdown and on a pass, Saint Eve to Walker, the extra point was added.

The lineups follows:

BELLEVILLE	Pos.	MADISON
Stonewater	L. E.	McDonnel
Randle	L. T.	Serum
Schemmesuer	L. G.	Williams
Ervin	C.	Rydzig

SAUSSELE TO PLAY FOOTBALL FOR BATTERY A

Ted (Red) Saussele is to play football again, in St. Louis.

Capt. Robert Sampson of Battery A, Missouri National Guard, announced yesterday that the battery was putting a professional team in the field, with Saussele as the central figure.

The Battery team, to be known as the "Gunners," will play at Public Schools Stadium, Capt. Sampson announced, beginning next Sunday. The team will be made up of former local and out-of-town college players, including Scott Hornsby, who was a teammate of Saussele's at Washington University.

Negotiations are under way with the Kansas City Plowboys and the Peoria Fans Association team for the opening game.

Saussele says he turned down offers from the Chicago Cardinals and the Providence team of the National Professional Football League before agreeing to play with the Battery team. The redhead made a lasting football reputation for himself last Thanksgiving day when he virtually played the whole game for Washington U. in its tie with St. Louis U., 7-7, in their annual contest. Saussele became ineligible to play this season with the Bears because of scholastic deficiencies before the last school year was up and played professional baseball during the summer.

Sampson said a meeting of players had been called for tomorrow evening at the Battery A, and that practice would be held Tuesday.

ILLINOIS DOWNS STUBBORN BRADLEY ELEVEN BY 20-0

CHAMPAIGN, Ill., Oct. 17.—Illinois defeated a stubborn Bradley Tech football team here today, 20 to 0. The three Illinois touchdowns were scored by Gil Berry, Ed Snavely and John Evans. The latter raced 47 yards in the fourth quarter for his score. Herman Walser and Bob Horsley kicked the extra points.

McClarence raced 75 yards for Bradley in the third quarter but was stopped just short of his goal line.

NOTRE DAME TURNS ON FULL POWER TO CRUSH DRAKE BY 63-0

COACH ANDERSON USES 57 PLAYERS AND THEY MAKE 23 FIRST DOWNS

By the Associated Press.

SOUTH BEND, Ind., Oct. 17.—The pent-up fury of Notre Dame's big football army fell on the valiant but out-classed Bulldogs from Drake today and they were submerged by a one-sided score of 63 to 0, the largest scoring avalanche to victimize them since they started playing the "Fighting Irish."

Smarting under the criticism received for failing to score against Northwestern in the mud of Soldiers' field a week before the touchdown-makers of Notre Dame paraded up and down the field with monotonous regularity from the middle of the first period on.

Even the stanchest followers of Notre Dame football fortunes, accustomed to seeing Drake throw up a great defense each year, were somewhat awed by the rapidity of the Irish touchdown combinations. Fifty-seven players, two more than five complete teams, were used in action but still the Huskies from little Drake couldn't stop the attack. The more substitutes to enter the game, the more bewildering was the rush toward the Drake goal.

So overwhelming was Notre Dame's superiority with first, second, third, fourth and fifth team combinations that they were forced to punt but once, early in the first period. The statistics of ground gaining resembled the work of an adding machine expert, Notre Dame gaining 636 yards from the line of scrimmage to but 60 for Drake. Of the 28 first downs scored, Notre Dame collected 23 to Drake's 5, while most of the touchdowns came by long runs, which saw the Notre Dame backs blocking beautifully, and the ball carriers fighting, squirming and pulling as if each yard meant the difference between victory and defeat.

MRS. WALLACE WINS DISTRICT GOLF TITLE FOR FOURTH TIME

green but she exploded out to within 5 feet of the pin.

Mrs. Wallace missed her bid for a three but a four won when Mrs. Hynes took a 5.

Then Mrs. Wallace shot two birdies in a row at the fourth and fifth after she lost the third with a 5 to Mrs. Hynes' par 4. That put Mrs. Wallace but one down.

At the sixth hole Mrs. Hynes had a good drive while Mrs. Wallace was in a trap, but being a trap shooter, she got out nicely while Mrs. Hynes' second was over the green and she chipped back far over the hole and took three putts while Mrs. Wallace got 5.

Mrs. Hynes missed an easy putt for a half at the seventh and mussed up the eighth to be 2 down. She hit two fine shots to the ninth green and her par 4 put her one down when Mrs. Wallace, after making a nice shot from behind a tree, missed her putt for a 4.

Match Squared at Tenth.

They halved the tenth in 4s and the eleventh in 5s. Mrs. Wallace's tee shot at the twelfth was in the rough, so was her second. She was finally on in 4 while Mrs. Hynes was on in the same number of strokes but ran down a 10-foot putt for a win, to square the match again.

Mrs. Wallace's tee shot at the thirteenth ran over the cup and to the back of the green but she chipped back while Mrs. Hynes, in the rough to the right, came back over the green and was short with her third. She missed her try for a 4 and Mrs. Wallace was 1 up when she got down in two putts.

Mrs. Wallace played the fourteenth badly after being even in number of strokes with Mrs. Hynes on the green. She putted past the cup going uphill for her 4 and took two more to get down while Mrs. Hynes won with a five and once more the match was squared.

Final Break on 17th.

They halved the fifteenth and sixteenth, while on the seventeenth Mrs. Wallace was behind some trees to the right and Mrs. Hynes in a grove to the left. They both chipped out to the fairway. Mrs. Hynes was to the left with her third and Mrs. Wallace was short. Each chipped to within four feet of the pin but Mrs. Hynes missed her putt while Mrs. Wallace canned her four-footer to be one up.

Connors Tuning Up Early in Game to Score Three Roosevelt Touchdowns

—By a Post-Dispatch Staff Photographer.

The Rough Rider halfback didn't go so far on this play in the opening quarter of the game with C. B. C., but he got up full speed in the second half and crossed the opposition's goal line three times.

CONNORS STARS AS ROOSEVELT DEFEATS C.B.C

Jack Connors, fleet-footed Roosevelt High back, ran wild in the second half, scoring three touchdowns, and helping the Rough Riders to defeat Christian Brothers College, 26 to 6, in an inter-league football game yesterday afternoon at the Public Schools Stadium.

The Brothers took the lead when Russ Braudrick scored in the opening quarter, but Roosevelt came back with two touchdowns in each of the third and fourth periods to win the contest. Connors made two nice runs, one for 40 and the other for 30 yards, to put the Rough Riders in the lead after the third quarter. Joe Arbini added one extra point to make the count 13.

In the final session Connors made a short run to score his third touchdown. A series of line plunges carried the ball to the Brothers' three-yard line, from where Woods scored for the fourth tally. Henry Krause's place kick was the twenty-sixth point.

Clayton Wins in New Stadium

Clayton High School dedicated its new athletic stadium yesterday afternoon and defeated Principia Academy, 12-7, before a crowd of about 800 persons.

Clayton scored before three minutes of play had elapsed. Leroy Litzinger went around end for 15 yards and a touchdown. Oliver's try for the extra point failed.

Clayton scored again in the fourth quarter after paving the way in the third, when a Principia pass was intercepted. Passes helped put the ball on the 1-yard line, from where Oliver carried it over. An attempted pass for the extra point failed.

Principia's tally came in the closing seconds of play, after Kussman intercepted a Clayton pass on his 48-yard line. Stitt passed to Bolls for 30 yards, and the rest of the distance was covered by Smith, who carried the ball on line plunges. Stitt drop-kicked the extra point.

WRAY'S COLUMN

hastened to Chicago where he finally closed a deal for Taft and himself that gave them the club, its players, franchise and even its baseball park, for $105,000!

Murphy Won Four Pennants.

THAT very year, led by Frank Chance, the "peerless leader," the team won the championship and in the next four more years it added three more pennants and two world titles to its achievements.

Its value was enhanced amazingly and in the ensuing years it came to be about the most valuable franchise of its day.

In the end Murphy acquired much of the holdings of Taft and finally when the club was sold Murphy was said to have obtained a million dollars as his share. In a decade he had run a baseball shoestring into what was then fabulous wealth.

He Had Nerve.

MURPHY was little, but he was a stick of dynamite. He caused the baseball world to gasp in horrified amazement—even more so than did Sam Breadon when he handed Rogers Hornsby his hat and bade him good-bye.

That was when Murphy, incensed at the rough and tough tactics of Manager Frank Chance fired the "peerless leader," forcing him to sell his stock in the club.

Murphy told the world and in a loud voice, that instead of a "peerless leader," Chance was just a blundering rough-neck. He said he wouldn't have him around because he didn't know what a manager's job meant and because he was a bad influence with the players.

The world thought Murphy ought to be taken to the observation ward, canning a leader who had won four championships and two world pennants!

"Chance didn't win anything," Murphy retorted. "A club of players like that couldn't help but win. They didn't need a manager. They might have won even more games if they hadn't had Chance," he said in substance at least.

Man, that was a tough one to swallow, especially for a club that, under Chance, had set a record of 116 victories for one season—a mark which stands today!

When Chance Failed.

EVENTS seemed to prove Murphy was right. He was hired as manager by the New York "Highlanders" (now the Yankees); but despite a famous lot of players under his direction, he failed dismally.

One of his much-talked-of acts as manager of the New York club was to place Hal Chase, the most famous first-baseman of his day and some still contend of all time at second base. That's almost heresy in baseball. At any rate, it about did for Chance as a leader of standing. He dropped from public view.

Ever since Murphy's daring stand, club owners have been prone to soft-pedal the importance of a manager and credit success to the players. They can't forget, too, that Connie Mack himself, needed 15 years to reproduce a pennant winner.

What, Again?

THE National Boxing Association must be suffering from loss of memory. Yesterday it issued a bulletin announcing that it had severed all connection with wrestling.

More than a year ago at Omaha, it issued an announcement to the same effect. In any case, we would like to inquire what boxing has to do with wrestling?

There is a great difference between the two pastimes: In wrestling the athletes throw one another out of the ring. In boxing, the referee does the throwing for them.

We are glad, however, that the N. B. A. has the wrestlers off its mind. Henceforth it will be able to mess up only one sport.

Means Well, But —

THE National Boxing Association means well; but at present all its efforts have been devoted to paving a locality noted for its high thermal extremes.

Nor is it likely to accomplish much until it has taken in the entire country and provided a national board to scrutinize and approve all rulings by state commissions.

At present the commission is all snarled up. Its various members seldom indorse any policy as a whole or support penalties unanimously. The reason for this is that local commissioners are not always impartial and play home favorites or act according to local conditions.

It would be a fine thing if the National Association could get its members to submit all cases to review by a national commission and abide by the findings of that body.

FUMBLE COSTS TIGERS VICTORY OVER COLORADO

By the Associated Press.

BOULDER, Colo., Oct. 17.—The University of Colorado turned back Missouri's Tigers here today, 9 to 7, in a game climaxed by a dramatic second half.

Their running game stopped through the first two periods, the Tigers took to the air with a vengeance in the fourth quarter. Alternately short and long passes finally brought a touchdown with Stuber throwing to Hatfield in the clear.

Missouri appeared discouraged in the third period. Colorado had added a touchdown to a field goal scored late in the first half for a 9 to 0 lead. It took Missouri some time to spot the Mountaineers' weakness, but once they had found it they passed on nearly every play.

Tiger Fumble Costly.

The Tigers had a fine chance to win the game in the last quarter. Stuber, Missouri's flashy 155-pound quarterback, ran back 15 yards and shot a long pass into the waiting arms of Edmiston who had gotten behind the Colorado safety. Edmiston juggled the ball and dropped it.

The Missouri aerial attack bogged down after that and with both lineups crammed with substitutes the game developed into a give-and-take in line smashes.

Colorado set the pace in the aerial game for the first three periods, attempting 14, but completing only three. One of these, however, was indirectly responsible for the first score, a 25-yard placement by Ray Stenzil, who substituted for Nelson at fullback.

Colorado massed its line attack at the Missouri left tackle in the third quarter and by hammering at that sector with Nelson working a crossbuck, worked the ball to within a few inches of the goal and Nelson crashed over on fourth down. McGlone missed the placement for the extra point.

Colorado Outgained Missouri.

Colorado outgained the Tigers in the rush line, piling up a total of 214 yards to Missouri's 108. Colorado's three passes netted 57 yards and the Big Six representatives completed five of the 24 attempted for 53 yards.

Nelson, Colorado's strapping fullback, was the leading ground gainer, making 105 yards in 21 attempts. It took Colorado more than two periods to find that Missouri's line was vulnerable, as most of the Westerners' attack was comprised of passes and sweeps toward the ends.

Willen to Meet Eddie Zilatis In Amateur Bout

Freddy Willen, junior lightweight champion of the Mississippi Valley A. A., and Eddie Zilatis of Collinsville, Ill., will meet in an intercity event announced last night by Matchmaker Willie Miller as one of the special attractions featuring an amateur boxing tourney to be held Thursday night at the South Broadway A. C., 2301 South Seventh boulevard.

Irwin Streibel, a heavyweight teammate of Willen on the South Broadway squad; Joe Huff, welterweight ace of the E-K Athletic Club, and Victor Gimarino, flashy Jefferson A. C. featherweight will be on the card.

Eighteen boxers, including seven of Class A rating, have filed entries for the preliminary events, open to registered amateur scrappers of every division.

Pro Soccer League Opens Today With 50-Cent Charge; Teams on Percentage Basis

Professional soccer, at reduced prices, will be inaugurated with the opening of the 1931-32 championship race of the St. Louis Soccer League at Sportsman's Park this afternoon.

The cut in the price of admission to 50 cents will not be the only change. Two of the clubs will have new names; there will be at least one new manager, Bill Lehman, in charge of the Stix, Baer and Fullers; the players will be numbered and the athletes will be toiling on a percentage basis and not on a straight guarantee of $10 for victory, $8 for a tie and $6 for a defeat, as has been the case in the last few seasons.

First Game at 2 O'Clock.

One man who has been identified with soccer in this city for a long time will be missing. He is Tate Brady, one of the greatest fullbacks St. Louis has ever owned, a man who led the Scullins to one of the National championships this city has won. Willie Foley has thrown up the sponge as a stockholder, but remains as manager of the Ben Millers. New stockholders are John J. Dwyer and J. Arthur Anderson.

The opening day schedule pits the Andersons, formerly the Tablers, against the Coca Colas at 2 o'clock, while the Stix, Baer and Fullers, last season the Hellrungs, will battle the Ben Millers in the second battle. Jimmy Londos will kick off to start the second game. Halves will be of 35 minutes duration, with Len Zeuschel as referee.

The season will be the twenty-first for the organization, during which time clubs representing the league have won two national championships and have been runners-up on five occasions.

New Goal Keepers.

Although some new players have been signed by the various teams, it is probable that a majority of those who will see action in the opening games will be veterans. The Andersons will show a new "goalie" in Tom Hendren, who has been starring with Gillespie, Ill. There also is a chance that P. Campbell, from the Muny League, will break in at fullback. J. Vitale, a halfback, also may be given a chance. While there are newcomers, Al McHenry, who was a star when the old Ben Millers won the National title in 1920, will be at his regular position at outside right. He can still hold his own with the youngsters for the simple reason that he never gets out of condition.

Like the Andersons, Phil Kavanaugh will show a new "goalie" with the champion Coca-Colas in Jim Geisler. Bernie Chartrand, a halfback, and Pat Riedy, forward, are newcomers in the team's line-up.

Makes Debut as Soccer Manager

BILL LEHMAN.

Mulroy at Center Forward.

With Lehman making his debut as manager of the Stix-Baer & Fullers, the team will probably open with but one new man, W. Corbett, at halfback. Willie Foley, manager of the Ben Millers, may use M. Connors in place of Frank Vaughan at fullback, while F. Luckett will be at outside left. One of the notable changes with the Millers is the fact that Tal Mulroy, always considered a fine wing man and a speedy one, has been shifted to the center forward position. This move puts Syl Curran and Luckett on the wings, with Larry Kickham and Benny Nash at the inside forward positions.

Among the notable absentees in addition to Tate Brady will be Charley LaBarge, for years one of the best goalkeepers in the city, and Ollie Fink, a fine halfback here for years.

Local elevens have been playing practice games and working out in gymnasiums for the past two weeks. Thus the players are in pretty good condition to go at top speed.

ST. LOUIS U. HIGH BEATS WESTERN IN LEAGUE GAME

St. Louis U. High opened the Prep League football season yesterday by defeating Western Military Academy of Alton, 21-7. The game was played at Walsh Memorial Stadium.

During the first quarter neither team was able to get the ball very far into enemy territory. A 30-yard run by Bernsen a few minutes after the start of the second quarter put St. Louis near the Cadets' goal, and on the next play Coyle went over the line. Egan made the kick for the extra point.

After that Western tightened up its defense, but in the fourth quarter the Junior Billikens broke through the line for a total of 14 points. A pass intercepted by Fitzwilliams at the 20-yard line netted a touchdown for St. Louis, and a few minutes later Bernsen pinned the ball to the ground after it had bounced out of his hands as he scrambled across. Egan made the kick for the extra point in both instances.

HARVARD COMES FROM BEHIND TO BEAT ARMY, 14-13

and out-played the Cadet forwards despite the great tackling of Captain Price of the Army. Twice, however, the soldiers held for downs inside their 5-yard line. At the outset of the game and again in the third period.

Harvard registered 19 first downs to 10 for Army but the Cadets out-rushed their foes, 262 yards to 203. Wood completed five passes for gains of 119 yards while Army completed two for gains of 78 yards.

The victory preserved Harvard's record of never being beaten at West Point. This was the first game played here since 1910. It was the Crimson's first triumph, however, since relations were resumed after a long lapse in 1928.

WISCONSIN'S EARLY SCORES UPSET PURDUE

MADISON, Wis., Oct. 17.—Flashing an offense that dazed their opponents in the first period, Wisconsin scored three touchdowns in rapid succession to defeat Purdue, 21 to 14 in a Dad's day game played before 35,000 persons here today.

The game was only five minutes old when a surprising 80-yard drive sent the Badgers across the Purdue goal line for the first touchdown. Eight minutes later came the second, due in part to a Purdue fumble which Wisconsin recovered on the Boilermakers' 25-yard line. A blocked punt brought the third Wisconsin touchdown.

Linfor, Schneller and McGuire, Badger stars in the first period offensive, alternated in taking the ball to the three-yard line. Schneller hurtled over for the counter. Linford kicked the extra point. After a short punting duel Haworth recovered Horstmann's fumble on the latter's 25-yard line and Schneller's pass to Lovshin on the 10-yard line put the Badgers in position to score again. Schneller went over and Linfor again kicked goal.

After the third kickoff, Purdue's running attack was checked by a 15-yard penalty that put the ball on the nine-yard line. Kabat broke through and blocked Moss' punt, falling on the ball for the third touchdown. The Badgers' scoring ended when Linfor kicked the extra point.

At the start of the third period the Boilermakers opened their offensive.

Purvis, Horstmann and Hecker went 20 yards on a series of reverse plays and a pass, Hecker to Moss, was good for 16 yards. Pardonner then took a pass from Hecker and went over for a touchdown.

Hecker shot a 26-yard pass to Purvis that paved the way for another touchdown. Pardonner faked a pass which drew the Badgers out of position and then ran across the goal line. Pardonner drop-kicked for both extra points.

Kansas Aggies Defeat Kansas, Big Six Champions

By the Associated Press.

LAWRENCE, Kan., Oct. 17.—A sophomore battering ram and a bewildering pass attack devised by Coach A. N. (Bo) McMillin enabled the Kansas Aggies to humble the Kansas University Big Six champions, 13 to 0, here today in the Jayhawkers' first 1931 test against Conference opposition.

Before a crowd of 15,000, Ralph Graham, sophomore halfback, sent Kansas State into the lead by scoring a touchdown in the second period on half a dozen successive drives at the wilting Jayhawker line. And this sophomore flash recovered a fumble that sent the Aggies on their second and final touchdown advance.

KARTHEISER TO MEET OTTO STEIN TONIGHT

A special treat for local bowling fans will be offered at the Washington Alleys at 8 o'clock tonight when Frank Kartheiser of the famous Mineralite bowling team of Chicago will appear against Otto Stein Jr., local star in a seven-game match. Kartheiser, one of the leading tenpinners of the country and former holder of the world's match game title is well known to St. Louis fans, having appeared here last season in a series of matches against Ray Holmes, Lee Martin and Stein.

Stein yesterday defeated Art Moehle of the Alexander & Sons team in the initial match of a series of 210 pins. Stein rolling 1491 for the seven games and Moehle 1271. Stein had a high game of 235 and Moehle 210. The scores:

Stein Jr.—

What Every Deer Hunter Should Know

OPEN SEASON—Oct. 22, 23, 24.

LIMIT—One buck deer of four prongs to each antler.

LEGAL WEAPON—A gun propelling one all-lead, or lead alloy, or soft nosed, or expanding bullet or ball at a single discharge.

USE OF DOGS—It is illegal to use dogs in hunting, chasing, taking or killing deer, or to hunt deer in any manner except by the use of the gun and ball described above.

HUNTING IN STREAMS—It is unlawful at all times to shoot at, kill, wound, capture or attempt any of these when the quarry has taken refuge in a stream or lake.

DAYLIGHT LIMITS—It is unlawful to hunt deer before sunrise or after sunset.

LICENSE—It is unlawful to hunt deer without a special deer license of $1.50 in addition to the State hunting license, except in case of a landowner hunting on his own property.

DEER TAGS—Every hunter who kills a deer must immediately affix his "deer tag" with the date and name on it, to the carcass.

SHIPPING—Shipment of a deer not properly tagged is a violation of the law.

PENALTY—Imprisonment for not less than 30 days nor more than two years, and a fine of from $100 to $500.

ONE FOUR-PRONG BUCK BAG LIMIT FOR THREE-DAY HUNTING PERIOD

By John E. Wray.

This week will see the peak of the outdoor recreation season for the Izaak Waltons and nimrods of Missouri. For hunters the season on duck, geese and other water fowl opens and for the first time since 1924, it will be legal to hunt deer in this State.

Taken altogether there are more "open" seasons for hunting and fishing combined, beginning this week, than at any other period of the 12 months. October is one of three months in which practically all restrictions are down against fishing, both as to method of the catch and kind of fish that are seasonable.

In addition to ducks, the season opens Tuesday for eight other kinds of wild fowl. Dove and squirrel shooting have been legal for some time and the three-day deer season will lend an added attraction for those who have been deprived of this sport in recent years.

Migratory Fowl Season.

The migratory wild fowl season opens Oct. 20 in Missouri and will continue until Nov. 19, under the new Federal law. While the Missouri State game law permits spring shooting and a fall opening of the duck season on Sept. 15, this is nullified by the migratory bird act. It is worthy of note that the open season does not begin immediately after midnight on Oct. 20, but starts at noon hour of that date.

Another feature worth remembering is that while Missouri's Federal duck hunting period opens Oct. 20, the duck season in Illinois does not begin until Nov. 1. The dividing line between the two states is the middle of the stream and as a consequence hunters must remain on the Missouri half up to Nov. 1 and can only hunt on the Illinois side of the stream after Nov. 1 if they hold an Illinois non-resident license.

The opening of the deer season is the big moment for the State Game and Fish Commission under John H. Ross. There is much interest and some anxiety as to what will happen. Under the new State game law, Oct. 22, 23 and 24 are the days on which hunters, under certain restrictions, may each kill the legal limit of one buck deer, which shall have not fewer than four prongs on each antler.

In 1925 a survey was made of deer in the State and the ensuing report that only about 500 remained caused the closure of deer hunting. Since that time deer have accumulated rapidly and it is estimated now that the total number in the State exceeds 10,000 and that there are more than 500 buck deer eligible for the 1931 kill. This increase determined the Legislature to lift the ban on deer hunting. The original plan called for a closed season until 1933.

Licenses and "Tags."

Several thousands of deer licenses and "tags" have been placed in the hands of officials in the various cities and counties and it is anticipated that about 20,000 will be issued. However, judging by the demand in St. Louis this estimate is far too great. Fewer than 100 deer licenses had been issued at the local office up to noon today.

Parties already have been organized, however, and one of these under the leadership of Carl A. Trumbull of 119 North Seventh street, will hunt out of Van Buren in Carter County. A number of deer have been released from State parks in that vicinity and this, in addition to the fact that high water drove many deer out of Arkansas into the hills of Carter County, should enhance the shooting there.

The concentration of deer, according to advices from the State Game Commissioner's office is in about 20 counties of the State as follows: Osage, Maries, Cole, Gasconade, Crawford, Dent, Washington, St. Francois, Jefferson, Franklin, Ste. Genevieve, Iron, Reynolds, Madison, Shannon, Carter, Wayne, Oregon, Ripley, Butler, Ozark, Taney, Stone and Barry counties. Of these the greatest assembly of buck deer "eligible" under the State law, is reported in Taney, Oregon, Ripley, Butler, Pemiscot, Franklin, Wayne, Carter, Shannon, Gasconade and Osage.

The State Game and Fish Department has provided information as to where hunters may obtain guides and also the best outfitting points. A marked map indicates the likely starting points for hunters as follows: Owensville, Gasconade County; Potosi, Washington County; Sligo and Salem, Dent County; Ava, Douglas County; Blue Eye, Stone County; Protea and Branson, Taney County; Eminence, Shannon County; Thomasville and Alton, Oregon County; Van Buren and Chilton, Carter County; Doniphan, Ripley County; Piedmont and Greenville, Wayne County; Poplar Bluff, Butler County; Charleston, Mississippi County; Clarkton, New Madrid, Kennett, Dunklin County.

The commissioner's office also has prepared the following list of guides available for deer hunters:

Wayne County—Ralph Hinch, Greenville; J. O. Graham, Clarence Ward, George Burch, Burch.

Butler County—E. C. Graham, Bob Graham, Walter Thomas, Poplar Bluff; Jim Moore, Ten Mile.

Ripley County — Bill McCourt, Charlie Richmond, J. A. Pulhan, Joe Crockett, W. H. Hubbard and Skipper Johnson, Doniphan.

Gasconade County — George Stoenner, Bay; Clarence Wicker, George Diestlekamp and Ed Farris, Owensville.

Douglas County—Burrel Davis, Ava.

Dunklin County—Mr. Bounds, Deering; Mr. Hamilton, Bragg City.

Pemiscot County—Mr. Priest, Bragg City.

Oregon County—Blue Pierce, Thomasville; Levi Ward and Oscar Lucas, Bardley, and John Cooper, Thomasville.

Taney County—Jim Sheetz, Kirbyville; Bill Young, Branson; Edgar Blankenship, Protem, and John Ray, Forsyth.

Dent County—E. Clinton, V. Cotner, Salem; Ott Key and Albert Ellis, William O'Dell, Sligo.

Carter County—John Kesten and John Campbell Chilton; Dick Moore and Riley Hilton, Van Buren.

Owing to the serious aspect of the waterfowl season both state and Federal game protectors may be expected to severely enforce conservation laws pertaining to ducks and geese. Motor boat shooting, shooting before one-half hour prior to sunrise or after sunset, and exceeding the bag limit carries with them severe penalties in both state and Federal courts.

Hunters are warned against shooting grebes or "hell divers," herons, pelicans, gulls or other migrating birds as these are protected by both state and Federal laws.

Many Ducks Seen.

Many waterfowls already have been observed in Missouri and cold weather in Northern States would send the principal flight through this State without warning.

beautiful interference raced 80 yards for a touchdown.

Bear Defense Crumbles.

The Bears came out after the half intermission and actually played Creighton on even terms until well toward the end of the period. The Jays were breaking away for an occasional run but each had made three first downs for the period when Creighton finally intercepted Tyrrell's pass on Washington's 14-yard line. In three plays Creighton had scored another touchdown and the game was safely tucked away.

The Bear defense completely crumbled during the fourth quarter and Creighton passed, plunged through the line and skirted the ends with unusual success. During the final quarter Creighton scored two touchdowns, holding the Bears scoreless.

DE MOLAY FOOTBALL LEAGUE LEADERS TO SEE ACTION TODAY

Coach Max Kaiser's Perfection squad and Coach Roland Neumann's St. Louis Chapter gridders, co-leaders in the De Molay Football League, are slated to meet in the feature tilt of the two scheduled this afternoon at the Cleveland High School field. Both of these elevens have captured two straight decisions and the winner of this contest will take undisputed possession of first place. Carondelet, the defending champions, will attempt to score its first victory of the season, when they oppose Harmony at 1:30 o'clock.

VASHON HIGH SCHOOL WINS ON FORFEIT, 1-0

Vashon High School won over the Attucks High School eleven of Indianapolis at Stars' Park yesterday afternoon, 1 to 0, by forfeit. The Attucks team was leading, 6 to 0, when its coach objected to an official's decision and took his players off the field.

Nationals Play High Ridge.

The Nationals will close their season today at High Ridge, meeting the High Ridge team, which has been strengthened for this game with several Cardinal farm players. The game will probably be Orville Paul's last appearance in a National uniform, as he has signed with the House of David Club.

BELFAST, Ireland, Oct. 17.—England defeated Ireland at soccer today six goals to two.

THREE CITIES TO FIGURE IN HUNT CLUB MEET HERE ON OCTOBER 24

Three cities will be represented in the steeplechase racing meet which will be run here on Oct. 24 under the auspices of the Bridlespur Hunt Club of Huntleigh village, over the Huntleigh Downs course at Clayton and Denny roads. Kansas City and Chicago Clubs in addition to the local organization, all members of the Mississippi Valley Steeplechase Association, will take part in the events.

The meet will be the second on the fall program of the Association, the first having been held at Chicago by the Onwentsia Hunt Club. On Oct. 31 the Mission Valley Club of Kansas City will conduct a third meet.

Previously these three clubs held independent annual meetings. This year they decided to combine their efforts in promoting amateur steeplechasing in this section of the country and formed the Mississippi Valley Steeplechase Association, which will make possible larger purses for their events and also encourage the exchanging of entries for each other's meets.

The sanction of the National Hunt and Steeplchase Association has been granted the race meetings of the new group, which means the meetings will receive national recognition and will be conducted up to the standard of the best steeplechase in the country. It also means that the middlewest may expect to see for the first time those famous horses from all parts of the country, whose owners only enter them in recognized chases.

Gold Cup Race a Feature.

The most interesting event of the day will be the running of the Mississippi Valley Gold Cup. One of the most important entries for this race will be Maitland, owned by Austin H. Niblack of Lake Forest, Ill. Maitland is one of the outstanding steeplechase horses in the country today. He has been entered in the most difficult and famous chases in this country and was a winner last Saturday in Chicago. He ran third to Sea Soldier with an inexperienced rider at the Grassland Course, last year. He will be ridden by Eric W. L. Atterbury, gentleman jockey, who has ridden winners in England, Australia, France and Ireland and in this country. Pendennis, owned by Mrs. J. F. Jelke Jr. of Lake Forest, Illinois will also be in this race. He ran a close second to Maitland over the three-mile timber course in Chicago last week and with the additional schooling he has received in the meantime should be among the horses to cross the finishing line first. Benjamin Leslie Behr has three entries for this event, King Star, Hawkins and Pan The Piper, all fine jumpers. Mitchel Wallace Jr., of Racine, Wis., will enter Voltage.

Other Noted Entries.

Others who are sending horses for the Bridlespur Races will be Ralph Jurden of Kansas City, who will ship his Reno, which has entered eight steeplechase races and never been defeated; Frank Baker of Kansas City has entered his Brown Parcel, which ran third to Maitland last Saturday; Leroy Naffziger of Kansas City, Belknap Hawkes of Kansas City and Warrell Clarkson of White Bear Lake, Minn. Col. Flodstrom of the Swedish Cavalry will be here to ride August A. Busch Jr.'s great horse, Flit.

Bridlespur Huntleigh Downs Course has been improved and is in the best of shape. The stand has been made larger and the facilities for those entering horses as well as for the spectators have been greatly improved.

The events will be public and the club has announced that everyone is cordially invited. Those who are interested in horses and racing will have an opportunity of seeing the most colorful and thrilling spectacle of this kind that has ever been held in St. Louis.

WESTERN "A" PLAYER SCORES THREE TIMES, BEATS COUNTRY DAY

With Don Putney running wild to score three touchdowns in as many quarters, the Western "A" football team defeated the Country Day eleven at Codasco yesterday afternoon by a score of 19 to 0. The highlight of Putney's attack came in the third period, when he took the ball around left end and ran 50 yards to score. His other touchdowns were counted on line plays close to the goal line. Country Day was outclassed and its ragged play caused many penalties.

Changed Their Games.

Marshall Blackstock and Tommy Marvin, current wrestlers, were both formerly prize fighters.

INDIANA AND IOWA PLAY SCORELESS TIE

IOWA CITY, Ia., Oct. 17.—Stopping a last-quarter Iowa drive eight yards from the goal, Indiana gained a 0-to-0 tie with the Hawkeyes today before a crowd of approximately 18,000 homecoming fans in their resumption of Big Ten football relations after a 10-year interim.

CARD OF THANKS

We wish to extend our sincere thanks to our relatives and many friends for their kind sympathy shown us in our sad bereavement in the loss of our dear beloved one, Anna P. Rinderknecht. We especially thank the Rev. Theodore Braun for his consoling words, Prof. Carl Braun, Miss Poehler, Mrs. Schreiber, St. James Ladies' Aid, the pallbearers, Math. Hermann & Son's, undertakers, for their kind and efficient service, and for the many beautiful floral offerings.
RINDERKNECHT FAMILY.

Mrs. Meta Wunderlich, wife of the late George H. Wunlerlich, wishes to thank all of her relatives and friends for their kindness and sympathy extended her during her late sad bereavement and for their many beautiful floral offerings. Also Rev. Joseph Frenz for his consoling words, the soloist, Mr. Frank Spahn, and the pallbearers for their participation.

We wish to express our sincere thanks and appreciation to our many friends and relatives who were so kind to us during our recent bereavement and also for the beautiful floral offerings.
MRS. KATHERINE SCHULDE AND DAUGHTER.

IN MEMORIAM

ALPHONSE—In loving memory of Leroi Michael Alphonse, who departed this life Oct. 21, 1922:
In our hearts your memory lingers always,
Tender fond and true;
There is not a day, dear Leroi,
We do not think of you.
Sadly missed by
FATHER, MOTHER AND SISTER.

COLLET—Mary Collet, Oct. 20, 1930. A tribute to the memory of a loyal and devoted mother. GEORGE COLLET.

DAZINSKAS—Vincent: died Oct. 19, 1930:
Gone is the face we loved so dear,
Silent is the voice we loved to hear;
Sweet to remember him who once was here
And who, though absent, is just as dear.
MOTHER, SISTER AND BROTHER.

DORR—In loving memory of my dear mother, Nellie Dorr who departed this life Oct. 16, 1929:
Her memory is as dear today as in the hour she passed away.
Sadly missed by her daughter,
MRS. CHARLES H. HUG AND SON-IN-LAW.

FAGAN—Mollie Fagan. In sad but loving memory of my darling wife.
Deep in my heart you are fondly remembered
Sweet, happy, memories cling around your name
In life I loved you dearly
In death I do the same.
Sadly missed by RAYMOND FAGAN.

JONES—In loving memory of our dear mother, Jennie Jones, who passed on Oct. 18, 1926
Sleep on, dear mother, take your rest,
You are missed most by those who loved you best.
Sadly missed by DAUGHTERS. (c)

KLINGDEIL—In loving memory of our dear brother, John J. Klingdeil, who passed away, Oct. 19, 1930.
Not lost to the ones that love dhim,
But only gone on before
To the beautiful isle of somewhere,
Where parting is no more.
Sadly missed by
BROTHERS AND SISTERS. (c)

KOEHRER—In loving memory of a darling husband, Fred E. Koehrer, departed this life on Oct. 20, 1930.
I have lost my dear companion,
A life linked with my own,
And day by day I miss him more,
As I walk through life alone.
WIFE, MRS. FRED E. KOEHRER. (c)

MATSON—Susie, who departed this life one year ago Oct. 18, 1930.
Ah! we miss her and how sadly,
Bleeding hearts alone can tell,
Earth has lost her, Heaven has found her,
Jesus doeth all things well.
HUSBAND AND DAUGHTER.

MERKEL—In memory of our little darling La Verne Merkel, who departed this life 11 years ago, Oct. 12, 1920.
Safe within the heavenly harbor
Sweetly may she rest,
Though we loved her very dearly
Jesus loved her best.
Sadly missed by PARENTS, MR. AND MRS. A. MERKEL AND GRANDMA FINKE.

ROLFES—In memory of our dear wife and mother, Elizabeth Rolfes, who passed away Oct. 23, 1930:
God in His mercy called you home,
We bowed to His sweet will;
We miss the sound of your voice, so dear
And the touch of your hand now still.
Sadly missed by HUSBAND.

SHELLER—In memory of our dear father, Sergt. Thomas Sheller, who departed this life one year ago, Oct. 19, 1930:
Gone but not forgotten.
Sadly missed by HIS CHILDREN.

SPOHRER—In memory of our darling son, Russell Spohrer, who passed away Oct. 15, 1927.
Our wonderful boy. We miss him every day and we will treasure his memory through our lives.
PARENTS.

IN MEMORIAM

SEITH—In loving memory of my dear son, Private John H. Seith, Headquarters Company, Sixty-Ninth Infantry, Tenth Division, who departed this life Oct. 13, 1918.
There is someone who misses you sadly,
And finds the time long since you went.
There is someone who thinks of you always
And tries to be brave and content.
Gone is the face I loved so dear,
Silent is the voice I loved to hear.
'Tis sad but true; I wonder why
The best are always the first to die.
Sadly missed by mother,
MRS. LENA STRATHMANN. (c)

STRENG—In sad but loving memory of my darling husband and son, Arthur Streng Sr. and Arthur Streng Jr., who died Oct. 10, 1930 and Oct. 24, 1930, respectively:
Deep in my heart you are fondly remembered:
Sweet, happy memories cling around your name.
In life I loved you both dearly;
In death I do the same.
Sadly missed by
WIFE, MOTHER, SONS AND BROTHERS

SUMMERS—In loving memory of our dear son and brother, Edward P. Summers, who died Oct. 18, 1928.
MOTHER, BROTHER AND SISTERS.

WAGNER—Joe; in sad and loving memory of my dear husband, who passed away two years ago today, Oct. 16, 1929.
Gone but not forgotten,
Nor will you ever be,
For as long as life and memory last
We will always think of thee.
Sadly missed by LENA WAGNER.

WESSLER—In loving memory of my darling son, Vernon Fritschle Wessler, who departed this life two years ago, Oct. 17, 1929.
The depths of my sorrow I cannot tell,
For the loss of you darling, Vernon, whom I loved so well;
And while you sleep a peaceful sleep,
Loving memories of you I will keep.
God alone knows how I miss you
In my home that is lonesome today.
Sadly missed by his MOTHER AND ALL WHO LOVED HIM.

SALESMEN WANTED

MEN

The men of our organization have commented so favorably upon our advertisement of last week—stating that it so clearly defined the permanence and certainty of this opportunity to competent and worthy men—that we are repeating it as an invitation to additional men who need and will work hard to make good in these positions.

WE HAVE 15 OPENINGS IN OUR ST. LOUIS BRANCH OFFICE FOR ADDITIONAL MEN WHO ARE QUALIFIED TO LEARN HOW TO SUCCESSFULLY REPRESENT THIS COMPANY.

These positions are genuine opportunities at high earnings for those who can do this kind of work successfully. Our men make money regularly. There are no off-seasons. The incomes in cash are just as certain and stable as any business or professional positions possibly can be. Furthermore, the work is really enjoyable and offers exceptionally fine opportunities for self-development.

To the man who is sincerely looking for a worth-while opportunity, who is honestly willing to study and work hard and who will do so upon his own responsibility each day without a boss standing over him or following him around:—to that man we have an opening which ought to be interesting.

We are not looking for the "smart" fellow, the "clever" talker, or the so-called high-pressure artist. We are interested in the earnest, sincere man no matter what his previous experience or training, who is willing to follow instructions, has formed the habit of doing a real day's work as a matter of course and not as a matter of exception—a man who can be expected to learn how to do the work and who will get on the job and do it. To such men this is beyond doubt one of the really great opportunities of all time in specialty sales work. In our St. Louis Branch you will find competent management and a personnel of high-grade, fine men, who will welcome you and help you to become a successful part of a real money-making organization.

This company, which is a unit of a 75-million-dollar International Institution of enviable commercial reputation, is enjoying the greatest success of its history, and this year will mark its greatest enlargement. Such conditions make available splendid advancement opportunities, and there could be no better time to enter this work than right now.

If you feel you can qualify, and if you really would appreciate the opportunity this position offers, call for personal interview at our St. Louis Branch Office, 562 Paul Brown Bldg. 9th and Olive Sts., Monday 9:00 to 12:00.

UPPER CYLINDER OIL GASOLINE DISTRIBUTORS.

BUSINESS OPPORTUNITIES

(THE LUBRICATED NON-CARBON GASOLINE.)

We are now awarding exclusive filling station contracts on Upper-Cylinder Oil Gasoline (the new lubricated guaranteed non-carbon gasoline) to distributors now operating filling stations or applicants financially responsible, and capable of organizing and building their own new filling stations in the following territory, greater St. Louis, and all territory embraced in St. Louis territory. If you are seeking an opportunity to engage in a permanent lucrative business of your own, backed up with a live advertising campaign, we are sure an Upper-Cylinder Oil Gasoline agency will prove well worth investigating. Phone, wire or write for territorial reservation. UPPER CYLINDER OIL GASOLINE CO., 2627-31 DAYTON ST., ST. LOUIS, MO. PHONE, JEFFERSON 4982.

DISTRIBUTOR FOR ST. LOUIS AND MO., AND SO. ILL. $10,000 TO $25,000 YEARLY OPPORTUNITY

A most desirable opportunity for a man of proven sales and organizing ability who is financially able to carry a reasonable stock of merchandise.

Product on the market for five years; is patented, guaranteed, of proven merit, and has wonderful sales appeal.

This proposition is sound, returns are large and is big enough to interest any high-grade executive. It is worthy of your most rigid investigation.

The contracts are exclusive.

R. B. CROLL, President,
221 N. La Salle St., Chicago.

!!A REAL OPPORTUNITY!!

If you have a successful record in hiring and directing salesmen, this is a wonderful connection for you. Unusual product. Well established factory; liberally financed by St. Louis capital. 1931 sales show 50 per cent increase over 1930. I now need an active partner as salesmanager to direct sales in the distributing organization. THRILLS OF THE WORLD SERIES

Bing Miller, Athletics' outfielder, sliding home in a cloud of dust after Dykes singled in the sixth inning of the fourth game with the St. Louis Cardinals. He just managed to elude catcher Jimmie Wilson's lunge with the ball.

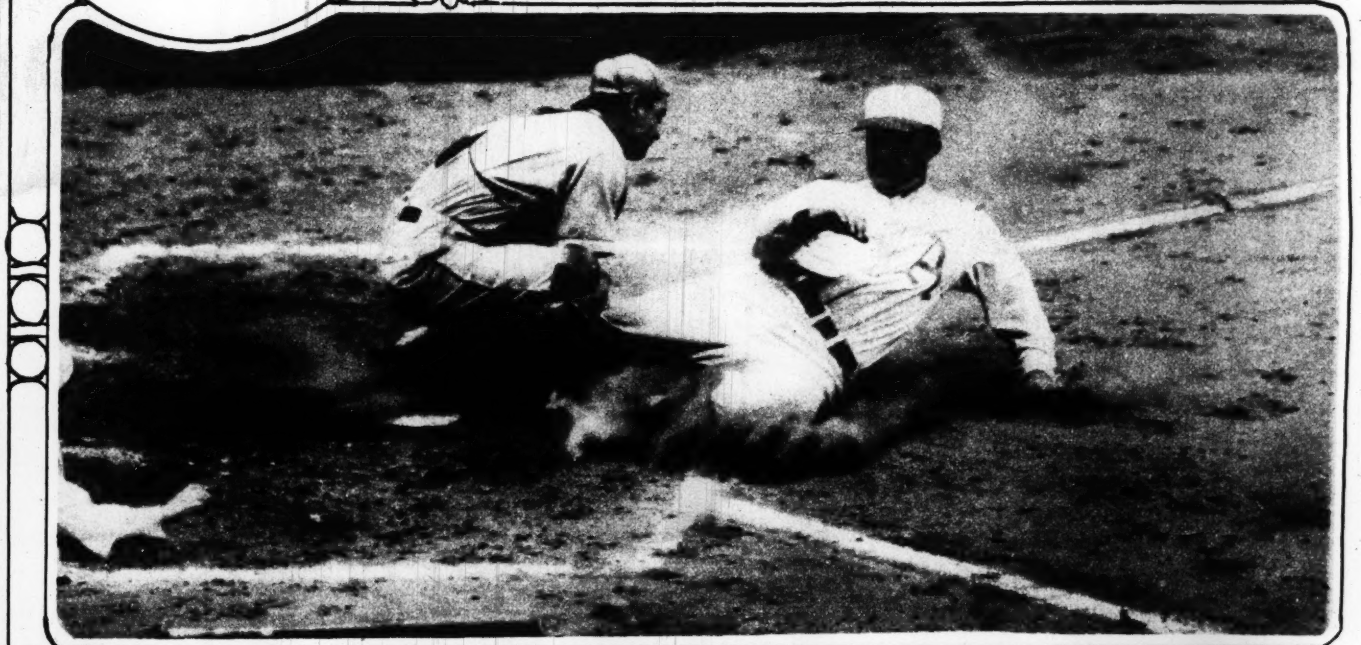
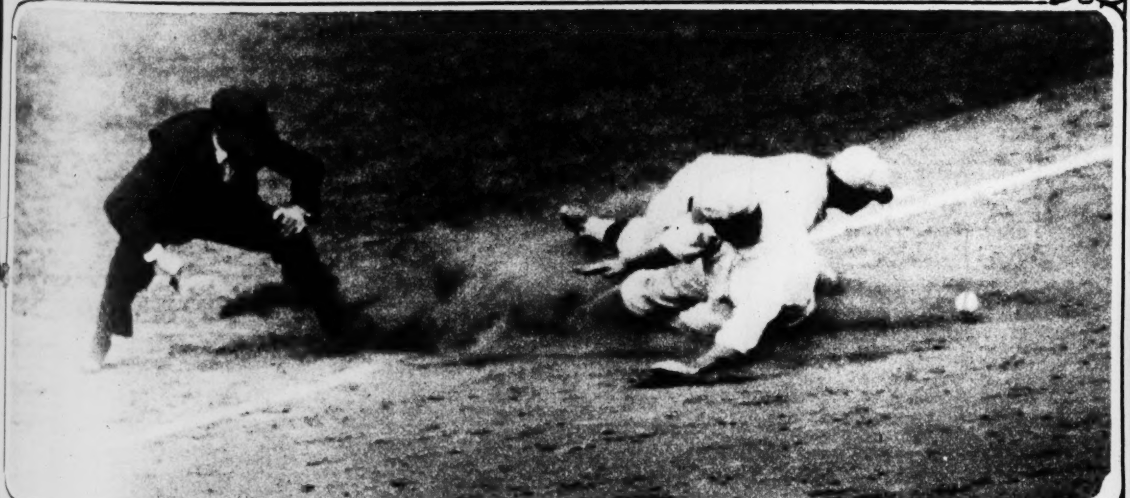
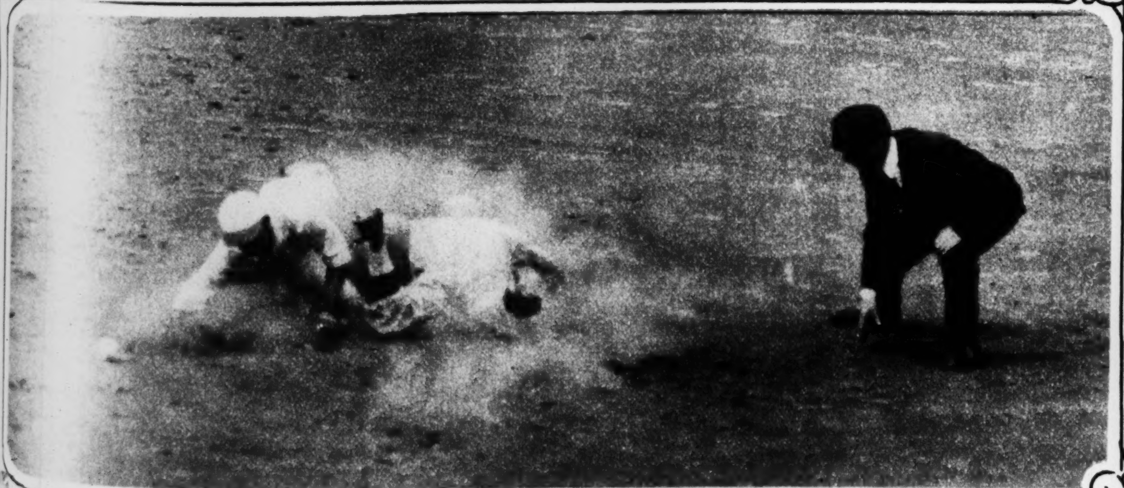
One of those fast double plays by the Cardinals' infield. Miller of the Athletics was forced at second, and here the photograph shows the ball just after leaving Frankie Frisch's hand to reach Bottomley at first, in time to retire the batter, Dykes, for the second out.



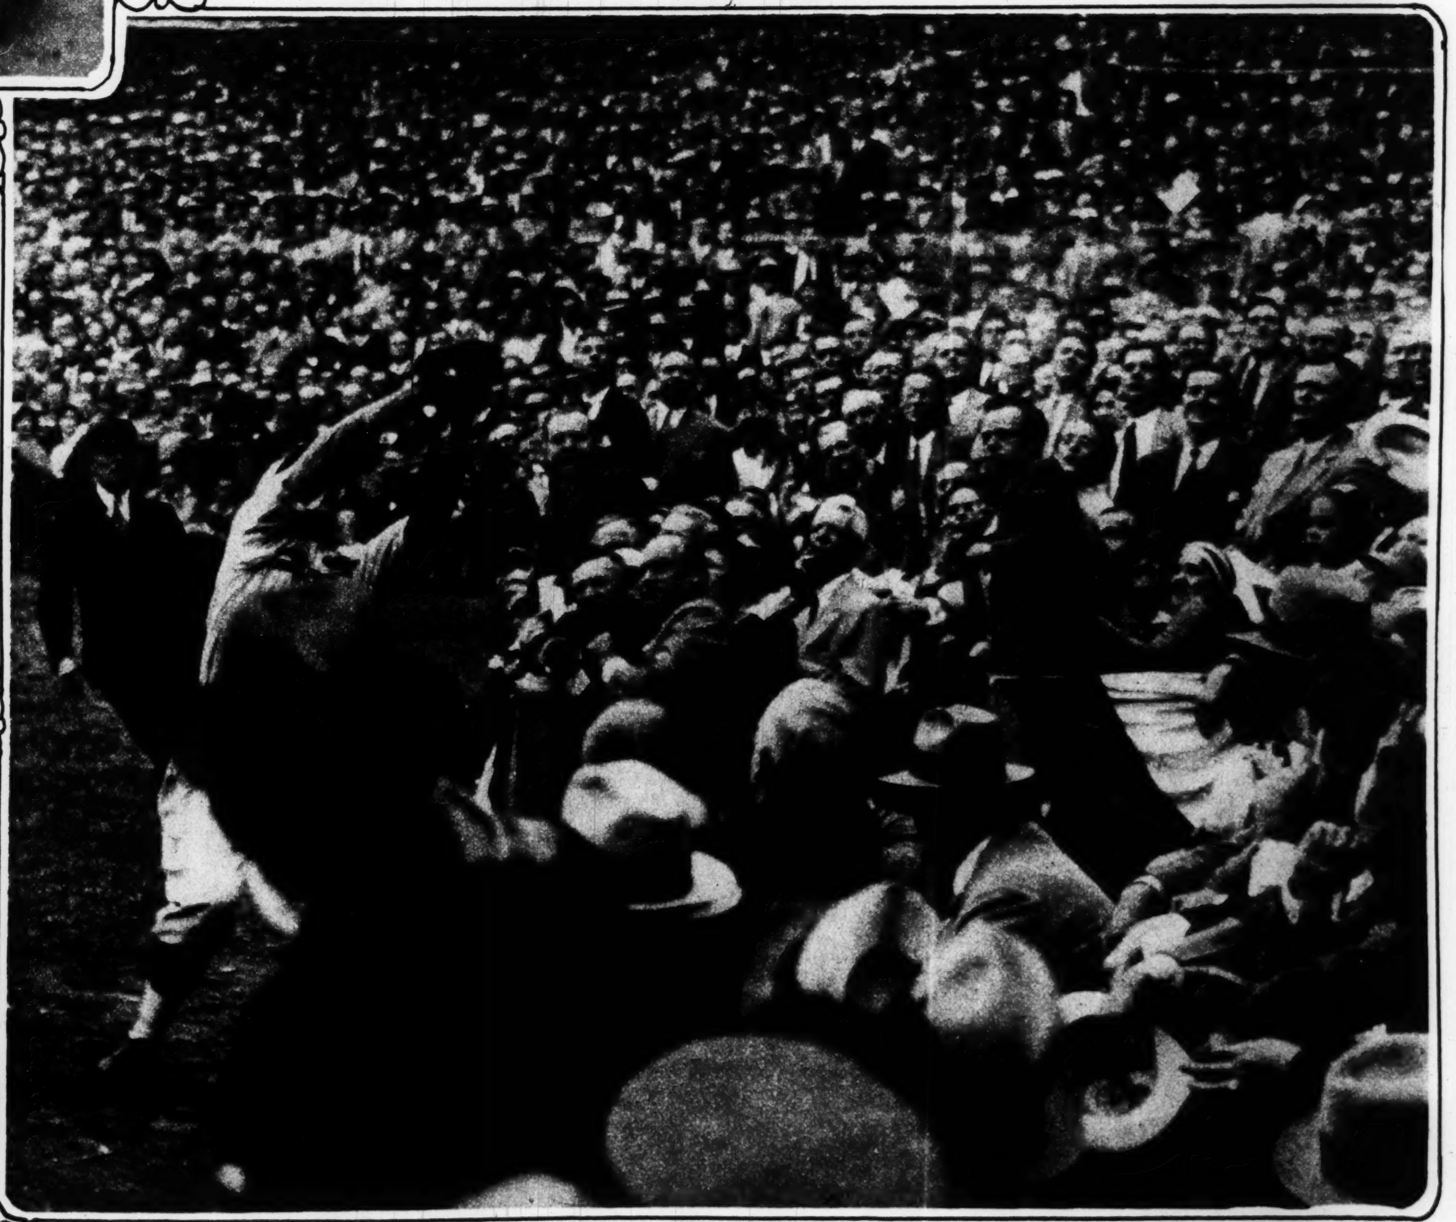
Al Simmons of the Athletics caught in a double play at the plate, in the fifth game at Philadelphia. Here is the Cardinals' catcher, Jimmie Wilson, putting the ball on the fast outfielder of the Athletics, who came sliding into the plate after Wilson had caught Bottomley's throw from first.



Mickey Cochrane, Athletics' speedy catcher, safe at third on Simmons' double in the fourth game.



"Pepper" Martin of the Cardinals stealing second for the fourth time in four games.



The big thrill in St. Louis in the second contest. The photograph shows Bottomley of the Cardinals almost crashing into the field boxes to catch a foul fly for the third out in the ninth inning when Philadelphia had three men on bases and two down. THE DRAMATIC RISE AND FALL of an OKLAHOMA CROESUS

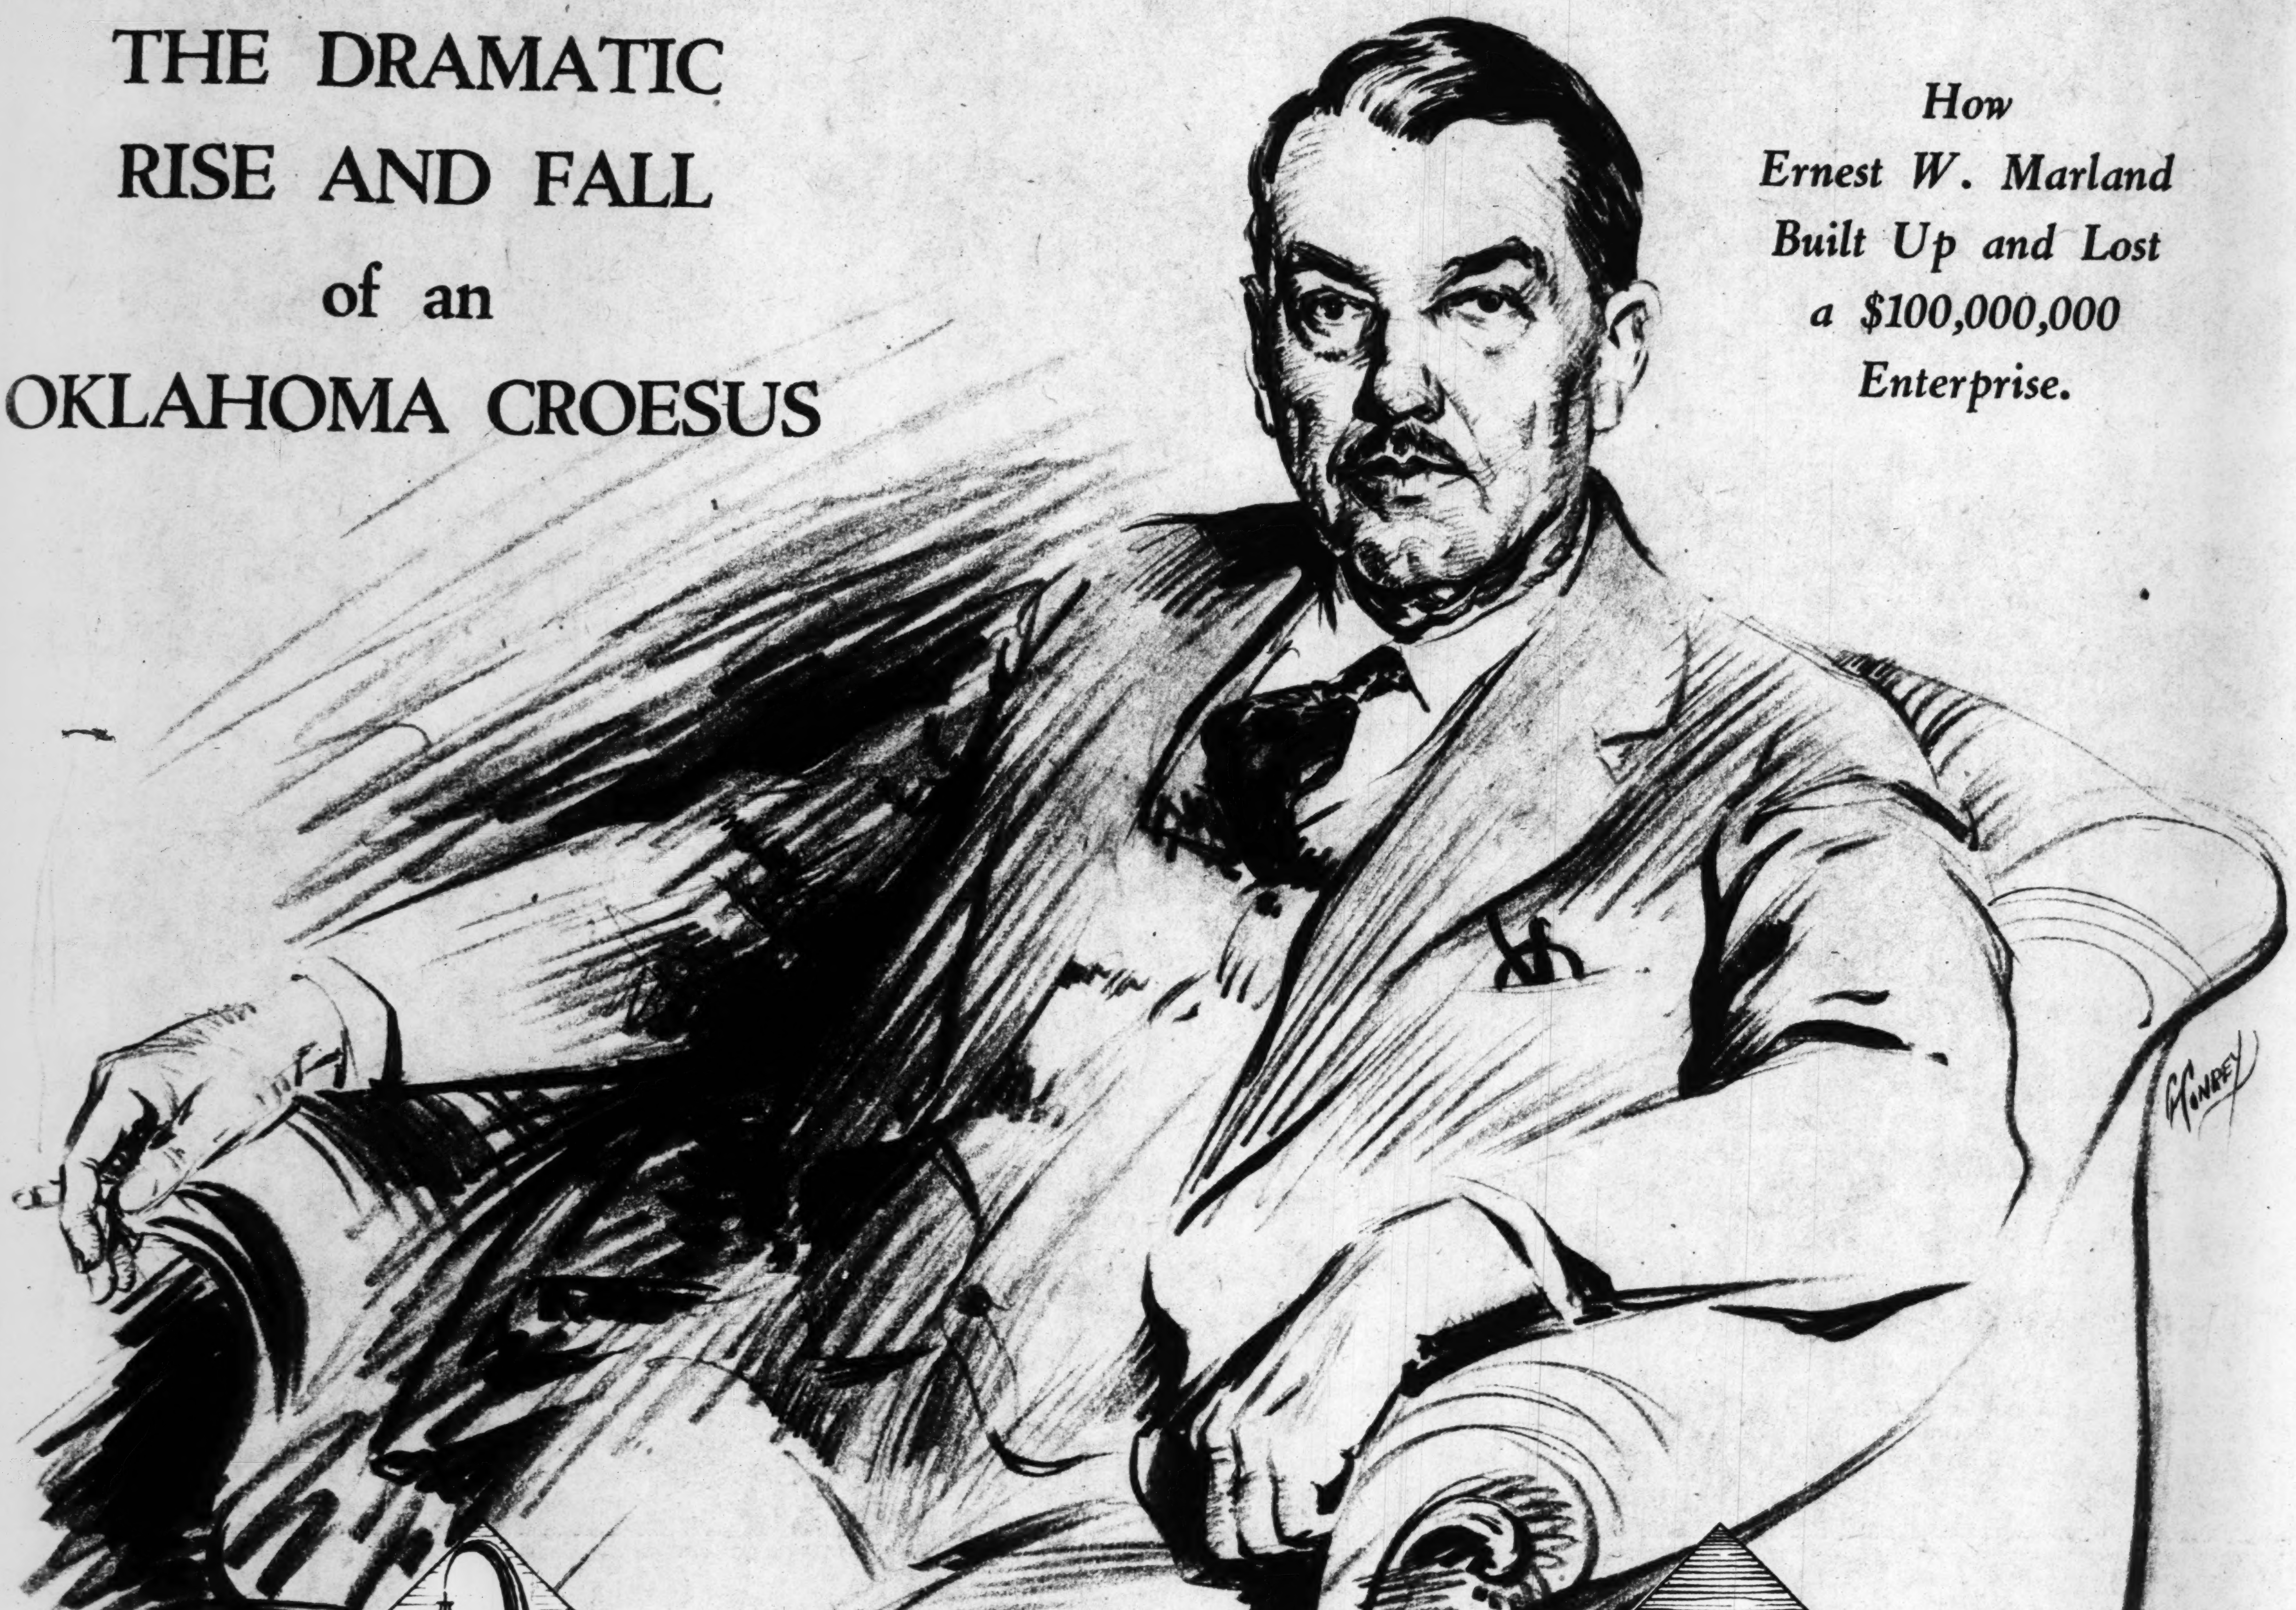
How Ernest W. Marland Built Up and Lost a $100,000,000 Enterprise.



Ernest W. Marland.

By GUY FORSHEY

Of the Post-Dispatch Sunday Magazine Staff

PONCA CITY, Oklahoma.

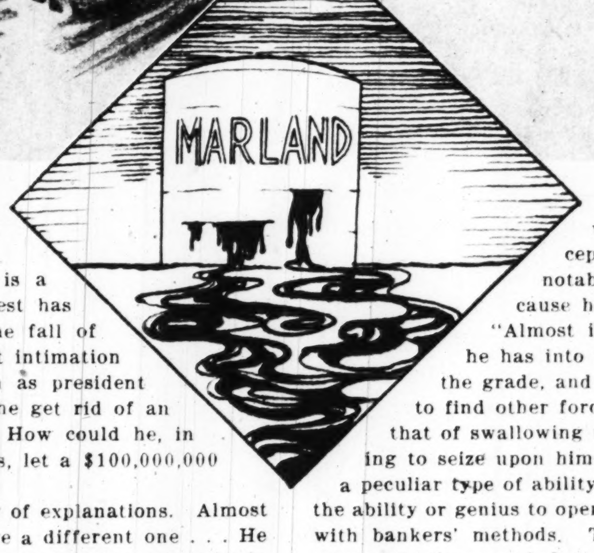
THEY say around here that if Ernest W. Marland, the erstwhile multi-millionaire oil king, can win his claim against the Government for a substantial income tax refund he may be able to halt his financial toboggan before it carries him on the rocks. His claim is for $1,600,000, and prospects are regarded as fair for recovery of all or most of it. Even part of it, his friends declare, would clear away his remaining obligations and leave him a comfortable fortune for his old age. But recovery of the entire amount would not put him back on the heights he once occupied. Marland's fall has been a mighty tumble. In the last five years this Croesus of the Indian country has come a long way down the financial chute.

Three years ago Marland lost control of the great oil company bearing his name, a mammoth concern valued, at its crest in 1926, at $100,000,000. With it he lost an income of $1,000,000 a year and properties in other states and other countries. Now he has lost his grip on the Southland Royalty Company, capitalized at $1,000,000, his pet possession and one of the most prosperous concerns of its kind in the Southwest. He has lost also his holdings in Marland Estates, Incorporated, and the Ponca City Development Company, two promising real estate enterprises he founded and built up. All his stock in these three concerns was wiped out a short time ago to satisfy an $800,000 loan, the foreclosure carrying off some 82,000 shares of Southland stock and real estate equities valued at approximately $250,000.

Gauged by ordinary standards, of course, Marland is still not quite a poor man. He still holds title to at least two princely possessions. There is the palatial home, surrounded by the finest botanical park in the Southwest. It is valued at $1,000,000 and is not heavily encumbered. And there is the Marland art collection, assembled in the golden days. Under ordinary circumstances it might be expected to bring anywhere from a quarter million to a half million. Enough might be realized from these to enable him and his young wife to spend the balance of their lives in relative luxury.

But, compared with his former glory, Marland's present plight does bear the aspect of ruin. Less than five years ago he was regarded as one of the wealthiest and most securely intrenched of all the Southwest's oil barons. He had a salary of $100,000 a year, and yearly profits of some $900,000 from his numerous undertakings. From his white stone mansion on a hilltop a mile northeast of town he could view Marland properties and Marland-financed homes and institutions stretching away to the horizon in any direction he chanced to look. The horizon was not the boundary of Marland properties, either. He had oil holdings in seven states and in Canada, Mexico and England. He had a plantation in Mississippi and a 2000-acre game refuge and hunting preserve in Oklahoma. He had a private yacht in New York and a private railroad car in Ponca City. He had stables of blooded saddle horses and packs of hunting dogs. These things are all gone now. From his hilltop, Marland still surveys the same magnificent vista he beheld in better times, but the Marland landmarks stand now rather as reminders of the days of splendor; as monuments of the golden age of oil.

Facing the highway at the foot of a long avenue through the shrubs and flowers of the Marland estate rises the "Pioneer Woman," 40-foot bronze statue which the former oil magnate had executed at a cost of $100,000 and gave to the State of Oklahoma. Up the road a little way is the $150,000 hospital which he built and presented to the city. Farther out is the Marland Educational and Recreational Institute, a sort of combination country club and school built for his employes at a cost of $750,000. There is the $75,000 American Legion Orphans' Home and the churches, schools and private homes he helped to build. There is a nine-hole public golf course and polo field. On the other side of town, stretching across the prairie, is the plant of the great oil company—the Marland Oil Company once, the Continental Oil Company now—with its richly furnished offices, its mammoth refinery, its fleet of tank cars and its 11,000,000-barrel capacity tank farm, the massive tanks shimmering in the sunlight. All these things are Marland monuments, now passed to other hands.



Marland's financial collapse is a phenomenon the whole Southwest has been trying to explain since the fall of 1928, when there came the first intimation of disaster with his resignation as president of the oil company. How did he get rid of an income of $1,000,000 a year? How could he, in the space of less than five years, let a $100,000,000 enterprise slip from his grasp?

One encounters a wide variety of explanations. Almost everybody in town seems to have a different one . . . He was too generous. . . . He paid too many disproportionately large salaries to subordinate executives. . . . He was too paternalistic. . . . He tied up too much company money in the development and maintenance of welfare projects for employes and others. . . . He was too visionary. . . . He was a victim of over-expansion. . . . His company got too big for him to handle. . . . He let Wall street in and Wall street crowded him out. . . . There is no end of explanations. Most of them appear to have had some factual basis, but no one of them taken alone explains everything.

MARLAND'S own explanation, so far as he will explain at all, encompasses some of the others and covers additional territory, but he declines to discuss specific details of how he lost an oil company. I found him the other day reading on the veranda of his studio. He has moved out of the big house to cut expenses and lives in the studio, attended by one servant.

"To discuss details of my business," he said, "would put me in the position either of crying or attacking, and I have no disposition to do either. However, this much may be said: It isn't in the books for a pioneer of industry, a builder of industry, to remain in control after the industry or institution or whatever it is has attained its growth. Look wherever you will, and you will find few exceptions. Henry Ford is one notable exception. Maybe it's because he kept clear of Wall street.

"Almost invariably, the builder puts all he has into the building, into the climb up the grade, and reaches the summit exhausted, to find other forces, whose business primarily is that of swallowing up ready-made industries, waiting to seize upon him. The pioneer and builder has a peculiar type of ability and genius, and it is not often the ability or genius to operate a great industry in keeping with bankers' methods. The banks and financial interests who take over industries are better adapted for operating them and effecting the economies of operation necessary for payment of big dividends.

"The builder is primarily a creator. Into his creation he puts a great deal of himself. It is his means of self-expression, his work of art. He takes pride in it and usually has a warm personal interest in those who helped him build it. He has a lively concern for the welfare of employes. He regards them as something more than a row of figures on a balance sheet.

"That attitude wins little sympathy from the banking interests. To them, any personal interest in employes or expenditures for employes' welfare constitute paternalism. They don't fit in with the banker's ideas of economy of operation. In a growing, rapidly expanding industry, the banker is almost certain to acquire a voice in its direction. Pretty soon he acquires control. Then the builder steps out.

"In substance, that is the story of what they call my business collapse," Marland continued. "In the early days of the Marland Oil Company, I used to do my banking in Kansas City. Later, with the continued growth of the company, I had to go to St. Louis, and eventually to New York, for financing. Now, the New York banker is of a type different from those encountered in St. Louis and Kansas City. In St. Louis and Kansas City I found the bankers sympathetic with the ideals and policies of the company and willing to take an interest both in the welfare of the organization and the welfare of the people and territory it served.

"It was different in New York. As the New York bankers became more deeply intrenched in the company there was more and more discontent with established policies. The cry was for efficiency, economies of operation, salary reductions, elimination of paternalistic practices.

"As it turned out, about every project the company had ever undertaken for the benefit of employes—and therefore for its own

THOSE weird creatures that wallowed in primordial slime have been portrayed by the ingenuity of man almost as exactly as though they had been photographed. In a series of 28 large mural paintings they march around the walls of the Field Museum of Natural History in Chicago. There is shown first the world before life had developed, and then, a few hundred million years at a jump, come the pre-historic animals that have long since been pushed into nature's graveyard.

Through the period when fabulous flying reptiles dominated the earth, through the epoch of the colossal armored dinosaur, down to the relatively recent era, when animals had begun to take on some resemblance to those of today, these murals show most accurately what went on before man entered the scheme of things. The paintings, shown in photographs on this page, are not merely the artist's idea of how it appeared. They were made with the aid of leading American scientists in the field of paleontology. Fossil remains were measured with infinate care. How large the flesh would bulk on the skeleton was carefully computed. Long and exacting study and research was carried out before ever a brush was put on canvas.

The artist was Charles R. Knight, the foremost paleontological painter in the world. Ernest R. Graham, a Chicago architect, gave $125,000 for these illustrations of historical geology. Dr. Oliver C. Farrington, curator of geology at the Field Museum, was in charge of the research.

The picture shown at the top of this page is No. 6 in the Field Museum series. The reptiles of Permian time are the oldest known. They include the larger kinds of fin-back reptiles and smaller lizard-like reptiles. Along with them lived various amphibians which resembled giant frogs and salamanders. The fossil skeletons of these animals were found in red sandstone ledges in Oklahoma, Texas and New Mexico. Many simpler forms, some of them portrayed in the five preceding murals, led up to these beasts. The Permian reptiles lived about 215,000,000 years ago.

There follow primitive birds, duck-billed and crested dinosaurs, swimming reptiles and flying-swimming reptiles and then, 120,000,000 years ago, the brontosaurs, one of the largest species of dinosaurs. They grew from 70 to 80 feet in length and weighed nearly 40 tons. But these formidable looking creatures are believed to have been quite harmless, living about the shores of shallow lagoons and feeding upon leaves and water plants.

In the next picture of the series, shown in the upper right, are two dinosaurs of Cretaceous time. The one on the left, with the two slender horns above the eyes, lived on plants. But the other one, represented as about to attack the horned dinosaur, was the largest flesh-eating dinosaur. His massive jaws were armed with many sharp-pointed teeth which were used in making a kill. His forelegs were very small and he walked upon his hind legs and balanced himself with the aid of a long tail.

No. 14, middle left on the page, shows two armored dinosaurs. Full-grown species exceeded the elephant in size. This great lizard, Stegosaurus, lived upon land and fed on plants. The picture that is middle right, No. 15, is of the egg-laying dinosaur, Protoceratops, a small dinosaur about the size of a modern crocodile. This animal lived on the sandy plains of Mongolia, where its fossil skeleton and fossil eggs were recently discovered by Roy Chapman Andrews.

The mammals of lower Miocene time are shown in the picture across the page just below. This is No. 18 in the museum's series of murals and the animals shown lived just the other day as geologists compute time — approximately 20,000,000 years ago. NEW YORK.

THE gentlemen who took the nice, social game of cards out of the class of diversion and made it a thing of mathematics, no trumps, dirty looks across the table and interminable postmortems, are in the midst of one of their most distinguished squabbles. In retrospect, such spectacles seem inevitably to have resulted from the movement which removed the card game from the bar room of the saloon, where Herman chalked the score on the bare table, rubbing the figures out with his sleeve after each hand, and set it sprucely down in the drawing room under the label of "bridge." Time was when a hand ended with the entire party shrieking with laughter at Irma, who got stuck with the queen of spades and was hence an "old maid," and men broke lifelong friendships over women, or kindred worthy causes, instead of failure of a bridge partner to take one out of an informatory bid. Thus has the mechanization of cards affected the ordinary player. Among the Olympian figures of the bridge world the war wages on a grander scale.

The current thunderings are over the way to play contract, which, it seems, has for the time pushed ordinary bridge, or auction (am I right, Mrs. Stoopnagle?) into the spare bedroom.

Storm center of the disturbance, is Ely Culbertson. Mr. Culbertson was born in Russia. His mother was the daughter of a Cossack chieftain, his father an American mining engineer. The Culbertsons became wealthy through mine holdings and the youngster received a good education in European universities. Confiscation by the Russian Government eight years ago of $4,000,000 worth of the holdings left by the elder Culbertson caught the son without much except fare to America. He took up bridge for diversion and studied it mathematically. Unconsidered in his computation was a pretty girl named Josephine Murphy, but it wasn't long before she figured in the deliberations as Mrs. Culbertson and made suggestions that led to Mr. Culbertson's commercialization of his bridge studies. Today, after eight years, he is one of the leading teachers of the game. In fact, he teaches teachers. His fee per lecture is $50, and his keen eyes look upon from 50 to 100 teachers at each lecture. His income is said to be about $200,000 a year. He is not yet 40 years old. Well——

When from the inborn instinct of bridge fiends for intricacy arose the phenomenon called contract, confusion one might say, reigned throughout the bridge world, which stretches, in America, only from Boston to San Luis Obispo. Everyone, according to best reports, was bidding differently. Mr. Culbertson sponsored the "approach-forcing" system.

Others put forth other systems and held the fort valiantly. This led a large group of leading players to seek a way out of the confusion. They convened and formed Bridge Headquarters, Inc., and agreed on a system of bidding which they stamped "official." Mr. Culbertson declined to side in with the "official" group and ridiculed it in a bridge magazine he owns and edits. There were hot charges and equally hot replies. Mr. Culbertson and his distinguished opponents vied in issuing statements charging perfidy, ignorance and thick-headedness. There was a challenge for a contest between leading exponents of both systems to determine the more effective one. Money was posted in banks. But no agreement could be reached on the manner of conducting the match.

THINGS went on quietly, in the manner of an explosion at the fireworks counter, until the name of Ely Culbertson was proposed for membership in the Cavendish Club, one of the "better" private bridge organizations. Louis Joseph Vance, novelist and amateur bridge expert, protested to the Board of Governors. So did Mrs. Madeleine Kerwin, one othe sponsors of the "official" system. Both threatened to resign.

Mr. Culbertson was accepted, however, under the sponsorship of Frank Crowninshield, editor of Vanity Fair, and Ralph J. Leibenderfer, a member of the Board of Governors. His name was posted on the bulletin board. True to their threats, Mr. Vance and Mrs. Kerwin resigned, as did Arthur Shore, a bridge instructor and tournament player.

Deprecating the affair, especially the publicity, the governors admitted they wouldn't be surprised if Sidney Lenz resigned, too. Mr. Lenz and Mr. Culbertson have clashed often. Mr. Lenz is a leader in Bridge Headquarters, Inc., of which Mr. Culbertson has said: "It is but a merger of the has-beens and never was's. They have effected a merger of the type prevalent in all countries in times of depression." Mr. Lenz has remarked dryly: "The Culbertson system is best in playing against poor players, but the worst in the world against good players." "Mr. Lenz's reputation as a player," Mr. Culbertson has written, "is based upon top score pins won in whist and on articles written by him, of which he is the hero, and not on actual play against experts." Mr. Lenz has suggested that the Culbertson system is not original with him, but an adaptation of a method devised at odd times by members of the Cavendish and Knickerbocker clubs. Mr. Culbertson has termed his wife the best woman player in the world, and Mr. Lenz has been quoted as saying this is unwarranted.

At the convention at which Bridge Headquarters, Inc., was born, the name of Mr. Culbertson was mentioned only in whispers. "Commercialism masquerading as altruism," Mr. Culbertson's magazine had termed it in advance.

After Mr. Lenz and other soft-spoken persons had delivered learned lectures to the assembled experts, Shepard Barclay, known as "the authority on authorities," arose and presented a denunciation of Mr. Culbertson.

"He has been pretending that there is a great fight in the bridge world," said Mr. Barclay, "but we are fighting no one. He is simply a boxer who can't find anyone to box with him, and so persists in shadow boxing. He has been indulging in mental bag punching."

Louis Joseph Vance.

The "official" system, Mr. Barclay said, is "the most complete" system ever devised, the work of many minds.

"If anyone, now or in the future, claims that he alone invented the official system," thundered Mr. Barclay with a pontifical gesture, "he deserves nothing but ridicule."

Harold S. Vanderbilt.

The final flick of the glove in the face of the avowed enemy of "Bridge Headquarters, Inc.," was given in a book which grew out of the convention.

Anonymously written, it made unfavorable remarks about the "approach-forcing" system and reiterated the charge of lack of originality. The system, it said, was merely the Cavendish-Knickerbocker method, with the latter's "fine points and very accurate valuation tables eliminated." The reference to "fine points," the bridge player's tender spot, stung Mr. Culbertson. He issued a challenge for 200 rubbers between his and Mr. Lenz's experts, offering to post $5000 against $1000, the winnings to go to New York Infirmary for Women and Children. Mr. Lenz replied by posting his money. But he insisted on only 10 sessions of four hours each, saying 200 rubbers was too long. He also reserved the right to turn over his winnings to a charity of his own picking. Mr. Culbertson said the time proposed by his opponent was not long enough to be conclusive as to the relative merits of the systems. He added that under such conditions an unscientific system, such as, for instance, the "official," stood the better chance. Mr. Lenz's reply sounded something like "balderdash," and after each had denounced the other in interviews with the press, the matter rested.

Mr. Culbertson has done some resigning from bridge clubs himself. His dropping out of the Knickerbocker Whist Club followed a flurry after he won the Vanderbilt championship cup for 1930-1931. A subsequent issue of his magazine carried a letter, from an anonymous correspondent, attributing to George Reith, chairman of the Card Committee of the Knickerbocker Club, the statement that Mr. Culbertson had been on the carpet several times before the Vanderbilt Cup Committee and warned for questionable practices.

"In sportsmanship," wrote the correspondent, "an insinuation or accusation of this kind is a serious matter, especially when it comes from a member of a committee which includes Mr. Harold S. Vanderbilt, as well as other leaders of the world of bridge."

Mr. Culbertson thought the charge was pretty serious, too, and in a subjoined editorial comment said: "Mr. Reith prevaricates deliberately."

Interviewed, Mr. Reith stuck to his guns. He produced a copy of the minutes of the committee and pointed out passages he thought justified the use of the word "warned."

Mr. Culbertson, he added, knuckled down, too, before Mr. Vanderbilt, Commander W. Liggett, Lieut. A. M. Gruenther, R. J. Leibenderfer, Douglas Paige, Gratz M. Scott, Harral Tenney and E. A. Wetzlar.

"There were also charges of unethical conduct," Mr. Reith said wryly, with this parting shot: "It is a matter of record that no national tournament committee has been called in session in the last two years to consider a protest at which Mr. Culbertson appeared either as plaintiff or defendant."

THUS, with bombshells bursting all around him and his bank account expanding, Mr. Culbertson sits in his lofty place and is no doubt well satisfied. He is undoubtedly glad he isn't in his native Russia, where, according to his own report, the Communists, in their rush to brush all traces of royalty aside, have tried taking faces of kings and queens off cards and substituted those of Lenin and other Soviet heroes.

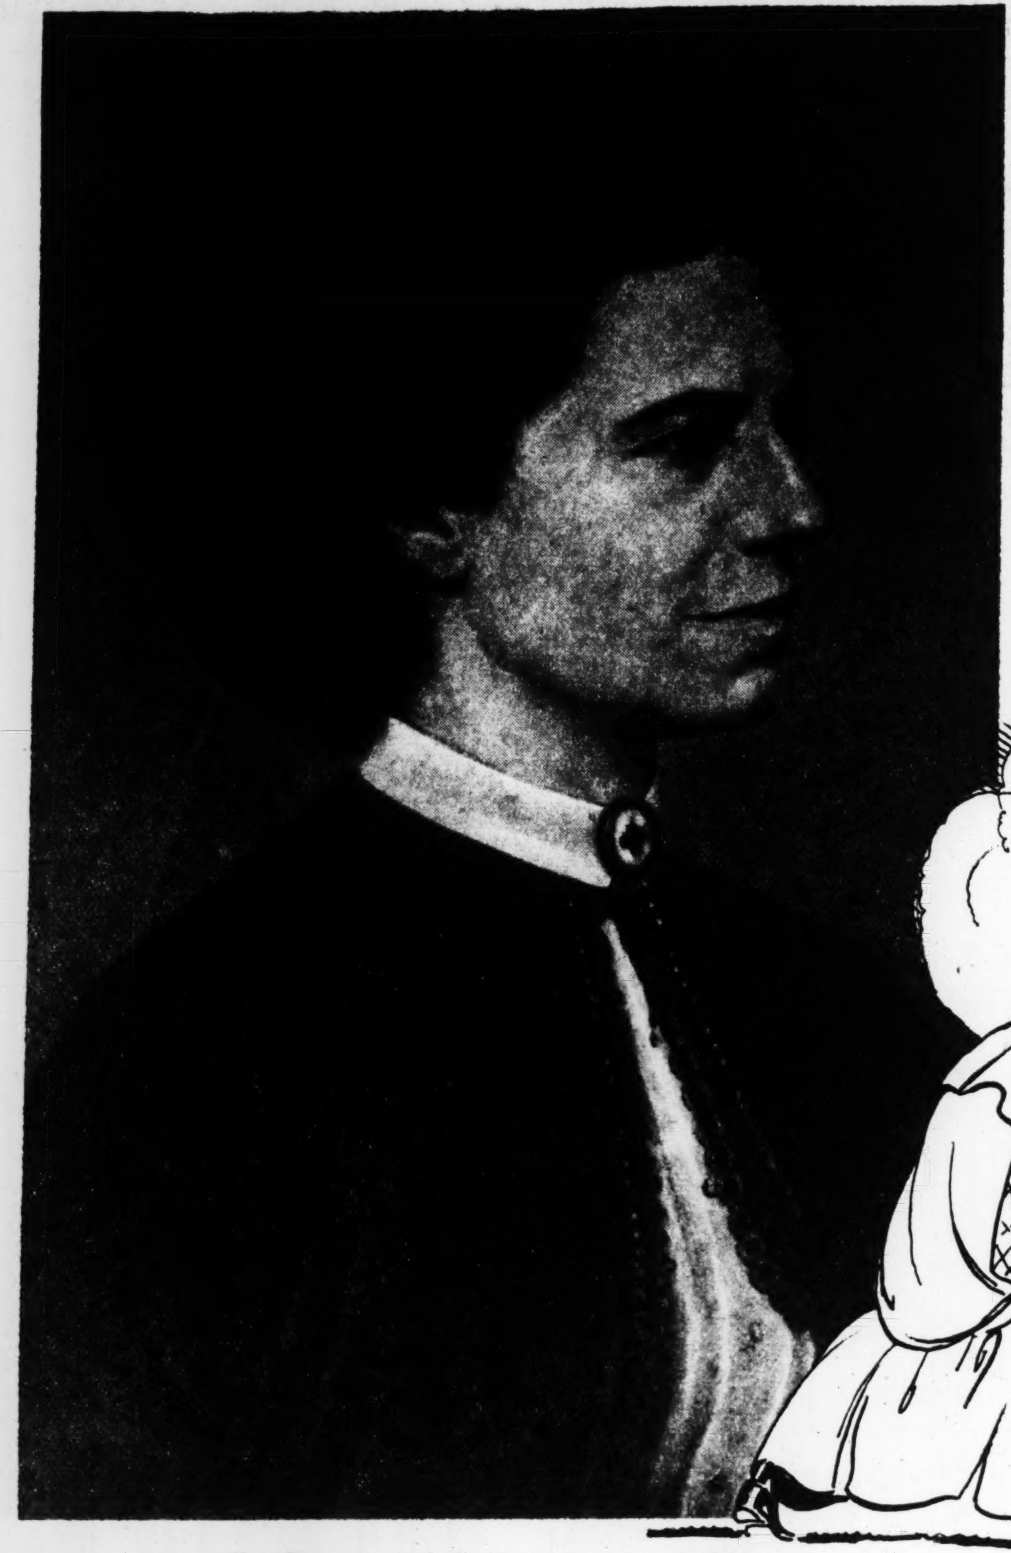
Mr. Culbertson told of the deplorable situation in the U. S. S. R. in regard to playing cards on his return recently from a visit to Russia. He said he had suggested a scheme for doubling the sale of cards in that country, but the head of the syndicate dealing with this business told him that wasn't the idea at all. Quite the contrary. "He told me," the bridge expert related, "that he had been put on the job for the express purpose of putting down the sale of cards, because there are kings and queens in the deck. He boasted that he had reduced the annual sale to 1,500,000 decks. They tried putting out decks without the figures of royalty and the Russians refused to buy them."

An enthusiastic article on a San Francisco editorial page says of Culbertson: "He is to bridge players what Caesar and Napoleon are to students of military strategy. And some people would rank him higher than Albert Einstein."

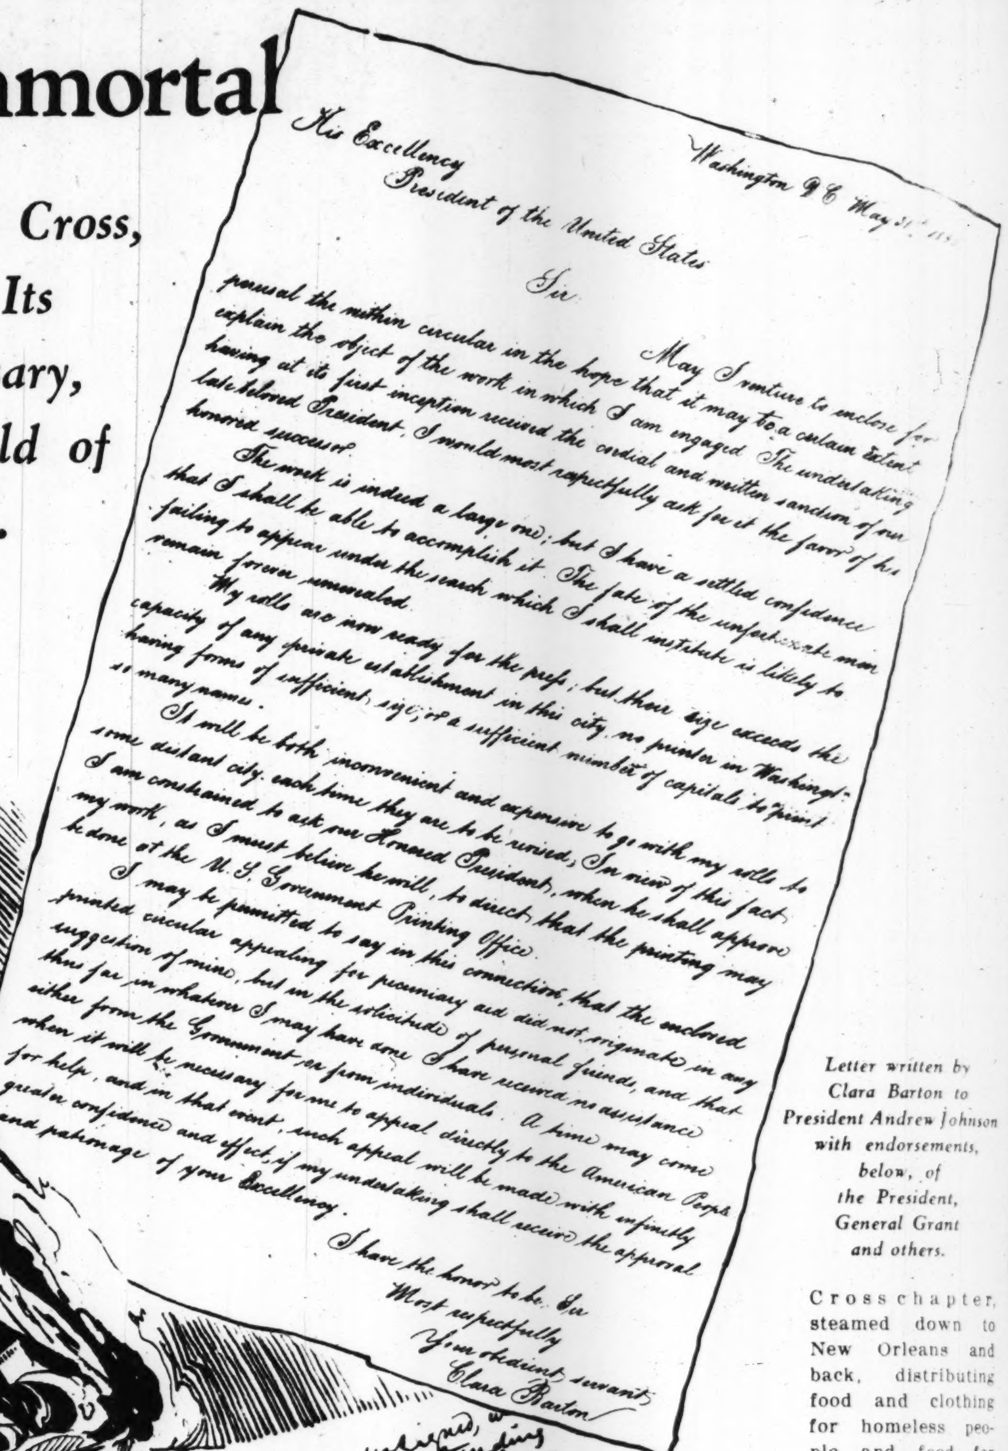
But not Sidney Lenz, or his associates in Bridge Headquarters, Inc.

The "Little Old Maid" Who Made Herself Immortal

The American Red Cross, in Celebrating Its Fiftieth Anniversary, Reminds the World of Clara Barton.



Clara Barton, as she looked at the time of the Civil War.



His Excellency
President of the United States

Washington D.C. May 31st 1865

Sir

May I venture to enclose for perusal the within circular in the hope that it may to a certain extent explain the object of the work in which I am engaged. The undertaking having at its first inception received the cordial and written sanction of our late beloved President, I would most respectfully ask for it the favor of his honored successor.

The work is indeed a large one; but I have a settled confidence that I shall be able to accomplish it. The fate of the unfortunate man failing to appear under the search which I shall institute is likely to remain forever unrevealed.

My rolls are now ready for the press; but their size exceeds the capacity of any private establishment in this city. no printer in Washington having forms of sufficient size, or a sufficient number of capitals to print so many names.

It will be both inconvenient and expensive to go with my rolls to some distant city. each time they are to be revised; In view of this fact I am constrained to ask our Honored President, when he shall approve my work, as I must believe he will, to direct that the printing may be done at the U. S. Government Printing Office.

I may be permitted to say in this connection, that the enclosed printed circular appealing for pecuniary aid did not originate in any suggestion of mine, but in the solicitude of personal friends, and that thus far in whatever I may have done I have received no assistance either from the Government or from individuals. A time may come when it will be necessary for me to appeal directly to the American People for help, and in that event, such appeal will be made with infinitely greater confidence and effect, if my undertaking shall receive the approval and patronage of your Excellency.

I have the honor to be, Sir
Most respectfully

Of the Post-Dispatch Sunday Magazine Staff

THROUGH the last four decades of the nineteenth century a little old maid from New England kept bobbing up in the wake of disaster. On battlefields of the Civil War and the Franco-Prussian War, on the flooded Ohio and Mississippi in 1884, in the drouth regions of Texas in '86, at Johnstown, Pennsylvania, after the flood of '89; in Cuba in '98, in Galveston, Texas, after the tidal wave of 1900—there she was, busy, tireless and indomitable, giving first aid, medicine, food, clothing. When official red tape impeded her mission, she confronted her opponents with such an intensity of purpose that she created a queer illusion of physical impressiveness; many who saw her at such times thought this woman, five feet two inches in height, was tall and imposing. And in these moments of stress her normally treble voice, instead of becoming shrill sank to a pitch almost masculine. She usually got her way.

For five years, in intervals between active field work for the relief of suffering, she hounded Presidents, Cabinet members and Senators on behalf of a humanitarian project until she got her way in that. In those days her name was as familiar in America as that of Anne Lindbergh is today.

The American National Red Cross, observing this year its fiftieth anniversary, is reminding a rather forgetful world of this New England spinster. For she was Clara Barton, founder of the American branch of the great international relief organization. In her house in Washington the first national Red Cross society was organized in 1881, and she was chosen president, an office she filled for 23 years.

The life of Clara Barton was full of contrast between what she was and what she did. Her career was spectacular, but she was not. Biographers say she was timid when a child, abnormally sensitive, feminine, sedate and a thorough lady. Yet she could endure the grime and horrors of battlefields and disregard their dangers; could boss a gang of rough mule drivers; could ignore any question of propriety in being the only woman among thousands of men in the field. The key, apparently, was a strength of humanitarian feeling that lifted her above temperamental limitations; something that enabled her also to forget physical ills and withstand the hardships of active service as long as there was need for her.

Clara Barton was born on Christmas day, 1821, at North Oxford, Massachusetts. Her name, originally, was not Clara, but Clarissa Harlowe, after Richardson's anguished heroine, but her friends called her Clara, and so she came to call herself. Her father was a farmer, reasonably well to do.

When she was 15, a phrenologist, practitioner of what was then regarded as a science, felt the bumps on Clara's head and advised teaching as a good vocation for her. He said the fearful, shrinking child needed responsibility. He also said she would always be of a sensitive nature. "She will never assert herself for herself . . . But for others she will be perfectly fearless."

Apparently, Freud, Adler and Meyer, in collaboration, could scarcely have gauged more accurately the girl's strength and weakness.

A school teacher Clara became, and a school teacher she remained for almost 20 years. Then she suffered a nervous collapse and her voice failed. She gave up teaching, and presently became a clerk in the Patent Office in Washington.

Miss Barton had been engaged in this work for several years when the Civil War began. Wounded men from the first battle of Bull Run were taken to Washington hospitals and Clara Barton was among the women who hurried to the hospitals to care for them. But she soon saw that there were plenty of women for that task; there was a greater need to collect supplies and make them available to the wounded before they reached the hospitals.

SO MISS BARTON arranged for some women in Worcester, Massachusetts, to send her medical supplies and food and set up a distributing agency. She took two rooms in a business building in Washing, lived in one and kept her stores in the other. But this did not solve the problem of giving aid as soon as it was needed. She decided to go to the front, taking the needed material to the battlefield. But first she went to New England and New Jersey and established sources of supply—obtained assurances from individuals and organizations that they would send her the things she would take to the soldiers. She obtained passes, arranged for transportation of her goods, established co-operative relations with the Sanitary Commission, the official relief agency. She went at her work in a businesslike way. Not the actual binding of the wounds—although she did that, too, when she could—but the systemization of relief, so that it could be given as effectively and speedily as possible, was Clara Barton's important work.

In August of 1862 she had her first battlefield experience. It was just after the battle at Cedar Mountain. Miss Barton worked for five days and nights, with three hours' sleep. When news of the second battle of Bull Run reached Washington, she hastened to the field on a train bearing her supplies, and fed soup and wine and coffee to the wounded, until they were placed on the train for Alexandria. The battle of Chantilly followed quickly, and Clara Barton and 30 assistants, three of them women, were soon on the ground. From Friday night to Wednesday morning she worked, with two hours' sleep, and left the field with a train load of wounded just as the enemy cavalry came into view.

Clara Barton wasn't satisfied with what she was accomplishing. There was still too much delay in getting help to suffering men. So she tried to reach the field before the battle did. A "tip" given to her in Washington enabled her to reach Burnside's army on the eve of the battle of Antietam. She traveled in an army wagon drawn by mules and loaded with supplies; her personal baggage consisted of a few things tied in a handkerchief. She saved time on the trip by driving at night around the long army train that was resting on its way from Harper's Ferry to Antietam; when the train got under way again in the morning her wagon was just behind the cannon. From that time on, throughout the war, it was her endeavor to "follow the cannon."

She worked at Antietam from the beginning of the battle until the last of the wounded had received attention. Much of the time she was at a field surgical station established on a farm just behind a line of artillery. The smoke of battle was so dense there at times that those who were caring for the wounded could scarcely see. Out in the open, Clara Barton knelt to give a wounded soldier a drink of water; as she raised his head with one arm a bullet cut through her sleeve and killed him. Another man, facing a long wait for the attention of surgeons, asked her to cut a bullet out of his cheek; she did it with her pocket knife. When her supply of food was gone, she found that three cases of wine had been packed in Indian meal, and with that she made gruel, which was carried in buckets to wounded men on the battlefield. When surgeons in her sector had to stop work at night, because the supply of candles had given out, with a thousand men needing attention, Miss Barton provided lanterns from the stores she had brought.

Clara Barton, as she looked in 1902.

The ex-schoolma'am continued her service of mercy on other battlefields, including Fredericksburg, where a shell fragment tore away a piece of her dress, and the Wilderness, whose wounded were rescued from neglect through pressure she was able to bring to bear in official quarters. In 1864 she was appointed Superintendent of the Department of Nurses for the Army of the James and she served in this capacity for the remainder of the war. It was her first official service in the war, her previous relief work having been done as an independent volunteer.

After the war Clara Barton spent four years obtaining information about missing soldiers for their families. She also had the graves of Union soldiers who died in Andersonville Prison identified and marked. During this time she began lecturing on her war experiences, with marked success. But in 1869 her health and voice suddenly failed again and she was sent to Europe to recover.

In Switzerland she learned about the Red Cross, an international body for the "improvement of the fate of the military wounded in arms in a campaign," which had been created in 1864 by the Treaty of Geneva, signed originally by the representatives of 12 nations. At the time of Miss Barton's first acquaintance with it, the Red Cross compact had been accepted by 31 nations. She was deeply impressed with the organization and soon had an opportunity to see it at work. The Franco-Prussian War began in July, 1870, and within 10 days Clara Barton was on her way to the front to serve under the Red Cross. She had forgotten she was an invalid. She visited several battlefields, and later organized relief for the distressed inhabitants of Strassburg, Paris and Lyons.

Miss Barton returned to America determined that the United States should become a member nation of the Red Cross. For several years illness kept her from doing much to further this design, but when her health improved, she went at the job in earnest. She besieged three administrations—those of Hayes, Garfield and Arthur—and in 1882 the fight was won. At the request of President Arthur, the Senate confirmed the adhesion of the United States to the Treaty of Geneva.

BEFORE this, however, Miss Barton had felt certain of success, and had organized, on May 21, 1881, the American Association of the Red Cross. On August 22 of the same year she formed the first local chapter at Dansville, New York, where she had lived while recovering her health. And before the Government had acted on the treaty, the Red Cross had done its first relief work in the United States after a forest fire in Michigan.

In 1884 there were devastating floods on the Ohio and Mississippi Rivers. Clara Barton chartered a boat, the John V. Troop, and went down the Ohio distributing supplies. It was the first Red Cross relief boat on American waters. Then she proceeded to St. Louis, chartered the Mattie Bell and, accompanied by officers of the newly-formed St. Louis Red Cross chapter, steamed down to New Orleans and back, distributing food and clothing for homeless people and feed for their starving livestock.

There were many other relief missions during the succeeding years of Clara Barton's presidency of the Red Cross, and she usually took the field to direct personally the rescue work. A famine following a drouth in Texas, a cyclone at Mount Vernon, Illinois, in 1888, the Johnstown flood brought her and her army of mercy to the scene of desolation. Under her direction, also, the American Red Cross sent relief expeditions to Russia in time of famine and to Armenia after a series of massacres.

In 1898 Miss Barton labored among starving, homeless Cubans, victims of the revolt against Spain, and when war began between the United States and Spain she led a Red Cross contingent of nurses and other relief workers to Cuba, where they helped care for the soldiers wounded in the battle of San Juan Hill and fed the starving refugees from Santiago. At San Juan she gave supplies to Colonel Roosevelt for some of the sick among his Rough Riders, and was edified by the sight of the Colonel, himself, carrying away on his back the sack of goods for his men.

WHEN a tidal wave wrecked Galveston, Texas, in 1900, Clara Barton was almost 80 years old. But within five days she was there, commanding the relief forces. Her hair was still brown and her eyes were bright; she was still vigorous, mentally and physically.

But the Red Cross outgrew Clara Barton in that it became too extensive for the detailed personal supervision of one person—for the kind of management that she gave it. In 1904 she resigned, and the American Red Cross was reorganized, with the President of the United States as president. At Glen Echo, Maryland, in a building which she had erected as a headquarters for the Red Cross, she lived for the remainder of her life, active and busy until her last illness. She died at the age of 90. She did a good deal of physical work connected with housekeeping and gardening, as well as much writing. She ate plain food and her bed was a cot. "Low fare and hard work" was her recipe for long life.

Clara Barton received much honor. She was decorated by foreign Governments — Germany, Serbia, Russia, Turkey, Spain. Men of high authority respected and trusted her. But perhaps there were times when these distinctions hardly made up for the lack of husband and children, for Clara Barton was not a man-hater, not a mannish woman. However, she was a spinster by choice. She had suitors in her youth and middle years. That she did not marry, thus preserving for the world a heart of splendid tenderness and a strong, practical mind, one may, if one chooses, regard as destiny.

LONDON.

WHEN the National Government of Great Britain abandoned the gold standard just a short time ago, John Bull was to learn, for the first time since the war, his true financial standing.

It came, naturally, as quite a shock to him to find that he was possibly headed straight for bankruptcy, unless he mended his financial ways.

While he couldn't grasp in full the intricacies of the gold standard act of 1925, which required the Bank of England to sell gold at a fixed price, it did not take him long to realize that the British pound sterling had been dethroned by the United States dollar as the world's standard of currency values.

Here was something, the import of which was plain to every man and every woman of the British Empire. It also drove home the fact that the Bank of England no longer dominated the money affairs of the world.

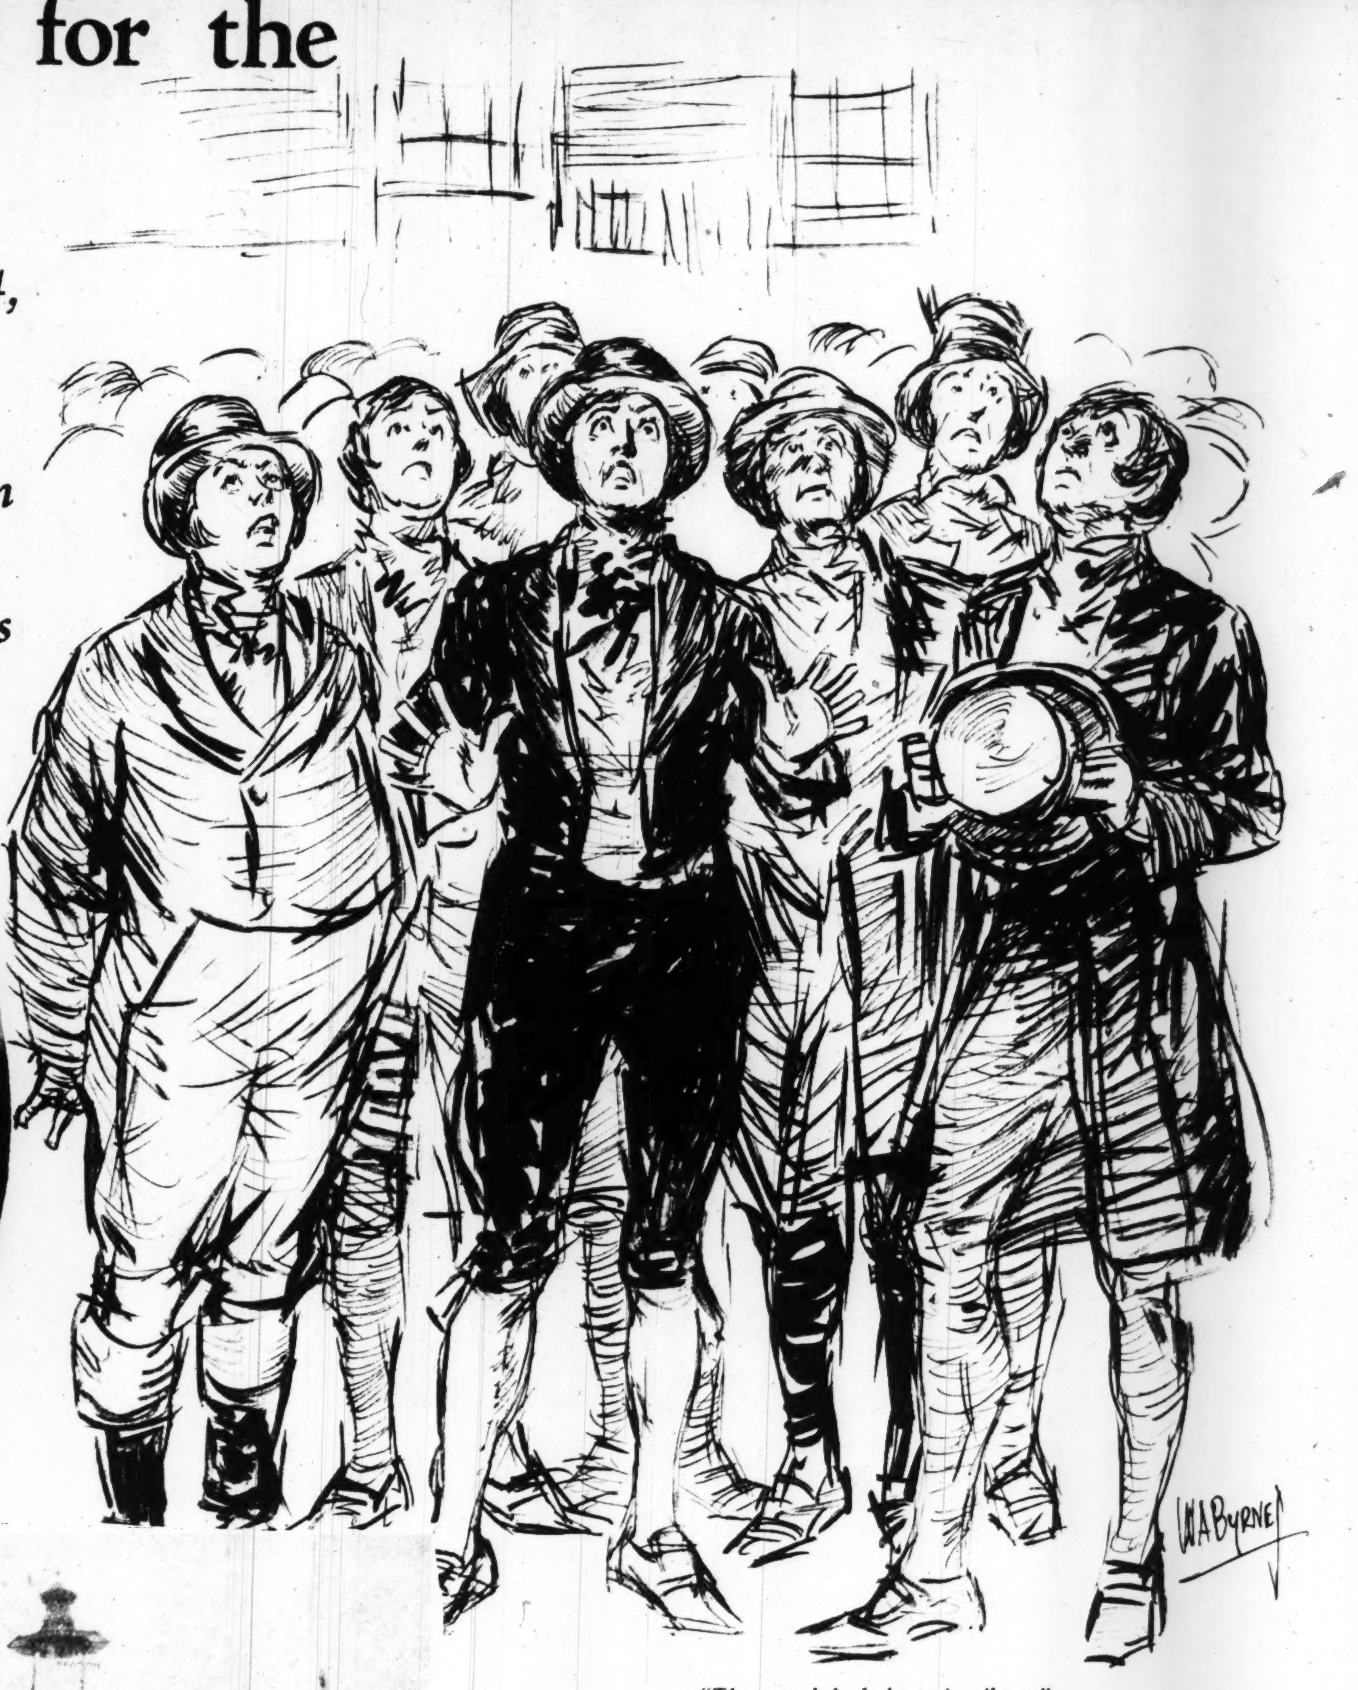
Until midnight of the fateful Sabbath, September 20, the ordinary British citizen gave but little thought to the deterioration of the pound. For him the phrase conveyed no terrors. Francs, marks, liras, rubles, dollars, even, might shrivel over night, but not the British pound.

The Bank of England was back of the pound sterling!

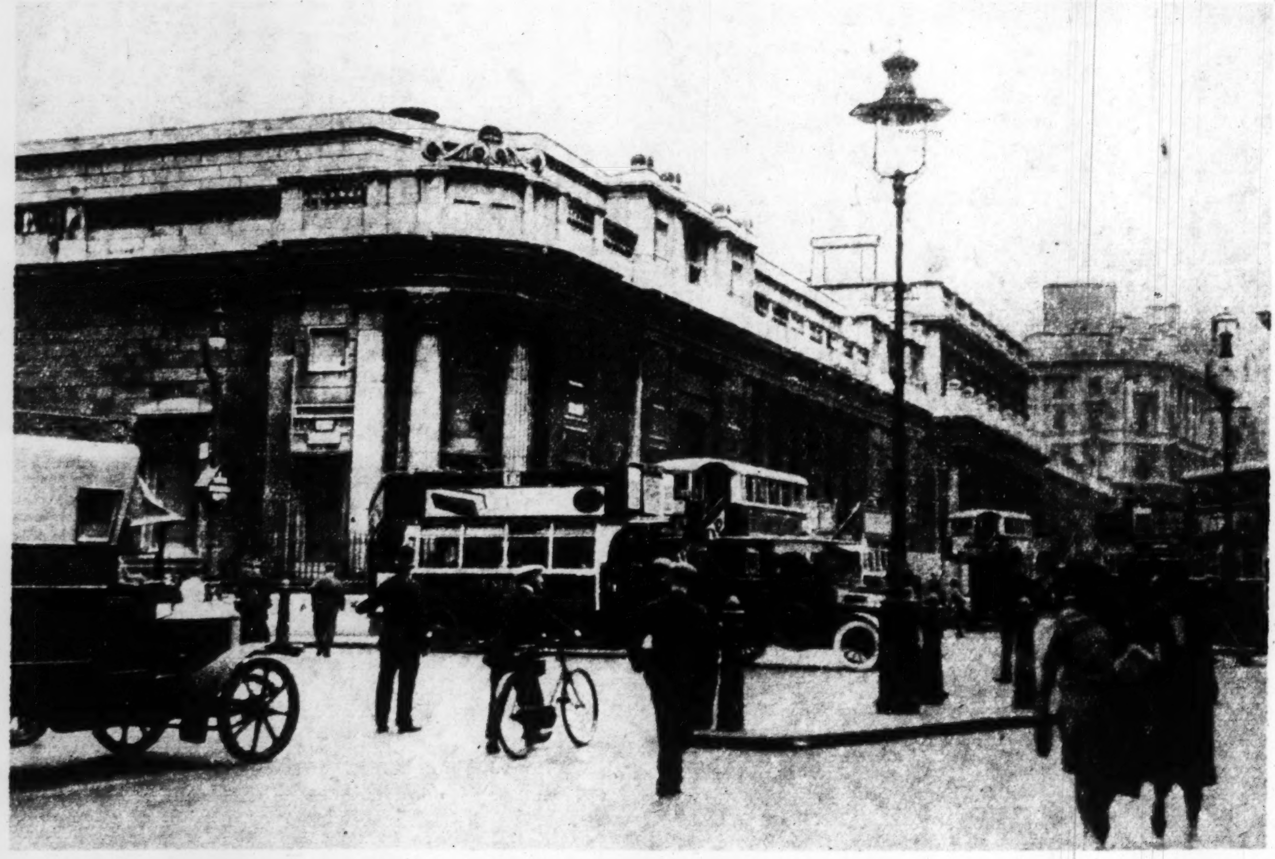
The British pound might shed a few pence in a crisis, but the idea of its being reduced by a quarter was inconceivable.

Well, the average Briton knows better now, and with the passing of the days he will appreciate still more keenly the significance of the slump in the pound's value. Already it is clear to him that the pound sterling will hereafter have to seek its proper level in the world's markets. He is even beginning to worry over the possibilities of his country continuing as a factor in international trade, now that it has abandoned the gold standard.

Montagu Norman, Governor of the Bank of England.



"The crowd looked up in silence."



The Bank of England.

And while many Britons are still dazed from the shock, caused by the discovery that there was not enough gold in the vaults of the Bank of England to guarantee payment in the precious yellow metal of the pound, whenever and wherever presented, the more philosophic of that breed of men are deriving a certain amount of solace in meditating upon the crises of other days.

Instead of trying to pierce the clouds of financial obscurity that lie ahead, they are looking back to see how their country and the Bank of England fared after financial crises of the past.

That history repeats itself is an accepted truism. In no field of activity, however, is it more striking than in the world of finance. If one looks back during the past 250 years in Britain one finds booms, slumps and crises following one another with amazing regularity and with almost monotonous similarity.

THERE is a crumb of comfort in the realization of these facts at the present moment, when the entire fabric of world finances seems to be reeling before the fury of this mighty economic storm. That the British Empire is facing the most serious financial crisis of its existence cannot be gainsaid, and many thinking men are wondering if it shall ever recover from its effects. And while a frenzy of fear and uncertainty has seized the world over the financial crisis that threatens to overwhelm Britain, there is absolutely no reason, in view of what has gone before, why that great Power should not take its rightful place once more in the realm of finance and industry.

The economic woes of Britain are not to be regarded as solely and absolutely domestic. Finance today knows no boundaries. Troubles such as have rocked London within recent days cannot be limited to one section of the world. The ramifications of international finance today are such that England's troubles are felt by the bankers of Tokio; have their repercussion in the money markets of Vienna, Bucharest, Budapest and Prague; cause consternation in Amsterdam and Paris, lead to disquieting features in Rome and speed, as if on magic wings, across the Atlantic to upset the calm of Wall street.

If Charles I had not regarded the royal mint as his money box, to be broken open just when he felt disposed, the Bank of England might never have been born.

The goldsmiths of London had acted as bankers for some three centuries, and used to keep their treasures at the royal mint. It happened that King Charles, becoming rather pressed for ready cash, took a sum of 200,000 pounds ($1,000,000). The merchants were furious, and were not appeased by the bland excuse that His Majesty had merely borrowed the money. They ceased to regard the mint as a safe deposit, and began to consider ways and means of doing business which would be free from the raiding hands of royalty. But it remained for a Scotsman—a Dumfriesshire man—William Paterson, to start the great revolution in banking.

FROM his earliest days Paterson was an adventurer and schemer. He was a merchant and dabbled in the queerest of financial transactions. He was also a great dreamer. Indeed, he had all the qualifications that go to make a banker.

Paterson, through a glib tongue, gained some political influence and had much to do with the Revolution, being much in the coffee houses of Amsterdam at that time. William III's government was soon in financial difficulties. Hitherto, it had been the custom for wealthy men to lend money to the country on the strength of the sovereign's pledge. But now no one was sure how long the new monarchy would last. James, backed up by France and his numerous supporters in England, might be restored at any time. In other words, the security of the British ruler was not good enough for private loans. In 1692 Paterson was the principal witness before a parliamentary committee for raising money, but it was not till 1694 that his plan was adopted, whereby a private company—as it still is—advanced 1,200,000 pounds ($6,000,000) for Britain's needs, not on the security of the King's word, but on that of the nation, thereby founding at the same time the Bank of England and the national debt.

On July 27, 1694, the Bank of England was incorporated and Paterson became one of its directors. He had just passed his thirty-sixth birthday.

The Scottish financial adventurer had quite a bitter fight before success crowned his efforts in founding the great financial institution. Through subscribers he raised the necessary cash, which the British Government was to borrow and on which it was to pay 100,000 pounds ($500,000) a year interest. The subscribers were incorporated in the name and style of the Governor and the Company of the Bank of England.

One of the chief arguments offered by Paterson to swing his project was the prevention of theft at the royal hands, such as was indulged in by Charles I when that monarch coolly helped himself to the 200,000 pounds.

Notwithstanding that a Scotsman, William Paterson, had founded the Bank of England, it was one of the rigid rules of the institution to exclude anyone born north of the border from having a share in the direction of its affairs. Even Paterson was ousted from the directorate, after a short time, though for good and sufficient cause.

From the London banking field, Paterson hied himself to Edinburgh and soon, having talked the Scottish people into what was known as the Darien scheme, the object of which was to plant a colony on the Atlantic side of the Isthmus of Panama, and so form a commercial entrepot for the eastern and western hemispheres, set sail for the tropics of the New World. He shared all the troubles of the expedition, and returned with its survivors a broken man in December, 1699. But he was a man of indomitable energy, and his optimism never deserted him. In promoting the union of Scotland with England, he took a considerable share, and was elected to the first united Parliament by Dumfries Burghs. By a special act of Parliament, in 1715, he was awarded a sum approximating $100,000, for the losses he sustained in connection with the Darien project. He did not live many years thereafter, dying in 1719.

So much for the founder of the Bank of England.

The nickname, "The Old Lady of Threadneedle Street," as the bank is known, has been the subject of endless and amusing controversies. The street of the bank happened to be the third street from Cheapside. It was known as Thriddenal street, from the Anglo-Saxon thridda, or third, in time undergoing corruption as Threadneedle.

AS TO the legend of "The Old Lady," it had its origin in cartoons and newspaper references, some complimentary, others positively damning. When, during a panic run of 180 years ago, the Bank of England gained time by counting out sixpences across the counter to those who clamored for their money, the analogy of a cautious old woman with a teapot hoard was the inspiration of many a cartoonist.

In her day, The Old Lady of Threadneedle has had many frights. Almost at the beginning of its career the goldsmiths of London tried to ruin her by collecting bills and pressing for payments of large amounts—in gold, too.

On one occasion the Bank of England had to cash 20,000 pounds of stolen notes to save its credit.

The first serious financial crisis to which the Bank of England was subjected followed the pricking of the South Sea bubble in 1720. So devastating were the effects that details of this, the first mad stock boom in England, are included as part of every British child's education in history.

Europe at that time was also in the slough of financial despond as the result of the crisis caused in France by the collapse of Law's Mississippi scheme. In due course, however, the finances of Britain and of France were again on a sound footing.

But for weeks the fate of the Bank of England trembled in the balance.

In 1772 the Bank of England encountered another severe financial storm. A period of speculation and extravagance led to the failure of Douglas Heron & Company, and the Bank of England "shook with well-grounded fear."

Again, in time, the wheels of the machine of finance began to revolve.

The nineteenth century was a succession of booms, crises and panics for The Old Lady of Threadneedle Street. During the war with France money got scarce and a financial panic ensued.

Following the Napoleonic wars were years of depression, and again the bank was the object of a concerted assault by the British for their money.

IN 1825, Great Britain was to experience a stock exchange boom comparable almost to the South Sea bubble—the centenary of which it nearly celebrated. A financial crisis ensued, and once more The Old Lady was the object of much concern to British minds. In 10 years the English and Scotch were again enjoying prosperity, the railway boom of 1835 being well under way. This was followed by a financial upheaval, but in 1845 the losses sustained in this crash had been forgotten. Fortunes were again being made in a second great railway boom in which George Hudson played so great a role. The crash which terminated this orgy of speculation in stocks caused the financial observers of the day to prophesy the doom of Britain and the passing of the Bank of England.

September, 1847, will long be remembered in British banking annals. Then, too, unreasoning panic swept through the realms of finance. The Bank of England raised its rate to 8 per cent.

And within a few years that crisis was but a memory.

One of the most sensational panics that ever shook Britain's banking system occurred in 1866, its climax being reached on May 11, referred to even to this day as "Black Friday." The banks of every town and city in the British Isles were thronged with depositors wildly demanding their money in the form of golden sovereigns. Crowds mustered in sullen steadiness before closed doors where banks had perforce suspended payments. Most of the limelight of the drama was shed on the old, established firm of Overend & Gurney, which failed with liabilities totaling $60,000,000.

To a grimly silent but excited House of Commons, Gladstone at midnight announced the temporary suspension of the Bank Charter Act, as a measure to save the situation.

PROSPERITY was not long in returning, and again the Bank of England figured as the pivot of the world's finances.

The affairs of the Western Bank of Scotland were soon to upset the serenity of Britain's financial world. This old institution failed for more than $50,000,000, a disaster that proved the forerunner of a terrible series of crashes. The Bank of England rate touched the unprecedented figure of 9 per cent, and within a few days no less than five large banking concerns had come to grief. Parliament had to be urgently reassembled to stave off what seemed likely to become a national disaster.

The next grave upheaval was in the year 1878, when the financial stability of the British banking system was jeopardized by the failure of the City of Glasgow Bank.

The Baring crisis came in 1890, when, with the object of saving the city—London's Wall street—from a panic of appalling magnitude, the leading banks and money firms of London arranged jointly to underwrite the liabilities of Baring Brothers, and assume the responsibility of the concern's liquidation.

The repercussions of the Baring crisis lasted some years, and were followed by the Liberator crash of 1892, when no fewer than 25,000 small investors suffered serious losses. In 1894 and 1895, the British investing public was enjoying the prosperity which the Kaffir boom brought in its train.

Three years later, in 1898, the news that Ernest Terrah Hooley—the financial wizard of that time—was bankrupt rocked Britain through and through.

Upon the outbreak of the war in 1914 the British Government of that day and the Bank of Enland were faced with a financial crisis, with the result that the Stock Exchange was closed for the first time in its history. Many thought that the London money market would never recover. Yet between 1914 and 1918, Great Britain raised thousands of millions of

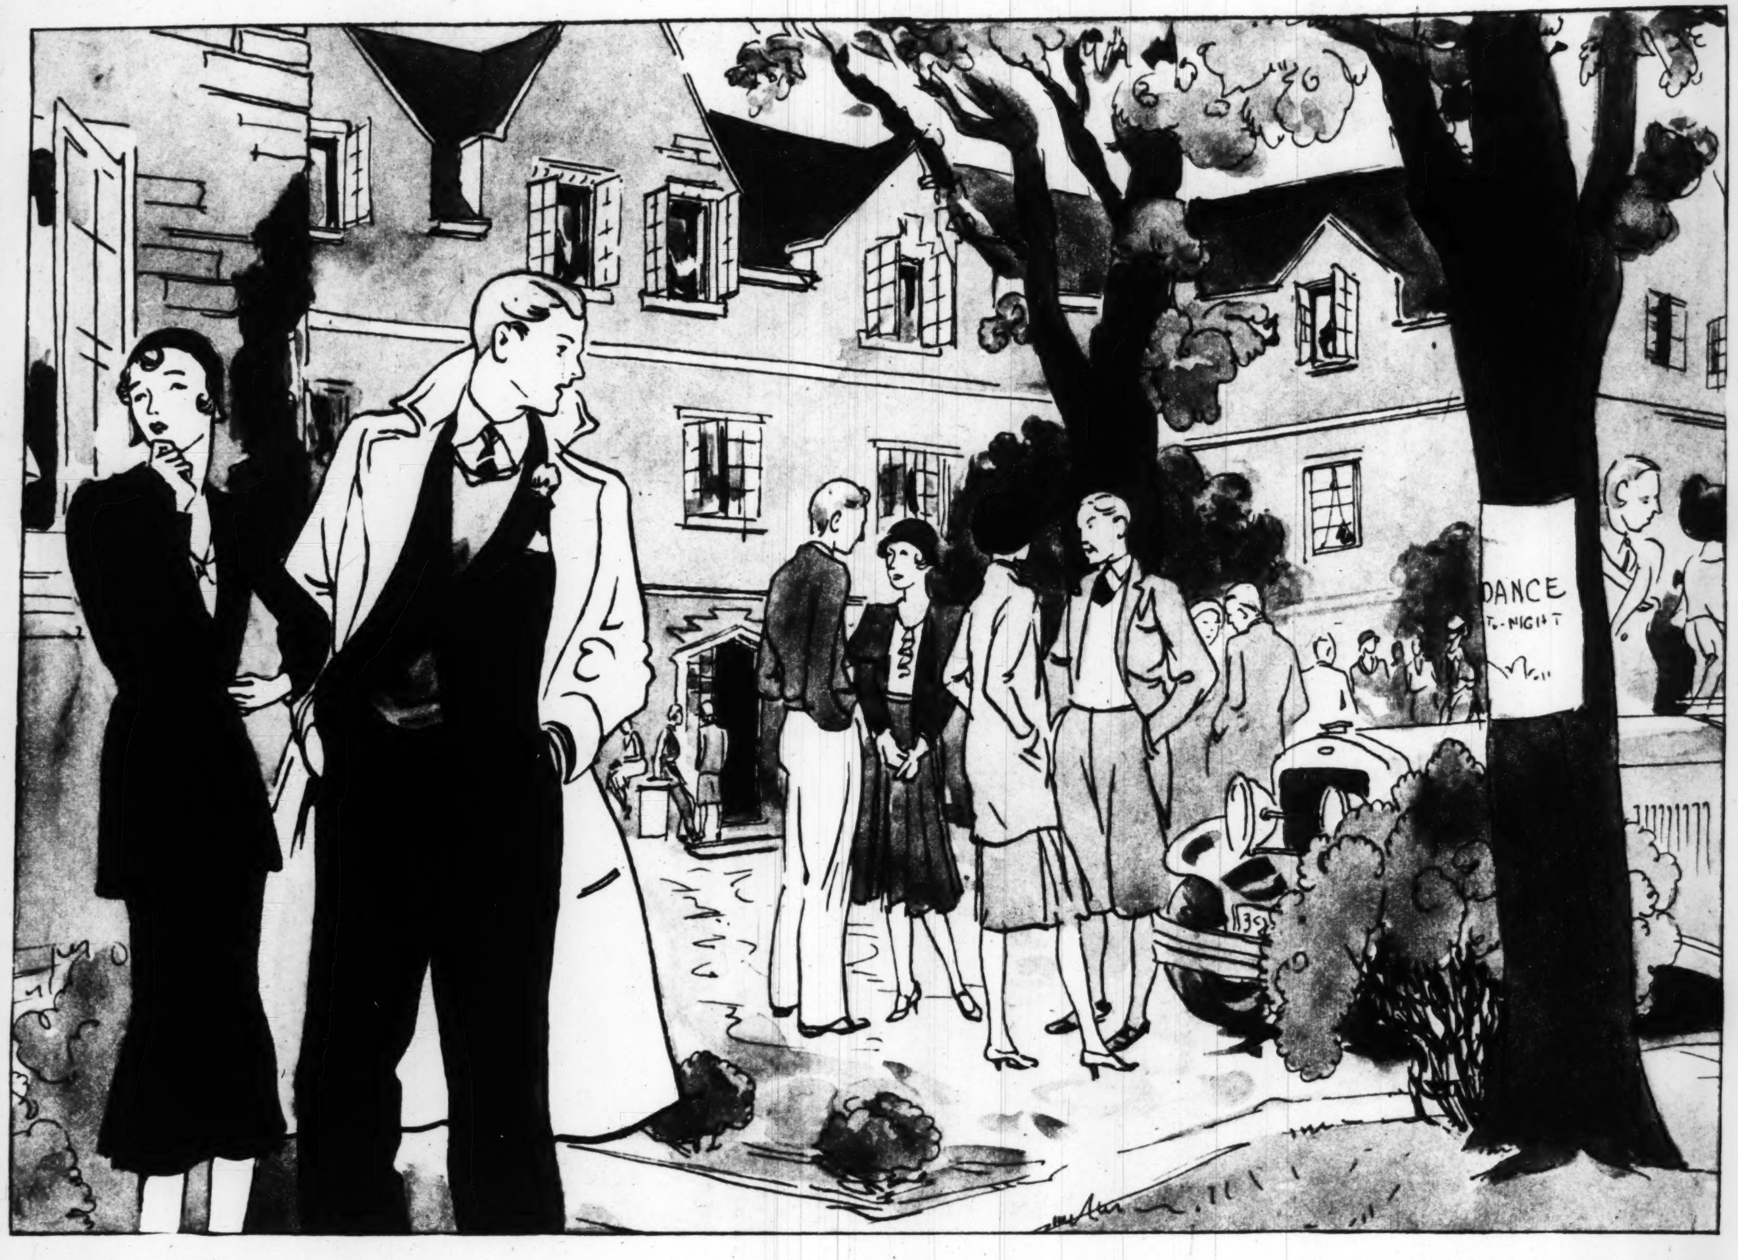
YOU'VE GOT TO KNOW HOW

By

Edith Barnard Delano



"I'd much rather go with you," she said.

IT WAS not so bad to be back at school, after all. Four months before, Skidmore Harrington had looked forward to the summer with all the eagerness of a prisoner working toward a parole; and probably anyone else, too, would have thought that a fellow of 15 ought to be able to enjoy vacation quite a lot. At the May dance Skidmore had become a Great Lover; he had acquired maturity—age, in fact—in one short evening, and thereafter he had carried himself differently. His family had noticed it at once. His grandmother asked:

And his mother had called to him, “Skidmore, what on earth are you mooning about?”

Mooning—not feeling well—that was all families knew about great emotions. Eileen—Eileen Pendergast—the very syllables of her name were as music to him; when she wrote that she was going to visit a cousin less than 30 miles from where he lived, and just couldn't wait to see him, Skidmore had worked heaven and earth, his family and friends, to get a cut-down flivver and drive out to see her. She had said she would rather ride in a cut-down flivver than in anything else on earth, hadn't she? And when at last he got to the cousin's house, what happened! She was just stepping into a new, shiny runabout with a rumble, with that big stiff Harold Kemp at the wheel; and all she said to Skiddy was wouldn't he come out tomorrow. Harold Kemp—whom she hadn't even looked at, at the dance, after she had met Skiddy.

That was what women were like. You couldn't tell him anything about women; and after that experience the entire summer was a flop, and seemed about as long as the Middle Ages.

On the way north from Springfield he met a lot of the fellows on the train; a lot more were hanging around when the bus arrived at the academy. The June before he had bespoken a room on Mr. Nicholson's corridor, which was really the best corridor in school if you knew how to get on with ol' Steady Eddie, as that master was known among the boys.

HIS classmate, Bill Sawtelle, had the room next to his. Skiddy had a month's allowance in his pocket, $10 his grandfather had given him as a parting present, and an interesting trophy that he had bought—so to speak—from his small brother, and which hung conspicuously over his mirror by a blue necktie. Altogether, life began to look up. But when Bill Sawtelle sauntered into his room, of course, he said, gloomily:

“Yeah, back to the grind, the same old grind. Gosh, this is a life.”

“Oh, grand. Sure—perfectly grand.”

Skidmore's eyebrows went up. “Naturally, a man gets older,” said he.

Bill was standing in front of the chiffonier, staring at the trophy hanging against the mirror. “What's holy about that old watch?” he asked.

“Oh, nothing, nothing at all,” said Skidmore in a bored, patient tone. “It isn't anything of a watch, of course. Just an ol' watch of Babe Ruth's, that's all.”

“I'm not even trying to pull your leg, old scout—you got me wrong. I didn't say the Babe gave that watch to me, either. As a matter of fact, he gave it to my kid brother.

“I sort of made the kid see he didn't really want it. Besides, he had the ball the Babe autographed for him. You see, m'uncle's one of the stockholders of the baseball park, and he took the kid out to see a game and meet the team and all, and the Babe wrote his name on a ball and then took out his watch and began to wind it and the mainspring went blooey, and he laughed and said maybe the kid would like a watch he had carried and wouldn't mind its being busted, and that's all there was to it.”

“Just like that,” said Sawtelle. “Yeah. Sure.”

His lightness made its impression. After a moment William asked, “You wouldn't want to sell that watch would you, Skid?”

“You make me laugh,” Skidmore said; and then Sawtelle believed.

“Seen anything of Eileen?”

There was no outward evidence that Skidmore's heart missed a beat. “Who?” he asked.

“Why, Eileen—Eileen Pendergast.

“O-oh,” said Skidmore, “that kid!”

“What of all those special deliveries last spring and all?”

“Oh, well, of course, I had to humor her. But women are nothing to me. I'm past all that, old son, past it!”

“Yeah?” Bill's grin was fleeting. “Come on in and look at a coupla pictures I got and wake up from your dream.”

Two photographs stood on Bill's chiffonier in silvered frames. Skidmore looked at them. “Not so bad, as girls go,” he pronounced at last.

“You're darned right they're not,” affirmed William. “I wish I knew which one I loved the best.”

“There's nothing to choose between 'em. All women are just alike; just exactly alike.”

“How do you get that way? You mean to tell me those two girls look like each other? You mean to”——

“OH, ONE'S got a turned-up nose and the other one's trying to look like Joan of Arc. But underneath they're just alike. Just exactly alike. I know women.”

“Aw, you gi' me a pain in the neck,” said William.

Life at the academy had begun again.

Begun; and in a week Skidmore had spent his last nickel on earth, with his allowance not due for ages! The only balm to his soul was the flattering attention bestowed upon him, especially by the younger boys, because of his possession of Babe Ruth's watch. Nearly every day one or another, and sometimes several together, came into his room and asked to see it, even to hold it. Fatty White and a miniature freshman, Runty McClure, were particularly attracted by it. Yet as the days wore on, even the great Babe's ex-property lost interest for all but McClure and Fatty; but even they did not come in, this afternoon. So Skidmore sauntered into Sawtelle's room.

He stood gazing at the pictures on the chiffonier a few minutes, then drifted back to his own room again.

Girls . . . That one with the turned-up nose, now—her mouth sort of curled up, and she looked little, and maybe cute, of course, but women were all alike.

That night he dreamed that he was dancing with the little one; she looked up into his face and said: “Oh, Skiddy, I think you're just perfectly wonderful.”

The day came when Skidmore, in sheer desperation of hunger, sought out Rodney White.

“Say, look,” said Skidmore “you're pretty smart about machinery, Rod, aren't you?”

“Oh, I don't know,” Fatty said, flushing with pleasure.

“I been wondering—was that what you wanted to buy that watch of Babe's for—to take it to pieces?”

Rodney looked keenly at Skidmore. “You want to sell it?”

Skidmore shrugged. “Oh, I'm not really anxious to, you understand.”

“Sure,” agreed Rodney. “How much?”

A FEW minutes later Skidmore was the richer by two good dollars; and shortly thereafter he walked into Sawtelle's room with a bagfull of doughnuts.

“Help yourself,” he said grandly.

Skidmore's mouth was full; also, he was gazing at the picture of the girl who had called him wonderful, if only in his dream.

His complacency lasted only a few fleeting moments. On the way across the campus a very small boy had fallen into step beside him.

“Gee, Skiddy,” said Runty, looking upward, “I think it was awfully kind of you to sell me that watch”——

“How d'you mean—me sell you that watch?”

“Fatty said you wouldn't like it if I spoke about it, but I wanted to thank you, Skiddy.”

“How much did he sting you for it?”

“Well, he wanted $3, but all I had was $2.81, so”——

“Yeah,” Skidmore had said. “Well, that's all right, kid.”

But he felt cheated, bewildered, wilted, mad. Gosh, he felt humble.

“Oh, sure—I'm wonderful,” he kept saying to himself all the next day. Yeah—oh, yeah.”

The way his classes went that day did nothing to lighten his gloom; nor did he find any comfort whatever in discovering that Sawtelle was in a state of mind that matched his own. Sawtelle, in fact, was bitter.

“You sure got to have money these days!” he announced. “Look at me—I got a week-end coming to me, I got permission to go, and how'm I going to get there without money? Does it makes any difference that she's asked me to stay with her? Does it make any difference that she's going to have a dance and all? Does it make any difference that it's her birthday, even? I'm”——

“Whose birthday?” Skidmore asked, strangely; he had thought his voice had stopped squeaking long ago. “The little one with the turned-up nose?”

“Who said her nose turned up?” Sawtelle flared; then he added: “Oh, you mean June Blake. Naw—she's over in Providence at Miss Keller's school. Oh, June's all right, but Betty is one swell egg. Oh boy! One—swell—egg.”

Back in his own room again, Skidmore scribbled her name on his blotter. . . . Gosh if he could only get to know her. . . . Then, with morning, inspiration came. He still had $1.70 left from the sale of the watch; a pound of candy would cost $1, and the postage to Providence. . . . In the box he inclosed a note: “From an unknown admirer. Skidmore Harrington, Deerfield Academy. R.S.V.P.”

Changed was the aspect of school; changed, indeed, was life itself. Letters came and went daily; and for a little while Skidmore was himself again, his best self, buoyant, assured.

“The trouble with you is,” he said to Sawtelle, “you don't know how to manage things. You got to know how, that's all. Easy”——

“All right, then, you tell me how!” Sawtelle returned. “I'd like to see anybody tell me how I'm going to get off for next week-end with less'n a dollar in my pocket.”

“I'm sorry, old son. I really am sorry for you. Honest. No kiddin'. If I had the money I'd lend it to you myself. If I did lend you the money,” he said slowly, “I suppose I really ought to have some security for it. It isn't that I wouldn't trust you, but”——

Skidmore's thoughts pained Skidmore. No, it certainly wasn't right to leave her picture in Bill's room. Already they had been writing about her coming for the Thanksgiving dance; how would it look to have a girl come to the dance and her picture on another fellow's bureau? If he had the money to lend Bill . . . but, doggone it, he hadn't a thing to sell. If he only had that watch of the Babe's now, he could . . .

Slowly his mouth fell open; then, slowly, its corners moved upward . . . Oh, boy! If it would work. . . .

“Say, look, old man,” he said to the youthful McClure next morning, “you wouldn't mind making some money, would you—$3, maybe?”

“Gee!” said Runty, his eyes round.

“ALL right, then, you're going to be my partner, and all you got to do is pocket the cash and do what I tell you to and not kick about it—see? That a bargain? Cross your heart?”

Skidmore himself had known the lure, before now, of getting something for nothing, or for less than it may be worth. Armed with a manner of importance and sundry numbered slips, he had nothing eager about him. During the next three or four days he managed to have apparently secret interviews with all the younger boys in school; each evening he counted his growing number of quarters.

“How much are chances?”

“You don't want to take any chances in this. You're too poor.”

“You said it. I'm poor, all right. Got 60 cents left, and I can't get away on that. Might as well spend a quarter on a chance as on anything else.”

Skidmore shrugged and wagged his head. “It's your money,” said he.

The raffling was perfectly fair; Saltersall himself, captain of the first football team, consented to draw the number from the hat. Skidmore did, indeed, have to deal with young McClure when the time came to deliver the prize.

“Yeah, but look,” said he. “You promised to do as I said, and you don't really want that ol' watch, anyway. You haven't got any kick coming, kid. Here's your $3.”

He grinned broadly when he saw the trophy on Sawtelle's desk. “Well, you won it, didn't you?” he asked blithely.

“Won it! And what would I want with it? You tell me.” And yet, in spite of his words, Sawtelle was grinning.

“I got good news for you, boy,” said Skidmore. “I got plenty of money. It's like I told you—you just got to use your bean. You gi' me the watch as security and I'll lend you $10.”

“SA-A-AY,” Sawtelle began; but Skidmore spoke quickly.

“Or, if you don't want to hock the watch, I tell you what I'll do. It isn't that I want any girl's picture, but I need something on my bureau. I'll take that one on the left—what's her name? June?”

“Whoopee!” cried Sawtelle. “I'll do something for you some day.”

And Skidmore modestly told him: “Oh, that's all right. I like to oblige a friend.”

Were the days that followed happy ones? Daily she wrote to him, and though he dreamed of her no more, he could now always look at her picture. Moreover, she was coming to the dance! When Sawtelle, on the eve of the great event, was found to be sunk in despair again, Skidmore's heart melted in pity.

“Oh, buck up,” he said kindly. “What do you care if she has thrown you down to go to Loomis? Go stag—sometimes it works out better that way, anyhow. You never can tell.”

“I'm not going to any old dance,” returned Sawtelle bitterly. “I'm done with women. Forever.”

A curious look came into Skidmore's eyes; his grin was weak and fleeting. “Yeah?” he said. “Well”——

Skidmore could take his time about dressing; she was coming in a car with friends, and would not arrive, probably, until after most of the other girls. Dressed at last, with the white flower in his buttonhole by which she was to know him, he sauntered into poor old Bill's room. Bill was frowning, leaning forward with his elbows on his knees and his chin in his hands.

“Oh, shut up. Le'me alone, can't you?” Bill snapped.

“Why, certainly,” Skidmore returned, and walked out.

The campus was gay with bareheaded lads in couples, in groups, or escorting girls in sports dresses or premature fur coats. Skidmore moved among the crowd, making his way slowly to the office, where so soon—yet not soon enough!—he was to meet her. That little turned-up nose, that cute grin. . . . Then suddenly—

Suddenly he stopped. His mouth fell slightly open. There, there talking to the school hostess, and with distress upon her brow, was Eileen Pendergast.

Her expression changed. Like a bird she flew toward him. “Why Skiddy!” she cried, “I haven't seen you since”——

She was darned right she hadn't—not since she had looked down upon him from Harold Kemp's runabout.

“Oh, how d'you do?” said he. “It's Eileen, isn't it—Eileen—er—Pendergast?”

She laughed. “You old silly,” said she. “As if you could forget me any more than I could forget you!” I—I'm awfully glad to see you, Skiddy.”

“Yeah?”

“YOU don't have to believe it if you don't want to. But that's really why I came to the dance when Harold Kemp asked me—I felt just awfully, Skiddy, because you”——

“Harold Kemp! Why, he's got the pink eye!”

She faltered a little. “I know, I'm awfully sorry for Harold, but, oh, Skiddy, we can have a perfectly wonderful time! I'd much rather go with you.”

“Well, I'm sure I'd be very glad to take you to the dance, Eileen, very glad, indeed—if I could. But, you see, I've got a girl coming.”

“Oh, Skiddy—couldn't you somehow manage?”

“I'm afraid I'll have to be getting along. I'm sure glad to have run into you again, Eileen.”

And beyond, a girl was stepping out of a car, a girl with a turned-up nose. . . .

He crossed the ground to the dormitory with a speed he had never approached before.

Sawtelle was sitting humped on the edge of his bed.

“All's the matter with you,” said Skidmore, “is that you picked the wrong girl. That's all. What you ought to've done, old son, was to stick to that other one—June. Think what a good time you'd be having right now if you had invited her instead of that other one. I came in to tell you that if you really would like to go to this dance with June, she's out there now.”

Sawtelle's look became amazement, incredulity, hope, despair again. “Quit your kiddin',” he muttered. “I want to be”——

“What'd I want to kid about it for? I invited June to come to this dance, and”——

“Like heck you did! You don't even know her!”

“Well, I asked her, anyway, and she's out there now. She's just come. So if you really would like to take her to this dance, you can. You give that watch back, and I'll turn June over to you.”

BILL went into action. In 10 minutes he was arrayed and glorified.

Skidmore had to hunt for Eileen, but he found her at last, shrinking behind the chaperons, and at once his manner became lordly again. He looked very much the man of the world.

“Well, shall we step” he asked.

Her lips parted; she flushed, arose. “But—but I thought”——

“Oh, I managed that,” he told her lightly.

She melted into his arms as they stepped away to the music.

Oh, boy, the way she looked at him. . . . Just eatin' out of his hand. . . . And during the last dance she asked him if now he wouldn't write to her.

She caught her breath, and looked up into his face. . . . And as she was leaving she said: “Oh, Skiddy, I never in my life knew a man as—as powerful as you.”

And that hadn't been any dream. . . . When at last he was in bed, he was thinking about that, and other things. Maybe he was sort of powerful. There was Eileen, right where he wanted her—there wasn't any other woman in the world like Eileen. He had got the Babe's watch back again—he need never be out of funds with that watch. Bill owed him 10 good bucks, with interest. Yeah, he was powerful all right; but a man only had to know how. . . . Gosh, this was one grand old world.

For every 1000 employes that meant 6000 working days saved every year. But the bankers said that was paternalistic, too.

So the company built a hospital and made it available for use by the city. That was paternalistic. The result of it all was pressure that made it impossible for me to continue as president of the company. I lost control and the Wall Street bankers gained control. Beyond that, I can say nothing except that what has been done is done and I am neither crying nor attacking."

People in Ponca City think a lot of Marland. "The best loved man in town or in the State," acquaintances, employes and former employes say of him. Most of the employes that once were his now work for Continental. There isn't a man in town, acquaintances say, who wouldn't do anything in his power for "E. W.", but what, they ask, can anybody do? Big business leaders have lost confidence in him. They say he is too visionary, too much of a dreamer. He takes big chances.

IT WAS by taking big chances that Marland built the oil company. When he came to Oklahoma in 1908 oil men scoffed at the idea that any oil would be found in this part of the State. At that time there was no production anywhere west of a north-south line through Tulsa. Ponca City is 100 miles west of Tulsa in that stretch of country famous as the Cherokee Strip. Marland, however, had faith in his convictions. Also he had faith in geology.

Upon graduation in law from the University of Michigan at 19, Marland had been unable to win admittance to the bar in his native State of Pennsylvania because he was under age. So he had forsaken law for the oil business and had gained some experience in the Pennsylvania and West Virginia fields. He had become a first-rate geologist, too, and he had brought this training with him to Oklahoma. That was about all he had brought. It is said he was "flat broke" when he landed in Ponca City and George L. Miller of the 101 Ranch paid his hotel bill.

Miller was his first partner. They organized the 101 Ranch Oil Company, rounded up a little capital and started drilling. The first well, put down on a Ponca Indian allotment on the ranch, was a dry hole. But the second and third were gushers and the Ponca district was established.

The Marland Oil Company was organized. Other wells went down. A refinery was built; then a tank farm. Pipe lines were laid. The company expanded to other fields and other states. In 1920 one of the biggest oil deals in the annals of the industry was closed when Marland took over mineral and oil rights to a 3,000,000-acre tract in Sonora, Mexico.

Ponca City itself grew up with a Marland stamp on it. The oil company virtually made the town. It grew from a sand-blown prairie village to a prosperous and attractive city of 16,000 with more flowers and trees than any other municipality of its size in the Southwest. About a fourth of the working population worked for Marland.

As power and prestige and wealth grew, Marland became a sort of father to the town as well as to the company. Although he never attempted to dictate in civic matters or to direct anybody's private life, his friends declare, he had a way of feeling responsible for people. They say when he would buy a farm for oil development purposes and the farmer wanted $15,000, Marland would have no objection to paying $18,000 or $20,000 because he felt that the farmer who had endured hardships of early Oklahoma days and who had perhaps made the "run" for his farm when the Cherokee Strip opened, was entitled to more than the land was actually worth.

A lot of people took advantage of that characteristic of his. Some came to regard him as a kind of public gold mine to be tapped at will. Tradesmen "stung" him and he stood for it; he even liked it. It is said he always expected to pay about a fourth more for anything than anybody else. His list of philanthropies, both public and private, is said to have been staggering. He gave hundreds of thousands to churches, schools, charities and needy individuals. His gifts to his friends were lavish, too, and frequent. A former officer of the Marland Oil Company says he once saw Marland give William H. McFadden 76,000 shares of oil stock in one parcel—stock which was then selling on the open market at $6 a share. McFadden was one of his early partners in the oil company.

IN KEEPING with this program of munificence, Marland and his family lived on a scale quite as elaborate. He was enamored of the English country gentleman idea and pursued it to the finish. Some of the magnificent fox hunts and wolf hunts on the Marland preserve, the hunters wearing red coats and riding Marland hunting horses, are among the things that glow in the memory of Ponca City. They were grand occasions, not seen before in Oklahoma.

He was a polo enthusiast, too, and went to considerable expense to make Ponca City a nationally known center of the sport. He provided grounds, imported polo ponies, organized teams among his employes and even brought a prominent army instructor here to coach his players.

The Marland mansion, now one of the showplaces of the Southwest, cost him approximately $1,000,000, together with grounds and landscaping. The grounds, 37 acres in all, constitute almost a botanical paradise. Besides preserving the native vegetation as was his custom, he brought trees and flowers and shrubs from every part of the country. About everything that will grow in Oklahoma is to be found on the Marland estate.

Work on the home was interrupted by the death of the first Mrs. Marland in 1926. Two years later Marland married Miss Lydie Roberts, his wife's niece and a former ward. The home was then completed. Ironically, however, it was completed about the time the New York bankers who, by this time had gained control of his company, decided that Marland must be eliminated from the concern. The costly palace loomed up as an exhibit, a glaring example of how he had overreached himself.

It was for payment of income taxes that Marland negotiated the $800,000 loan which eventually was to strip him of his Southland Royalty and real estate holdings. He borrowed the money in New York and first put up all his Southland stock, 82,211 shares, as collateral. Then, when there was a drop in the market and he was called upon for more collateral, he marshaled his real estate equities, normally worth about $1,000,000. He was having trouble with the interest, however, and the New York bankers began to press him for payment of the loan.

Such was the situation last November when William H. McFadden, large Southland stockholder, former vice president of the oil company and long-time associate of Marland, came back to Oklahoma from New Orleans, where he had gone to live in retirement. At a meeting of the Southland board McFadden said he wanted to help his old friend Marland and would have that loan moved to Tulsa, with himself as guarantor. The Southland directors approved of this, not only because they were friendly to Marland's interests, but also because they didn't want 82,000 shares of Southland thrown on the open market in the event of foreclosure by the New York banks. Thereupon, they elected McFadden president of the Southland company, of which Marland was chairman of the board, and the loan was taken out of New York. With McFadden as guarantor, it was divided between two Tulsa banks, the Exchange National taking $450,000 and the First National $350,000. McFadden at the same time took an option to buy 34,211 shares of Southland at $10 a share, this option to be effective until February 1, 1931.

LAST January McFadden exercised the option and bought the 34,211 shares at $10. This reduced the total of the loan to approximately $460,000, but in July time came for extension of the note and Marland was unable to pay the interest. The Exchange National then declared its part of the loan in default and sold to McFadden 28,000 shares of Southland at $4. The loan had now swallowed up 62,211 shares of the Royalty company. Only 22,000 more were left. But the loan had now been reduced to about $350,000, the part held by the Tulsa First National.

The First National offered to extend the note six months if Marland would pay the $7500 interest which was due.

Marland then managed to borrow $7500 and paid the interest. The note was extended six months, and he thought the situation was saved, so far as this part of the loan was concerned. No more interest would be due until January, 1932. In the meantime, he might be able to get that Federal income tax refund. His relief, however, was short-lived.

Less than a month later he was called upon to put up more collateral and was unable to furnish it. The bank then sold him out. McFadden bought the Southland stock at $5 a share and, as the only bidder present, he got the real estate equities for $100. McFadden says he has agreed to sell back to Marland the real estate for $250,000, the amount by which it failed to satisfy the loan. But the Southland stock, he declares, he will not sell back. He now controls the company and Marland is out, removed from the board of directors.

There are many who look for Marland to attempt a "come back." But he, himself, is a bit vague on that point. He says he will have no plans for the future until he sees what the Government is going to do about that income tax refund. Some of his closest friends are inclined to believe he will retire from business and live on what is left of his once vast fortune. He is 57 now. John Alcorn, a former vice president of the oil company, says he thinks Marland is in a position to enter his declining years a very happy man.

"He has tasted great power and great wealth," Alcorn points out. "He has had a rich experience. He has no business responsibilities and still has enough to enable him to live in comfort. The only indictment against him is that he was too generous. His office was a mecca for all the down-and-outers in Oklahoma. He has the affection of just about the entire State. What more does a man need for his old age?"

the head of the camel on the llama and the head of the wolf on the boar. But then they have had 19,900,000 years to get themselves unscrambled into the animals that are living today. Those restored and shown in the picture are, from left to right, a llama-like camel, a two-horned rhinoceros, a three-toed horse, a giant pig and a tall, claw-footed animal. Remains of all these beasts have been found in Nebraska.

The mastadon is obviously related to the modern elephant. Many mastodon specimens have been discovered in draining the swamp lands near Chicago. They are believed to have existed in large numbers throughout the Eastern and Central United States. Then there is the Cave Bear which lived in Europe during the Ice Age. It is the largest bear known to science and it is plain that this bear was the immediate forefather of most contemporary bears. The specimens look not unlike some of the big bears in the St. Louis zoo.

THE Great Irish Deer was chiefly remarkable for its enormous antlers. It was comparable in size to the modern moose and is believed to have existed in Western Europe. It is called Irish because innumerable specimens have been found in the peat bogs of Ireland. This extinct deer measured ten feet from the top of the skull to the ground and antlers with a spread of ten feet have been found.

The animals that lived in North America when the sea extended over the western half of the Mississippi Valley are shown in the picture at the top of this page. Their fossil bones are found in the natural chalk beds of western Kansas and in the black shales from Texas to Alberta. Three kinds of animals are represented. The short-necked lizard in the foreground grew to a length of 30 feet. The great sea-turtles to the right had shells from three to eight feet in length. The flying reptiles shown resembled great bats, the largest having a wing spread of 22 feet. All of these disappeared 60,000,000 years ago.

Just Another Crisis for the Bank of England

pounds, both for its own forces and those of its allies.

In 1919 Britain reveled in a post-war boom, which was followed by the inevitable slump a year or two later. Throughout the world industrial and financial depression reigned supreme, but in 1928 the British, as well as Americans, were in the throes of a mad stock boom, which later events were to prove a form of sheer gambling insanity.

So down the long roll of the years, for more than two centuries, the Bank of England has passed through many financial convulsions, from which it has managed to emerge happy and smiling.

The Old Lady has experienced many trials and tribulations, some of which have cost her dearly. Forgers galore have pitted their wits against the bank. Just as the British state lottery was on its last legs a man named Charles Price defrauded it of a gigantic sum. He forged large numbers of seemingly perfect banknotes. He was never apprehended.

Probably one of the weirdest stories, and ghastliest, too, in connection with the Bank of England is why the famous institution ceased the issuance of One Pound notes. It all revolves around a bit of currency, a banknote known as "Cruikshank." It was never legal tender, and the only commodity it was used to buy was human life from the hangman.

This "banknote" was the work of a single artist, hastily drawn to express the mood of a moment, yet within a few days it was the most talked of work of art in England.

A MEETING of the Governor and the directors of the Bank of England at once decided that the Old Lady should issue no more One Pound notes, a resolve that was kept from that date, only a year or two after the battle of Waterloo, until a short while ago. Another result was that hanging was dropped as a punishment for forgery in Great Britain.

Up to that time forgery and the passing of forged notes provided the hangman with a score of victims, and almost as many women as men. Men did the forging, but the notes were given to women to pass off in the gin shops. When caught, they were hanged without compunction and their bodies exposed as a deterrent to others of criminal bent.

It happened that one bright morning in 1817, George Cruikshank, the famous caricaturist, was passing down Ludgate Hill, London, when he saw a crowd staring up towards the Old Bailey.

He crossed over to see what it was all about and found they were gazing upon the recent work of the hangman in the shape of five swinging bodies, including those of two women hanged for passing forged banknotes.

The morning breeze caused them to sway slowly and rhythmically against the sky like so many sacks—five lolling heads twisted to one side, 10 feet pointing stiffly downwards, feet that a short time before had been accustomed to walk, albeit staggering at times, along the streets of London.

The mixed crowd of shopkeepers, clerks, hangers-on from the neighborhood taverns, several urchins, and the artist looked up in silence. The better class folk among them were beginning to feel themselves strangely stirred by this wholesale ruthlessness. The loafers no doubt wondered when their turn would come and expected no mercy.

AS HE stood there the artist's feeling of horror passed to one of resentment at this treatment of human life as the least valuable commodity in England—of far less consequence than the tiny pieces of metal bearing the King's head in his pocket.

Then his mind turned to the banknotes that were the direct cause of the horrors suspended above him and he thought of them not as a means of purchasing so much comfort, but as a symbol of greed and death.

With that picture in his mind he set to work to produce a caricature of the banknote. He worked rapidly and with savage application, crowding into his copy of the note as many tokens of death as he could—skulls, gibbeted bodies, the hangman's rope—in place of the pound sterling sign.

Many copies were struck off that same day and some decorated the windows of establishments on Ludgate Hill. The crowds that gathered were so large that the Lord Mayor had to call out the police to clear the streets. The caricature caused a wave of feeling that the Bank of England could not ignore, and at a hastily summoned meeting of the Governor and the Board of Directors it was decided that henceforth its notes would be of such a size that they would cease to be a temptation to the down-and-outers of London. The Five-Pound note was to be the smallest issued by the Bank of England until it took over the issue of the Treasury notes on November 22, 1928.

When the Bank of England stopped the issuance of the One Pound notes, Parliament passed a bill abolishing hanging as a penalty for the crime of forgery in all its forms.

WHEN Britain returned to the gold standard in 1925, which was followed in 1928 by the fusion of the Treasury note issue with the Bank of England notes, the prediction was then made that His Majesty's currency would forever retain its soundness.

There was one, however, who scoffed the prophecy, he being none other than J. Maynard Keynes, noted British economist. He said that British currency reforms were being brought about much too quickly and thoroughly. The events of the last few days have proved the correctness of the viewpoint of the economist.

There are many who charge that when Montagu Collet Norman, head of the Bank of England, restored the gold standard overnight, in 1925, in alliance with the then Prime Minister Stanley Baldwin, British commerce and industry was dealt a blow from which they have yet to recover.

At the present time the Governor of the Bank of England is the target for the shafts of the politico-financial leaders of Britain. Governor Norman had no participation whatever in the recent parley between leaders of the National Government and financial experts, owing to reported illness, which necessitated a rest in the wilds of Quebec.

As a result of the decision of the National Government of Great Britain suspending the gold standard and raising the discount rate from 4½ per cent to 6 per cent, the British newspapers are hinting that the position of Norman is rather wobbly. As the British are in a financial house-cleaning mood he may be relieved of his post.

In the case of the Old Lady of Threadneedle street history may repeat itself. It has weathered many rough seas. The historian of a hundred years hence may class 1931 as just one of the many financial storms through which the Bank of England rode into clearing weather and calm seas.

A SPANISH CHASUBLE

The Third of a Series of Art Objects Being Given a Special Showing at the St. Louis Art Museum.

THIS is the third of a series of art treasures which are being prominently displayed at the City Art Museum by Director Meyric Rogers. Each week one of the museum's rarest possessions is placed in a special setting that has been created to the left of the entrance. Each masterpiece will be reproduced in the Sunday Magazine of the Post-Dispatch, with an account by museum authorities in the various fields of the history of the work. The complete series will be an excellent guide to the most precious possessions of the city's museum. There follows a description of the painting:

A XV Century Spanish Chasuble embroidered in gold and silk has, since its acquisition in 1916, been considered one of the finest pieces of textile art in the City Art Museum. During the Middle Ages the Church was the great patron of Art. All the imagination and skill of the best artists and craftsmen were aided by the wealth of the pious to produce offerings suitable to her supreme dignity. It is not surprising, therefore, to find among the official robes of the priests worn at the great church festivals some of the greatest marvels of the textile art of Europe. The chasuble, a vestment worn by the priest officiating at the sacrament of the Holy Eucharist, was among the most carefully preserved of church properties.

The ground material of this Spanish chasuble is cloth of gold brocaded in pomegranate pattern on a warp of red and yellow silk. The orphries, or figured gold embroideries, extend in a central band down the front and back. This band is divided into six panels—three on the front and three at the back—each framed in an architectural setting in couched gold embroidery. Within the arches of five of the panels are embroidered scenes from the life of Christ, the sixth panel illustrates the Cueva-Mendoza coat-of-arms. Using only a limited number of colors—about nine—the embroiderer with needle and thread has rivaled the facility of a painter's palette and brush in showing differences in texture, character in figures and facial expressions.

The chasuble has been dated XV Century. Technique, material, and design are the usual, and often the only, means of dating art objects. However, direct evidence has been embroidered into one of the panels of this piece. Careful research by authorities on heraldry revealed the fact that the heraldic devise in the top panel at the front of the chasuble led back directly to two of the great XV Century families of Spain. In short the coat-of-arms is that of Don Beltram de la Cueva, First Duke of Albuquerque, joined as a symbol of their marriage in 1460, with the arms of his first wife, Dona Mencia de Mendoza, niece of Cardinal Don Pedro.

AT THE death of Don Beltram in 1492 the coat-of-arms was revised. Without question, this chasuble was begun after 1460 and probably finished before 1492.

From contemporary records it is evident that it would require from twenty-five to thirty years to complete the embroidery The importance of this chasuble as a human document assumes something of its proper proportions when we realize that a quarter of a century of experience, skill, and the history of a very important art epoch is stitched into it. Here may be seen the realism of the Renaissance invading the more austere gothic traditions.

LET ME THINK.... WHAT WAS THE NAME OF THAT MEMORY TRAINING SCHOOL.....AND WHAT WAS THE ADDRESS?....WELL I KNOW IT'S IN THIS NEIGHBORHOOD SOME PLACE.
WATERLOO CAFE
AMNESIA INSTITUTE OF MEMORY TRAINING 4TH FLOOR WALK UP
AH, AT LAST...AMNESIA! IT SEEMS AS THOUGH THEY'VE CHANGED THE NAME. WELL ANYHOW—
YES, I'M THE DEAN. YOUR FACE IS FAMILIAR, SIR, BUT WILL YOU REPEAT THAT NAME?
BUNGLE! DON'T YOU REMEMBER ME..? I TOOK THE DOUBLE COURSE IN JUNE.. OR WAS IT JULY OR POSSIBLY MAY?
ANYHOW WHEN I GRADUATED I LEFT A VERY GOOD UMBRELLA HERE. REMEMBER? WITH A CURVED HANDLE AND A VERY VERY SMALL TEAR IN THE CLOTH?
AN UMBRELLA? I SAW ONE AROUND HERE SOME PLACE. RECENTLY. LET ME THINK.?..ANYHOW I'LL LOOK FOR IT.
WELL, WELL. THERE'S ONE OF MY FRAT BROTHERS. HE FLUNKED THE EXAM. WHAT'S HIS NAME?.... HE DOESN'T RECOGNIZE ME EITHER. OH WELL—
NOW ONCE MORE MR DIMWIT. THINK OF A NUMBER. DIVIDE IT BY SIX. THEN MULTIPLY BY FIVE. THEN—
WAIT! I THOUGHT OF ZERO.
THAT'S AT LEAST THE TENTH TIME THAT BABY PASSED HERE LOOKING FOR THE UMBRELLA! I WONDER IF—? AHEM! I SAY AHEM!
YOUR FACE IS FAMILIAR SIR, BUT I DIDN'T CATCH THE NAME. WHAT—?
BUNGLE! I'M WAITING FOR THE UMBRELLA. REMEMBER? AN UMBRELLA?....AN HOUR AGO? THINK!
HE'S BEEN GONE ANOTHER HOUR.....I WONDER—? AH HERE HE COMES NOW.
YOUR FACE IS FAMILIAR SIR BUT I DIDN'T CATCH THE—UMBRELLA! REMEMBER? LET'S TRY THE OFFICE....I'LL GO RIGHT WITH YOU. TWO HEADS ARE BETTER THAN ONE....YOU KNOW.
REG. U.S. PAT. OFF.

YES, AN UMBRELLA. I WAS VALEDICTORIAN OF THE CLASS AND IN THE EXCITEMENT OF GRADUATING FORGOT THE—
THIS IS MR. AH, BUNGLE. LOOK THROUGH OUR BOOKS AND SEE IF..?
BUNGLE?....OH YES...HE FORGOT TO PAY US FOR THE LAST TWO LESSONS....ALSO FOR THE DIPLOMA. HERE'S THE BOOK. LOOK, $8.65!
I WONDER IF I LEFT THAT UMBRELLA AT THE OTHER MEMORY TRAINING SCHOOL I ATTENDED A YEAR AGO... LET ME THINK...?
ALSO I FORGOT TO SIGN MY NAME TO THAT CHECK I GAVE THOSE BABIES FOR $8.65. AND THEY FORGOT TO MARK DOWN THE NEW ADDRESS I GAVE THEM. I MUST REMEMBER TO CALL THEM UP ABOUT THOSE TWO MATTERS.

"AW GEE, MOM! IT'S ONLY A FOOT DEEP ALL OVER. THEY AIN'T THE LEAST BIT OF DANGER!"
"THE SHADE FOR THIS HERE WINDOW IS GONE; IT AIN'T NOWHERES!"
"WELL, IT'S GONE! THERE'S NO DOUBT ABOUT THAT!"
"MISSING WINDOW SHADE, EH! WHY, YOUR KID IS USING IT AS A SAIL FOR HIS BOAT!"
"THAT'S NOT SO! I SAW HIS BOAT MYSELF AND HE DID NOT HAVE A WINDOW SHADE ON IT!"
"I'VE KNOWN YOU EVER SINCE YOU WAS A BABY AND NOBODY NEVER COULD TELL YOU NUTHIN!"
"I'LL PERTEND I'VE DISCOVERED SOMETHING INTERESTING AND MAKE HIM BRING THAT BOAT TO SHORE!"
"CURIOSITY IS THE SECOND STRONGEST FORCE IN HUMAN NATURE; HE'LL BE IN HERE IN JUST A MINUTE!"
"NEVER KNOWED IT TO FAIL! NEVER!"
"I'M GONNA TAKE YOUR BOAT HOME TO SHOW YOUR MA AND I ADVISE YOU TO BEAT IT!"

by Bill Conselman and Charlie Plumb
Chris pretended to be a stage comedian and landed a job making a certain gangster laugh. So far, he hasn't done very well
COME ON—MAKE ME LAUGH! I AIN'T BEEN FEELIN GOOD LATELY AN' I GOTTA HAVE ME LAUGHS! SNAP OUT OF IT! AND DON'T SPRING ANY THAT I'VE HEARD!
Gosh, this baby is plenty tough! I'm in a tough spot and if I'm not careful I'll be ON one! That's what I get for posing as some one else! I GOTTA put him in good humor!
DID YOU EVER HEAR THE ONE ABOUT THE GANGSTER AND HIS MACHINE GUN?
IF IT'S FUNNY, LET'S HAVE IT!
IT'S NOT A BIT FUNNY BUT I'LL SPRING IT, ANYWAY! THEY SAY A GANGSTER CALLS HIS REVOLVER HIS PRIMARY DEPARTMENT AND HIS MACHINE GUN HIS FINISHING SCHOOL!
IT'S A PRETTY PUNK JOKE, DON'T YOU THINK?
OH, YEAH? SAY, YOU LITTLE RUNT--I'M DA GUY WHAT WROTE IT!

ELLA CINDERS
by Bill Conselman and Charlie Plumb
HEY, ELLA--I GOTTA HURRY OVER TO FULLERTON! MY LANDLADY PHONED AND SAID THERE WAS AN IMPORTANT-LOOKING LETTER FOR ME THERE! WANNA COME?
OKAY!
YOU'D BETTER SLOW DOWN, WAITE—YOU'RE DRIVING TOO FAST!
I CAN HARDLY GET THERE SOON ENOUGH--MAYBE SOMEBODY'S LEFT ME A LOT OF MONEY AND I BET THE LETTER'S NOTIFYING ME OF IT!
YOU KNOW, UNCLE CHARLEY WAS AWFUL SICK LAST TIME I SAW HIM--AND HE HAS ALL KINDS OF DOUGH! I'M HIS SOLE HEIR, TOO!
WELL, I THINK YOU'RE GOING TO BE AWFUL SICK! HERE COMES A SPEED COP!
THE JUDGE IS GOING TO HAVE A LITTLE PARTY NEXT WEEK AND HE SORT OF ASKED ME TO GIVE YOU A LITTLE TICKET TO IT!
ARE WE SUPPOSED TO BE IMPRESSED?
THAT TICKET DIDN'T HELP YOU A BIT---YOU'RE GOING FASTER THAN EVER!
I'M GONNA BEAT THAT TRAIN TO THE CROSSING! I'M DYING TO SEE WHAT'S IN THAT LETTER!
YOU KNOW, WAITE, STATISTICS SHOW THAT A TRAIN IS NOT AFRAID OF AN AUTOMOBILE!
HOLD ON ELLA---HERE WE GO!
WELL, WE BEAT THAT FAST EXPRESS TO THE CROSSING! CAN YOU IMAGINE THAT?
I-I J-JUST BARELY CAN!
WELL, I MISSED IT!
YES, AND IF YOU HAD HIT IT, SOMEBODY ELSE WOULD BE MISSING IT!
ARE YOU HURT, ELLA?
NO, WAITE--BUT TERRIBLY PUT OUT! I THINK WE'D BETTER MAKE THE REST OF THE TRIP ON FOOT! YOUR CAR IS SIMPLY A WRECK!
MRS. GROGAN, THIS IS WAITE LIFTER CALLING! I CAN'T WAIT TO FIND OUT WHAT'S IN THAT IMPORTANT-LOOKING ENVELOPE----WOULD YOU PLEASE OPEN IT AND READ IT OVER THE PHONE!
"DEAR SIR: WE REGRET TO INFORM YOU THAT YOUR AUTOMOBILE ACCIDENT POLICY NO. 23456 HAS LAPSED. THIS, OF COURSE, MEANS THAT YOUR CAR IS NO LONGER COVERED BY INSURANCE." SIGNED I.L.GOFF, JR."

JUST A POOR, HONEST MAN TRYING TO MAKE A LIVING! THEY STEAL-A MY FRIUT!
THESE PEOPLE RUIN MY BUSINESS! THEY HIT-A ME WIT' ALL MY BANANAS!
COME ON, YOU GUYS! COUGH UP $5.00 EACH TO PAY THIS PEDDLER THE DAMAGE YOU DONE!
—AND AS YOU LOOK LIKE THE LEADER AND THE GUILTIEST, PUT ON YOUR HAT AND COAT! I'M TAKING YOU TO THE JUDGE!
YOU TAKE THIS $10.00 AND BUY YOURSELF A PUSH-CART FULL OF BANANAS!
SIR! DO YOU REALIZE THAT WE'RE GOING IN THE OPPOSITE DIRECTION TO THE POLICE-STATION?
SURE I DO! YOU'RE NOT GOING TO THE POLICE-STATION!
YOU'RE GOING TO THE GOLDEN SWAN WITH ME DORA!
I KNEW IT WAS YOU ALL ALONG, ROD—I'M NOT SO DUMB!
